Goods Instead of Guns

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

The United States Government is ready to institute all-out economic war on the Axis.

Battle plans for this latest "short of shooting" step have been virtually perfected, officials disclosed last night, and an announcement is expected shortly.

After much debate between Treasury experts, eager for an offensive with no holds barred on Axis trade and shipping, and State Department advisers who favor a more cautious program, an agreement is now close to final form which will envisage the following economic weapons:

Close supervision of every Axis dollar on deposit in this country, perhaps by a sweeping order "freezing" all foreign assets under a licensing system.

"Bunker control" of ships that carry goods destined for Germany, Japan and Italy, by refusing fuel to vessels not on the approved list.

Export Restrictions

More stringent restrictions on exports by extending the licensing system now in force to deny supplies to nations pursuing policies of which the United States disapproves, or to countries that are overfriendly to the Axis.

Licenses on selected imports, so that the Government would have power to cut off American buying of such key items as Japanese silk, if that is deemed wise.

Accelerated purchases of raw materials in Latin America, in competition with Germans, Italians and Japanese who want to buy the same materials, the object to accumulate needed stockpiles here and at the same time keep the supplies out of Axis hands by what amounts to "preclusive buying."

Cooperation with the British practice of "blacklisting" firms that have Axis connections

Large Staff Recruited

Brig. Gen. Russell L. Maxwell, export control administrator, has recruited a large staff to prosecute this new kind of warfare, but whether his organization, or an inter-cabinet committee or an entirely new ministry of economic defense will be used remained to be decided.

A factor leading officials to rush plans for the new form of attack on the Axis was discovery that Japanese agents, bidding against American buyers in Latin America have boosted prices for rubber, tungsten, mercury and other vital war supplies as much as 30 or 40 per cent.

Meanwhile, it was reported that the United States-Russian trade agreement, expiring August 5, is rapidly becoming a "dead letter."

Tightening export restrictions here have limited the amount of goods the Russians can buy in the United States and this country is finding it increasingly difficult to obtain such needed supplies as manganese from the U. S. S. R.

Rain Dampens PreaknessHope Of Whirlaway

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Pimlico, Md., May 9.—Swing and away with Whirlaway. This has been the theme song of the fifty-first running of the $50,000 added Preakness since last Saturday when the Calumet Farm's Peck's Bad Boy reformed and ran off with the Kentucky Derby. Tonight, on the eve of the battle for gold and glory that first began in 1873, many stanch supporters are still swinging along with Whirlaway, but others are swaying toward other members of the field.

Six days ago this Preakness appeared to be a Whirlaway parade. He had turned on that masterful last quarter-mile in 24 seconds—had stayed in at that all-important stretch turn, and he had won in easy fashion. But that was on a lightning fast track, where he set a new record for the Derby.

This was not to be a Preakness of doubt, but it is. There is one reason. Old Man Rain, who can't be ruled off by the stewards, has gotten in his licks. He has erased all chance of the fast track that

Woodruff Calls For Billion Arms Tax Cut

Declares It Possible If Nondefense Items Are Deeply Slashed

A Republican proposal to cut the $3,500,000,0000 tax program by the amount of nondefense savings possible was advanced yesterday as the House Ways and Means Committee heard more protests on the Treasury's proposed excises.

Representative Woodruff, of Michigan, a Republican member of the committee, said if the Administration would fight for the $1,000,000,000 in economies suggested by the Treasury, new taxation could be held to $2,500,000,000.

"I agree with Secretary Morgenthau that $1,000,000,000 can be saved from nonessential spending," Woodruff said. "The leadership should come from the President. I favor raising $2,500,000,000 or $3,000,000,000 in taxes and asking the Administration to save the rest."

Doughton for Economy

Chairman Doughton said the committee would shoot at the $3,500,000,000 total, but he personally would like to see $1,000,000,000 in nondefense economies in addition to that amount. He said that would assure persons taxed that the Government was spending efficiently and economically the money it had.

Sentiment against new excises on commodities not in competition with defense appeared to be crystallizing in the committee in line with Price Administrator Leon Henderson's testimony that levies on bank checks, tobacco, gasoline and such items should be sidetracked for taxes on heavy goods competing with defense industry.

Witnesses from interests hit by the proposed excises were quick to take advantage of the argument in yesterday's hearings. Spokesmen

Greek Fleet Balks At Joining Nazis

Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, May 9.—The German headquarters in Athens has invited the ships of the Greek fleet which remain afloat to come to Greek ports with assurances that the vessels will be permitted to fly the Greek flag. Greek sources here, adhering to the Greek government formed in Crete, say there is no likelihood of the fleet's complying with such a "humiliating demand."

Knox, Land Warn Unions Not to Strike

A.F.L., C.I.O. Told Shipyard Walkout On West Coast Would Imperil Defense

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Calling of a strike last midnight in 11 shipbuilding plants in the San Francisco area brought a quick official warning that the walkout would constitute "a strike against our country's program of National Defense."

Secretary of the Navy Knox and Adm. Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, in a wire to A. T. Wynn, secretary of the Bay City Metal Trades Council, issued the warning and called on Wynn for "every possible aid" to avert the tie-up threatened by joint action of C. I. O. and A. F. of L. machinists.

Officials pointed out that 74 Naval ships of various types, to cost around $294,960,000 are under construction in the San Francisco area and work on many of them would be affected by the strike.

Declaring that the strike set for 3:00 a. m., Washington time would violate the agreement reached in the West Coast shipbuilding industry recently, which was approved by the Metal Trades Council, Knox and Land wired Wynn:

"We are sure that you will not permit anyone to interfere with this program or give aid to those who are now engaged in destroying democratic government abroad and who are now a threat in this country."

Flareup of Strikes

At the same time a sudden flaring of strikes in and out of defense industries, and moves to prevent or end them, presented these situations last night:

1. The A. F. L. Building and Construction Trades Council at Boston ordered 925 union members not to report for work Monday at the Boston Navy Yard and the naval drydock. The order was issued as a protest against use of WPA labor.

2. A strike of 6,000 building trades workers was begun at Detroit in support of a truckers' strike that was said to have halted construction work on the new tank arsenal of the Chrysler Corporation.

3. More than 8,000 members of the C. I. O. International Woodworkers Union struck at 25 camps and mills in Washington State and predicted the number would rise to 22,000 in 80 establishments by Monday The strike was started despite a plea by the National Defense Mediation Board for continued operations pending a hearing.

4. President Roosevelt created a special board under the Railway Mediation Act to investigate a strike threat involving the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes and four Midwestern railroads.

5. The Mediation Board conferred throughout the day and into last night with representatives of General Motors Corporation and the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) on the threatened strike in 60 G. M. C. plants employing 160,000 workers.

6. A Mediation Board panel obtained a settlement in a dispute at the Pittsburgh plant of the Allis Chalmers Co., and ended fears of a strike which had been

Six Warships, 3 Cargo Craft In Convoy Hit, Rome Claims

By Herbert L. Matthews

Rome, May 9.—Axis planes have caught a large British convoy in the channel of Sicily and in the first attack by Italian bombing and torpedo-bearing planes yesterday two battleships, one antiaircraft carrier, two cruisers, a destroyer and three merchantmen are stated to have been hit by torpedoes and bombs.

Although nothing has been announced yet, it is believed that further attacks on the convoy must have been made by the German air force in Sicily, just as occurred last January, when a British convoy suffered heavily in the passage through the channel.

[The United Press in Rome reports the battle still going on, with the convoy racing for the protection of Alexandria, Egypt, a haven the Italians say it could not reach before about 6 p. m. today.]

Claim 13 Planes

In addition, it is claimed that during air combats between British and Italian chasers 13 British planes were shot down to the Italian's five, while the Germans shot down three more. In the Aegean Sea another British cruiser is stated by the communique to have been torpedoed, as well as two large merchantmen.

"Yesterday our observation planes spotted a large enemy convoy in the Western Mediterranean, protected by two battleships, one antiaircraft carrier and an unspecified number of cruisers and destroyers," says the war bulletin. "Our torpedo planes, escorted by chasers, carried out a first violent attack against the enemy units with great audacity, hitting two cruisers, a destroyer and a large merchantman with torpedoes.

"Later the naval formation was subjected to the violent action of our bombing formations, which hit a battleship, the aircraft carrier and two large merchant vessels. Late in the afternoon and during the night our torpedo planes again hit the aircraft carrier with a torpedo, as well as a battleship.

"In violent air fights between our chasers and the enemy, which were protecting the convoy, 13 British planes of the Defiant and Hurricane types were shot down. Five of our planes did not return to their base. Three were damaged with wounded aboard. Three other English planes were shot down by German chasers.

Report Cruiser Hit

"In the Aegean our aerial units torpedoed two large ships and a 7,000-ton cruiser which was seen to list, spouting flames and columns of smoke."

According to the map, which the Giornale d'Italia publishes, the main attack on the convoy came as it was passing between Sardinia and Tunisia. Correspondents with the air forces only described the air torpedoing, which they say was done by four Italian planes in two flights. The weather was very bad, they write. The convoy was first attacked at dusk by three planes launching their torpedoes from a distance of a kilometer. Later, in the moonlight, a single plane went out and this one hit a battleship, which the correspondents claim was the Renown.

Italian War Losses Put at 212,641

Rome, May 9 (AP).—Official tabulation tonight of 98,938 killed, wounded and missing in April brought to 212,641 the losses listed by Italy's armed forces since this country went to war June 10, 1940. The cumulative totals were 20,251 killed, 50,413 wounded and 141,977 missing.

The April list, including the Balkan and African campaigns and an unspecified number of losses not previously reported, showed 5,324 killed, 17,986 wounded and 75,958 missing, most of the missing being in the East and North Africa fighting.

April Ship Losses Are War's Worst

By the Associated Press

London, May 10 (Saturday).—British, Allied and neutral merchant shipping losses in April were 106 ships totaling 488,124 tons, the ministry of information announced early today.

This was the highest monthly toll announced since the start of the war. The previous high was slightly more than 463,000 tons in June, 1940, a month which included the Dunkerque withdrawal losses.

The April losses covered the withdrawal from Greece.

Worst month of shipping losses in the World War was April, 1917, when nearly 1,000,000 tons of Allied shipping were sunk, 60 per cent of it British. Britain later was acknowledged to have had only a six-week supply of food remaining.

The announcement placed British losses at 60 ships of 293,089 tons; Allied losses at 43 ships of 189,473 tons, and neutral losses at 3 ships of 5,562 tons.

British Pound Invasion Coast; Germans Strike Back at Ports

By the Associated Press

London (Saturday), May 10. The R. A. F. struck with great force early today at the Nazi invasion bases on the French coast nearest England, following up almost without pause the greatest British air raid of the war which wrought fiery destruction on Bremen and Hamburg.

The roar of explosions and the tracery of searchlights from the direction of Calais told watchers on the moonlit cliffs of Dover that British bombers were at work. Later it was announced a "successful attack" was made on Mannhorn, Germany.

With 300 to 400 bombers participating, Britain lashed her hardest blows at Bremen and Hamburg Friday in a determined campaign to kill the Nazi submarine menace at its source. Next on the program, apparently, was a smash at any invasion plans the Nazis might be hatching.

[But, a dispatch early today from Germany said Berlin and a large city in southern Germany apparently were the principal targets of the R. A. F. bombers.

[Northwestern and southwestern Germany were raided and it was added there would be losses among the civilian populace.

[In Berlin one thickly-populated residential district was reported hit, with several apartment buildings destroyed and a number of persons killed and injured.]

The German airforce, which countered the British raids Thursday night with destructive pounding at vital British ports, particularly along the Humber, returned there and to the Midlands again last night and this morning. Liverpool also was raided again, but the intensity of all attacks was said to be less than on Thursday.

Three German bombers were reported destroyed.

Informed sources said it was the lightest raid on Britain in a week and caused comparatively few casualties.

[Berlin announced, according to International News Service, that 20 Royal Air Force bases in southern England and the Midlands were attacked and that barracks and hangars were destroyed.]

Authorized sources said 121 German planes, including eight bombers brought down by the R. A. F. over northern France, have been destroyed since May 1. This figure includes 88 night bombers.

The air ministry's account of the

Menzies Says R. A. F. Will Give 2 for 1

Robert Gordon Menzies, prime minister of Australia, yesterday foresaw a day when an enlarged R. A. F. would be dropping 2 tons of bombs on Germany for every ton the Luftwaffe drops on Britain.

"We have yet to discover how Germany can stand up under bombing," he said in an interview here. "You just wait until the hitting power of our air force is developed. Wait until we can take a couple of tons of bombs over for every ton the enemy can bring in.

"Then we will get a test of Germany's morale." (Story Page 7).

Iraq's Broken Army Flees Into Desert

Abandoning Guns And Armored Cars; Airforce Destroyed

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Egypt, May 9.—With British armored forces and airmen in pursuit, Iraq's army has scattered over the desert, strewing the sands behind it with armored cars, trucks and cannon, a British communique said tonight.

The British also said they had destroyed the small Iraq airforce, left high and dry by the failure of Germany to fulfill a promise for delivery of planes by May 2.

The British bombed Iraqi out of the Rutbah Airdrome and reoccupied it, Rutbah is an important junction of routes to Palestine, Syria and Bagdad.

Heavy casualties were inflicted, the British added, in routing Iraqis who attacked the British-held airdrome at Habbaniyah a week ago.

The Iraqis were retreating toward Ramadi and Falluja, to the north and east.

"Our forces, which included the R. A. F., armored cars, troops and Iraqi levies, captured a large quantity of material including six serviceable howitzers, a number of other guns and four armored cars in the week-old fighting," the communique said.

The small Iraq air force suffered the loss of no fewer than 25 planes, the British said.

Trans-Jordan Emir Shot

Beirut, Syria, May 9 (U.P.).—The Emir Abdullah of Trans-Jordania was reported tonight to have been shot and seriously wounded by his son, Talal, in a dispute over the hostilities in neighboring Iraq.

The 69-year-old Emir is strongly pro-British and has been reported organizing a strong expeditionary force to move into Iraq to aid the British.

Roosevelt, Still Ill, Cancels Parley

President Roosevelt remained in the residential side of the White House again yesterday, canceling his second consecutive press conference because of a slight gastro-intestinal ailment. He also canceled all other appointments, but kept abreast of his official correspondence and disposed of a few routine matters.

Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, Mr. Roosevelt's personal physician, said the President was running a fever of 98.8 degrees—two-tenths of a degree above normal.

British Raid Foe In Salum Storm

Cairo, Egypt, May 9 (AP).—British mechanized forces, operating in a choking sandstorm and the hottest desert weather in 25 years, were reported pursuing vigorous raids today against the stalled Axis forces in the Salum sector of the Egyptian-Libyan frontier.

U.S. Ships Soon To Carry Aid Into Red Sea

Cargo ships flying the American flag soon will sail to the very threshold of the Middle Eastern war area, loaded with supplies for British forces defending the Suez Canal.

This was foreshadowed yesterday when the Maritime Commission announced that ships of American registry would soon begin service into the Red Sea, which was recently removed from the combat zone by President Roosevelt.

At the same time, the Commission said that sailings to China would shortly be increased, apparently one of a series of U. S. moves to give China renewed aid in its struggle against Japan.

While America thus threw fresh merchant tonnage into the battle against aggressor nations, it became apparent that the State Department would summarily reject a German protest against seizure and imminent requisitioning of two Nazi merchant ships for use in the Battle of the Atlantic.

Challenges President's Right

The new Nazi protest reportedly challenges the President's right to take over German ships under legislation overwhelmingly passed by the House this week and awaiting Senate action next week.

An official rejection note is understood to be in preparation which will reject the two following Nazi objections to the legislation:

1. That President Roosevelt's given reason for wanting to requisition the ships—a national emergency—was created by the President himself in releasing tonnage to Great Britain and her allies.

2. That the ship-seizure bill would permit confiscation of property owned by foreigners.

Stalin Ceases Recognizing 3 Nazi Victims

Ministers to Norway, Belgium, Yugoslavia Shorn of Credentials

By the Associated Press

Moscow, May 9.—Russia today withdrew her recognition of three German-occupied countries whose emigre governments are allied with the British, and diplomatic sources believed Josef Stalin, in his first act as premier, was patching up his differences with Germany.

The foreign office sent notes to the ministers of Yugoslavia, Belgium and Norway, notifying them their ministerial powers had lost validity Only a month ago, Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union negotiated a friendship agreement.

Foreign diplomatists saw in this an indication of a new understanding with Germany, one by which Stalin hopes to further the Soviet policy of peace and neutrality.

German-Soviet tension appears to have relaxed after the period in which Russia concluded her friendship pact with Yugoslavia—one day prior to the German invasion of that country—reaffirmed her nonaggression pact with Turkey, rebuked Bulgaria for accepting German occupation and criticized Hungary for invading Yugoslavia in the Germans' wake.

U. S. in War, Says James Roosevelt

Cairo, Egypt, May 9 (AP).—U. S. Marine Capt. James Roosevelt declared today that the United States, "except for sending troops, already is in the war."

President Roosevelt's eldest son, here as a military observer, made that statement in answer to a question whether he thought the United States could aid Britain best by entering the war, or remaining out of it.

101 Arrested in Alien Round-up; Waiters Seized at Smart Hotels

By International News Service

New York, May 9.—Sweeping through fashionable hotels, restaurants and clubs in a blitz round-up of Italian aliens illegally in this country, G-men, detectives and immigration agents arrested 101 men today and continued search for 15 more for whom warrants were issued.

The drive against Italian aliens, most of them left-overs from the service force at the World's Fair Italian pavilion, followed closely on the similiar roundup of 175 German seamen here and elsewhere.

The Italian aliens, like the Germans, are charged with overstaying their leave in America. Because of the war and resultant lack of shipping facilities they probably will be interned.

Todays surprise raid was made simultaneously on a score of places where socially prominent persons are accustomed to gather, including such fashionable hotels as the Ambassador and the Ritz-Carlton.

Waiters were taken while serving guests, kitchen help were removed from their stoves and sculleries, and all were hustled to Ellis Island or other temporary detention quarters in Manhattan.

Coincidentally, a Federal judge indicated that release on bail will not be permitted to subjects of Axis countries found to be in America illegally.

Decision was reserved in a habeas

Girl, 23, Saved From Russian Firing Squad by U. S. Envoy

By the United Press

Moscow, May 9.—Saved from death before a Soviet firing squad by United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt, the 23-year-old daughter of a Philadelphia minister will sail from Vladivostok for the United States tomorrow after being released from Moscow's Lubianka prison.

Dark-eyed Irena Pick was sentenced to death last January for "counter-revolutionary activity" while a student of the Polish University in the Russian-occupied city of Lwow.

Forty men and women friends, all members of a club at the university, were seized with her and sentenced to death January 18. All she believes, have been executed.

She is accompanied by another American citizen released from imprisonment and permitted to leave Russia — 23-year-old Mieczyslaw Rozhkovsky, a farmhand of Bialostok just freed from a three-year prison camp sentence. His father lives in Chelsea, Mass. Rozhkovsky said he was arrested last June for unlawful possession of firearms because he failed to hand over to police a rusty old shotgun when the Russians occupied Eastern Poland. He too won his freedom through the intervention of Steinhardt.

Irena said she was born in McKees Rock, Pa., but had been in Poland since she was 10 years old. Her father, she said, was the late Rev. Alexander Pick, of Philadelphia.

Over Our Shoulder

a preview of the Sunday Post

"I've been Peglerized!" moaned Scalise as he went off to jail, and perhaps the echoes of that phrase sounded in the judges' minds as they made their selections for the Pulitzer Prize for reporting. Anyhow, Pegler got it for "peglerizing" Mr. Scalise, so now our Westbrook is a celebrity himself and has to stand and have his picture taken. How do you like it, Peg?

Edward T. Folliard does the verbal picture of Pegler in a special article in Sunday's Post. Folliard knows Pegler personally, just as Post drama editor Nelson Bell knows another 1940 Pulitzer Prize Winner Robert Sherwood. Bell, by the way, was the first drama critic to come out with the prediction that "There Shall Be No Night" would prove to be a tremendous success. In Sunday's Post critic Bell gives you some anecdotes about playwright Sherwood.

Third of the personality sketches of the Pulitzer Prize people is Barry Sullivan's interview with Ola Elizabeth Winslow, of Baltimore, whose "Jonathan Edwards" won the biography prize.

Last year's winner of the biography prize, of course, was Sunday Post Columnist Carl Sandburg, who writes tomorrow about the burning of the books in Naziland and why you can't compare 1914 with 1941.

Certainly the temper of America is entirely different in 1941 than it was in 1914. Look over some of the topics of article in tomorrow's Post and you can realize how impossible it would have been to write them in 1914 . . .

There's the Gallup Poll on the draft, for instance. There was no peacetime draft before the World War, in fact there has never been one before in American history. Now Gallup polls the public on dropping the draft age to 18. And Alsop & Kintner write about the changes the Government is contemplating making in the draft. Jack Norris describes Vultee's new airplane plant, and Hedley Donovan shows how the streams of men and material converge at the point now agitating Washington—"Shall we convoy and risk naval warfare?"

So different, in fact, is 1941 from 1914 that writers on Boy Scouts and on women's clubs can't escape the martial tone. Robert Cramer tells Sunday Post readers about the National Council of the Boys Scouts, holding its thirty-first annual meeting, and the Scouts' defense work. Jessie Arndt writes of the American Women's Voluntary Service, which has the answer to you women who ask yourselves, "What can I do?"

How long does it take you to get ready for moving day? Some of the Army and Navy wives in China and the Phillipines had only two days notice to pack up and get out! Elizabeth Henney tells the story of their mass evacuation—in Sunday's society section.

That's enough about war.

Sunday's fashion page shows you what kind of shoes the ladies will be wearing this summer. (Some of them actually have toes!) And "Pictures," the Sunday Post roto section, has a page on sweaters and swim suits for 1941.

Mary Haworth's column concerns a wife with spells of melancholia. Malvina Lindsay takes the antique hunters for a buggy ride in "The Gentler Sex."

And the Sunday novel—beautifully timed for Mother's Day!—is about a daughter who found that her stepfather-in-law-to-be had fallen in love with her!

Tokyo Hints Of China Peace, If U. S. Helps

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, May 9.—The newspaper Nichi Nichi today printed a report attributed to Kumatore Honda, Japanese Ambassador to the puppet Chinese regime at Nanking, that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has declared himself unwilling to enter any peace negotiations with Japan unless the United States sits as a mediator.

Without naming individuals, the Nichi Nichi dispatch said that "certain foreigners" recently visited Chungking and conferred frequently with Chiang Kai-shek.

It was said here this obviously referred to Marine Capt. James Roosevelt, son of the United States President, whose visit to the Chinese Nationalist capital now takes on a new and highly significant importance.

The Nichi Nichi story came a few hours after the Japan Times and Advertiser, English language newspaper controlled by the Japanese foreign office, said that Japan had reached a "new stage" in her policy toward China.

Losing Faith in Arms

The Japan Times and Advertiser declared the effort to overcome the Chinese by force of arms "must have little more appeal even to the most sanguine of soldierly minds."

The paper suggested that Japan's new policy be two-fold:

"First, peace and order in China, because no peace can be possible in the Far East without a peaceful China;

"Second, development of China as an active partner in the new Asiatic coprosperity sphere, because a new economic structure for East Asia would be impossible without the cooperation of China."

Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye and Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka were said in some circles to be determined to settle the dispute with China in order to prepare for the greater east Asia program of Japan.

[State Department and Japanese sources here said last night nothing was known here of any official moves to have the United States serve as a medium in possible efforts for bringing peace between Japan and China.]

Troop Withdrawals Reported

Shanghai, China (Saturday), May 10 (AP).—Neutral quarters said today Japan appeared to be preparing to withdraw troops from large areas of the interior of China to concentrate them along the coast.

There were strong indications that Japan shortly will abandon as fruitless the effort to conquer all China and attempt to force the Chunking government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek into submission by new tactics, these quarters said.

Informants predicted the Japanese would hold as much of north China as possible, while south of the Yellow River they would withdraw to a line following the railway from north China to Nanking, Shanghai, Hangchow and down the coast to Canton.

Yangtze Valley areas above Nanking would be handed over to the Nanking troops, who have been moving up the river in large numbers, and thus free Japanese troops to hold eastern seaports and cut supply lines to Chungking.

Doubt Offensive Power

Japanese favoring this move are said to believe that without large foreign supplies Chungking would be unable to assume an offensive even against Nanking troops.

(Chiang recently said the military phase of the 4-year-old war was over and that the conflict had settled into an economic warfare.)

Burma Road to Stay Open

Chungking, China, May 9 (AP).—Sir Archibald J. K. C. Kerr, the British Ambassador, tonight reaffirmed Britain's friendship for China, and declared the supply road from Burma will remain open.

He issued the statement a few hours after Japanese air raiders damaged his residence and caused some 200 Chinese casualties.

Chinese youngsters risked their lives between waves of raiders to gather fish killed by bombs falling in the Yangtze River.

400,000 Enemy Casualties Caused By Empire Army

Bournemouth, England, May 9 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Lord Croft, parliamentary secrtary for the war office, said tonight that empire armies had inflicted "400,000 casualties on our enemies at extremely small losses in comparison, and stand now as veterans ready to meet the greater menace in the Middle East."

When the British in North Africa went to the aid of Greece, he said, they were "able to leave only a light screen of armored forces and one infantry division at Bengasi. The gallantry of the armored corps, which suffered heavy losses, enabled withdrawal of the infantry intact to Tobruk."

Of the Greek campaign, he said, "there was more than a sporting chance that the vital line in the Balkans could be held," and that the Germans had been forced to "a most expensive victory" while time was given to strengthen the defense of Egypt.

Aiding Mediterranean

The Maritime Commission's action in starting ship service to the Red Sea, entrance to the Suez Canal, was expected to be of prime importance in the battle for control of the Mediterranean which is developing in that area.

A proclamation under the Neutrality Act barred the Red Sea to American vessels while war raged there, but after the collapse of Italian resistance some weeks ago President Roosevelt reopened the Red Sea to United States vessels.

German Liner Reported Beaten in Sea Battle

GERMAN LINER BELIEVED SUNK—A German raider, believed to have been the former Hamburg-American liner Hansa, shown as she steamed out of New York Harbor September 28, 1938, on "hurry home" orders, was reported by the Admiralty yesterday to have been sunk in the Indian Ocean by a British cruiser

British Cruiser Sinks Nazi Ocean Raider

By the Associated Press

London, May 9.—The Admiralty today announced the sinking of the first German surface raider since the pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee went up in smoke at Montevideo in December, 1939.

The 8-inch rifles of the 10,000-ton cruiser Cornwall sent the Nazi ship, believed to have been the 21,131-ton former transatlantic liner Hansa, to the bottom of the Indian Ocean with a probable loss of 247 Nazi seamen.

The German fought a losing battle with her six 5.9-inch guns and torpedo tubes in waters American ships must ply to supply British Middle East forces.

Only 53 German survivors of a crew of 300 were picked up.

Twenty-seven British merchant seamen were rescued from the stricken Nazi craft. They had been prisoners after their ships fell prey to the marauder operating on the steamship lanes between Capetown, Africa, and the Red Sea—the sea declared by President Roosevelt to be open to American shipping but which the Axis powers contend still is a war zone.

The Cornwall suffered only "superficial damage" and her "fighting efficiency was in no way impaired," the admiralty said.

A British naval patrol also was reported tonight to have fired on the German armed trawler Muenchen (Munich) "in northern waters," causing the crew to scuttle and abandon their ship.

"They were subsequently rescued and made prisoner," concluded the brief admiralty communique.

Bremen-Hamburg assault said flatly that more aircraft than ever before participated in a British raid had thrown tens of thousands of incendiary bombs and hundreds of tons of explosives on those ports and shipbuilding centers. Ten planes were lost.

Blows of lesser degree were directed at Emden and Berlin, the U-boat base at St. Nazaire, France, airdromes in France and Belgium, and northwest German towns and coastal shipping, the air ministry said.

American-made Havoc (Douglas) bombers were used in the raids on the airports.

Informed sources declined to confirm or deny German assertions that the British even went as far as Posen, German-occupied Poland, but noted with satisfaction the German admission of considerable damage to Breman and Hamburg.

"Buildings were rent and smashed and Germanys submarine and shipbuilding yards were remorselessly bombarded and left with fires blazing in their midst" said the air ministry news service.

The British raiders roared over the ports in a constant procession, it said, while "pilots' individual reports speak of 'areas a mass of flames in which it was impossible to distinguish separate fires,' of 'terrific explosions and smoke rising to 10,000 feet,' and of 'our most powerful bombs dropped into the heart of the raging fires,'" for these groups testified against taxes on gasoline, cigars, soft drinks, movies and athletic goods.

The dense smoke and flames billowing over the German cities today indicated that oil stores had been hit, the news service said.

Three representatives of the petroleum industry said a 1-cent increase in the gasoline tax would hit the lower rung of consumers. They argued there was no tax need to discourage motor fuel use, since the industry can supply "all normal commercial requirements and all war needs without difficulty."

Witnesses against the gas tax included Fayette B. Dow, representing the American Petroleum Industries Committee; J. C. Hunter, president of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, and Russell B. Brown, general counsel of the Independent Petroleum Association of America.

Alvaro M. Garcia, president of the Cigar Manufacturers Association of America, said the cigar industry has been on the decline for years and was in no position to bear the new taxes.

Maj. John L. Griffith, president of the Athletic Institute, said the proposed tax on sporting goods would hit "the sandlot kid."

Edward Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America, advised elimination of the 20-cent exemption on admissions rather than the proposed cut to 9 cents, while P. J. Wood, secretary of the Independent Theater Owners, recommended elimination of the 5 per cent film rental tax.

The Gallup Poll

90% Would Favor Fighting If Canada Were Invaded

By Dr. George Gallup,
By American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., May 9.—One subject on which virtually all sections of American public opinion are agreed today is that the United States should fight if Canada, close neighbor to the north, should be invaded.

That fact is indicated today in a Nation-wide study by the American Institute of Public Opinion, following closely on the visit of Canadian Prime Minister Mackenzie King to confer with President Roosevelt at Hyde Park.

Even before the outbreak of war in Europe 20 months ago, President Roosevelt announced that Canada's defense was vital to our own, in an historic extension of the Monroe Doctrine.

Trend of Sentiment

Public opinion surveys conducted by the Institute in the first weeks of the war showed nearly 70 per cent agreeing with this statement of American responsibility at that time, and after the fall of France last summer the number willing to undertake the actual protection of Canada topped 80 per cent.

Now, after months of close collaboration between American and Canadian members of the joint-defense commission, 90 per cent say America should fight to protect Canada from attack.

Trend of opinion on the question is shown in the following figures:

	Should Defend	Should Not Defend	Undec.
October, 1939	68%	25%	7%
June, 1940	81	13	6
Today	90	5	5

The survey shows that even in the traditionally "isolationist" Middle West nine out of ten would fight to defend Canada from invasion.

In part, of course, this is because the Middle West has common frontiers with the Dominion along a line some 1,500 miles long—from the Rockies to Lake Erie.

However, it is interesting to note that the South, which is geographically farthest removed from Canada, is just as willing to fight in defense of Canadian integrity as the North.

"We just can't afford to let any invader have a foothold on this continent," the voters said time and again.

Iraq Revealed Using U. S. Arms Worth $1,000,000

The United States has exported nearly $1,000,000 worth of airplanes and equipment to Iraq.

The State Department supplied the figure yesterday when asked to comment on a statement at Cairo, Egypt, by Capt. James Roosevelt that German airmen were reported to be flying American-made planes as part of the Iraq forces which have risen against the British.

Exports of planes to Iraq amounted to $697,963 during 1940 and in addition there were small amounts of aerial gun equipment.

Only aircraft parts and machine guns, amounting to about $200,000 have been sent to Iraq so far this year, figures showed.

corpus action brought by Manfred Zapp and Guenther Tonn, American manager of the German-controlled Trans-Ocean News Service, but Federal Judge Mandelbaum commented:

"The rights of these men have not been violated; the rights of this country have been violated."

Recalls Von Werra Case

In opposing the issuance of a writ of habeas corpus freeing the German "News" officials again, U. S. Attorney Mathias Correa said:

"These men are Germans, nationals of a country which as a matter of policy has no respect for agreements of bail."

He referred to the recent fleeing from this country of Baron von Werra, German pilot prisoner of war who jumped bail here after escaping from a Canadian concentration camp.

"That case is not greatly different from this," Correa said. "You will recall that von Werra was admitted to $15,000 bail and he left with the aid and assistance of diplomatic representatives of his country.

"With that in mind, the United States is under no obligation to grant bail, now that it is forewarned that if it suits the purpose of the nation of which these men are subjects to instruct them to ignore the provisions under which bail is granted, it will do so."

Port of Hull Heavily Raided, Nazis Report

By the Associated Press

Berlin, May 9.—Germany tonight portrayed her armed forces as concentrating on Britain in this manner:

Air attacks being driven home against England itself; Axis forces more than holding their own in North Africa; harassment of British strongholdes in the Mediterranean, and a steady pounding at British life lines.

The German press emphasized the air attacks on English harbors to such an extent that neutral observers speculated on the possibility of a mass German assault on Britain before United States war materials could be delivered in volume.

Hull, an important port, was raided heavily last night for the second successive night. Nottingham and other Midlands cities and ports in southern England also were attacked.

Reconnaissance pilots returned from flights over Belfast with pictures which showed that three ships under construction totaling about 25,000 tons, were destroyed the night of May 4, D.N.B. said.

The Germans said a submarine reported sinking four British merchantmen totaling more than 20,000 tons in the North Atlantic.

Secrecy Imposed On Sites for New Defense Plants

The War Department yesterday imposed a rule of strict secrecy as to information on the selection of sites for new munitions plants, camps and other Army establishments until finally approved by the President.

Heretofore some information has been made available about preliminary steps in the selection of such sites, but it was said unofficially that premature disclosures had resulted in land prices being increased in some cases and considerable difficulty over the competition of various communities.

Premature announcement of one project in the South was said to have caused such a change in conditions that the whole plan had to be revised. The War Department and the OPM are now in the process of selecting sites for a huge new program of munitions plants to cost about $1,500,000,000.

Nazis Tighten Economic Vise On Jews in Occupied France

By John Elliott

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Vichy, May 9.—As Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan left this morning for Paris to continue negotiations on Franco-German collaboration, the German military authorities issued a blanket order forbidding Jews to engage in any calling or business which would bring them into contact with "Aryans" in the occupied zone. Thus the famous Nuremberg laws of the Third Reich are henceforth applied in all their rigor to German-occupied France.

Beginning May 20, Jews will be specifically forbidden to engage in any wholesale or retail trade, in the restaurant or hotel industry, insurance, insurance companies, shipping, travel and warehouse concerns, tourist agencies, as guides, in transportation agencies of all kinds, including the hiring of automobiles and other vehicles, in banking and brokerage houses, pawn enterprises, information bureaus, exploitation of automatic machines, advertising agencies, dealings in apartment houses, real estate and mortgages, employment agencies, matrimonial bureaus and as commercial travelers.

Anti-semitic laws promulgated at Vichy last October forbid Jews in any part of France to hold Government offices, to be teachers, to engage in journalism or to be employed in the radio or cinema field.

Jews who violate this law will be liable to imprisonment, fines and confiscation of all their goods.

Public Opinion Bars Convoys, Wheeler Says

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Senator Wheeler, of Montana, leader of Congressional anticonvoy forces, yesterday returned from an antiwar stumping tour and predicted the President would not order convoys.

Wheeler received reporters as rumors swept the Capitol that the President may discuss the convoy question in a Wednesday night speech before the Pan-American Union.

One report, entirely unconfirmed, was that an important proclamation may be issued by the White House early next week. The Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies and some Administration Senators have been urging declaration by the President of a full state of national emergency.

"I think the President realizes the public sentiment," said the Montana noninterventionist. "I don't believe he is going to take a chance on going contrary to the overwhelming public sentiment of the country."

Leaders denied knowledge of any forthcoming White House declaration, but repeated the Administration view that the convoy question is one for Executive determination.

Time to Act, Vinson Says

In the House, Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee, said he believed the time had come for the President to safeguard British aid shipments, and "we ought to tell them that if they shoot at us, we'll shoot back."

Both Chairman Bloom of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and his ranking committeeman, Representative Luther Johnson of Texas, reiterated their belief that the President as Commander in Chief has the power to order convoys. Chairman Bland of the House Merchant Marine Committee, voiced the same conviction.

But in the Senate, Chairman George of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, held to his view that if convoys are thought necessary the question should be submitted to Congress. He said he did not know what was the President's conclusion, but in his own opinion his power to order convoys without Congressional consent "is of doubtful validity."

Senate Minority Leader McNary was said to hold the same opinion, but Majority Leader Barkley has consistently maintained it was a question for the President to decide.

Advocates Increase

A growing list of high Administration officials have publicly declared for immediate steps to see that munitions and food promised England in the Lend-Lease Act are delivered, with some on record for use of the Navy to any extent necessary.

Wheeler, in his first interview since his anticonvoy tour, criticized recent speeches by Secretaries Hull, Stimson, Knox and Wickard and Lord Halifax, and declared they had "utterly failed to change public sentiment."

He insisted sentiment as he found it was against convoys and against war and recent speeches had made it more so. And he charged that "English propaganda in this country is doing a distinct disservice to Britain."

Meanwhile, three student delegates called on Acting Secretary of the Navy Ralph Bard to present an undergraduate petition urging immediate establishment of convoys to insure delivery of supplies to Britain.

Princeton Does Its Bit

The scroll, 30 feet in length, and signed by 922 Princeton undergraduates, was presented by Simeon Hyde, jr., and Harold R. Scott, Princeton seniors, and Herbert G. Wellington, a sophomore. Bard is an allumnus of Princeton.

The Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies in a new statement of policy recommended declaration of a state of National emergency, use of convoys, effective aid to China with an embargo against Japan; freezing of Axis credits, cooperation with Britain's mobilization of resources to combat aggressors, and a Presidential declaration of intention by this country to take "its full responsibility in organizing enduring peace on the basis of political, social and economic justice."

Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, in the Senate charged "pressure" was being exerted on the President to order convoys through a chain telegram campaign for convoys. He read a telegram signed Edison Marshall, Augusta, Ga., who said he had been asked to keep the chain going. Nye said it indicated "weakness" in forces urging convoys.

Nye and Senator Tobey (Republican), of New Hampshire, are authors of anticonvoy resolutions defeated last week in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Tobey still plans to seek a Senate vote on his resolution, offered either as a rider to the ship seizure bill or as a motion to discharge the Foreign Relations Committee from further consideration. Leadership polls indicate it will be defeated in the Senate.

Santiago, Cuba, May 9 (AP).—The government radio reported tonight it had intercepted an S O S indicating the merchant ship Hercules had been attacked by an armed raider, apparently off the southeast tip of Greenland.

No details concerning the nationality of the ship or the attacker were available.

Papagos Reported Arrested in Athens

Istanbul, Turkey (Saturday), May 10 (AP).—Greek sources said today that Generalissimo Alexander Papagos and other former Greek government officials, including Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Mavroudis, had been placed under arrest in Athens.

The former government officials, those sources said, will be tried on a charge of prosecuting war to the detriment of the state.

Hotel Man Tells How to Know A Million Persons by Name

A hearty Irishman who knows 1,000,000 people by name and face and has a nodding acquaintance with 5,000,000 others, gave graduates of the Lewis Hotel Training School a few pointers last night on how to get along in the hotel business.

He is John E. Horgan, general manager of New York's Hotel Lincoln, who was commencement speaker at exercises for graduates of the school's hotel management course.

"All of this country is a Main Street to me," he told the class. "I have seen, spoken to, looked at, laughed at, bowed to 50,000,000 people."

How does he remember the names and faces of so many?

"If you like people you'll remember them," he explained to the graduates. "I'm Irish. I like people."

The Art of Attention

But there seems to be a bit more to the art than that, and Horgan elaborated on the subject after the exercises.

"Memory," he said, "is the art of attention. You are born with a good or bad memory, but you can enhance it by effort.

"I don't try to remember the names of everybody I meet. But if I meet somebody I want to remember, I throw every other thought out of my head and concentrate on him and his name. I visualize the name. And I take in the person—voice, eyes, general personality, makeup.

"I make people a part of me. I study them. And I remember them. . . . The human memory is unlimited.

"I always say, memory is the miser of the brain and forgetfulness is the spendthrift."

Other speakers at the exercises, held at the school, Twenty-third Street and Washington Circle Northwest, were Dick Carlson, Civil Aeronautics Authority director of personnel; Robert N. Harris, Raleigh Hotel clerk and recent graduate, and Mrs. Mary Catherine Lewis, vice president of the school.

U. S. Prepared to Feed France If She Resists Nazi Pressure

By Robert G. Nixon
International News Service Staff Writer

Using food as its weapon, the United States Government yesterday brought powerful diplomatic pressure to bear on the Vichy government to reject German demands that France join the Axis against Great Britain.

America, Vichy was informed, will gladly help feed France indefinitely if Marshal Petain maintains a firm stand against German efforts to achieve a further modification of the terms of the armistice of last June.

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles outlined the American viewpoint to French Ambassador Gaston Henri-Haye today when the envoy presented a plea for additional United States aid in relieving an "acute food shortage" in unoccupied France.

2 Shiploads a Month

Welles told the ambassador this Government will permit shipment of two shiploads of wheat monthly to France providing the general terms of the armistice with Germany are not modified.

The undersecretary firmly emphasized, however, that no food can be expected from the United States if Vichy gives an inch to German demands for use of the French fleet, or French bases in either France or Africa.

The Washington policy is based on the realization that French acquiesence to German demands for further collaboration would present a double-barreled threat to American security.

German military occupation of French Morocco, and with it Senegal, of which the fortified West African port of Dakar is the capital, would give Germany vitally strategic bases on the Atlantic to strike at South America. Dakar is only 1,600 miles—or a seven to eight hour flight by bombers—from Natal, Brazil.

Fleet Still Powerful

Likewise, German control of the still powerful French fleet would afford Germany heavy battle fleet reinforcements to strike at the hard-pressed British fleet, the continued existence of which is considered essential to American security.

The American stand was firmly enunciated in the face of reports that Vichy's pro-Nazi vice premier, Admiral Jean Darlan, has again returned to Paris for further talks with German authorities on French collaboration with the Axis.

Welles' presentation was reinforced by a declaration from Secretary of State Cordell Hull that no agreement on food shipments has yet been reached and that a number of conditions first must definitely be determined.

It was made amply clear that before the United States agrees to feed France the Vichy government must give assurances, backed by performance, that it will not agree to changes in the armistice terms that would aid Germany.

Knox, Land Warn Unions Not to Strike

planned for May 5, but was deferred at the board's request.

7. The board received from the Labor Department the strike at the LaPorte, Ind., plant of Allis Chalmers and immediately wired disputants a plea that work be resumed by the 1,500 employes until hearing can be held.

8. Also certified to the board was the strike of C. I. O. workers at the United Engineering & Foundry Co., Vandergrift, Pa., where 900 men have been employed on making castings for artillery and machine tools.

9. The board, for the first time, declined to accept a case certified by the Labor Department. It pointed out that the dispute was a jurisdictional conflict between two A. F. L. unions at the Busch-Sulzer Brothers Diesel Engine Co., St. Louis, while the board was created to handle management-labor disputes.

10. Thousands of workers were ordered on strike against 60 California canneries, the Associated Press reported, at the beginning of a season that at its peak employs 60,000 workers.

11. The Michigan Labor Board announced that the C. I. O. auto workers had filed notice of intent to strike the plants of the Murphy Body Corporation, which is preparing to manufacture airplane sub-assemblies. Issues are wages, seniority and collective bargaining rights.

Secretary Knox and Admiral Land, in protesting against the scheduled strike in West Coast shipyards, declared that "the national emergency we find ourselves in today requires uninterrupted work on shipbuilding, which is one of the most important of our defense industries."

Frey Opposes Walkout

A protest against the walkout came also from John P. Frey, president of the A. F. of L. metal trades department.

Frey telegraphed the Bay Cities Metal Trades Council he was opposed to the walkout because it would violate the recent master agreement.

"The agreement," Frey telegraphed, "is a binding obligation upon each local metal trade council, because it had each council's approval. The time has come when the integrity of our council makes definite action on its part a necessity."

The machinists now receive $1 an hour and have been offered $1.12 an hour, with time and a half for overtime, and are demanding $1.15 an hour with double time for overtime.

The walkout was directed against Bethlehem, Moore, General Engineering, United Engineering, Columbia Machine, Pacific Drydock and Matson plants. It was estimated around 2,000 machinists would be involved.

The lumber strike in Washington State was tying up plants supplying material for Army camps and other projects.

Large defense orders are involved in the Busch-Sulzer strike at St. Louis, where the carpenters and machinists unions of the A. F. of L. are both claiming the same work.

Railroads against which the threatened strike of clerks and freight handlers is directed are the Duluth, Missabe & Iron Range Railway; Chicago & Northwestern; Great Northern, and the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railway. The special board has 30 days to make its investigation and report to the President, after which the law prohibits any strike for an additional 30 days.

The agreement reached in the Allis Chalmers case is expected to be ratified by the 1,250 workers, members of the C. I. O. United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers. The company manufactures generators and turbines. The issues were wages and a new contract.

Conferences in the General Motors dispute were recessed at 11 o'clock last night without word as to progress.

It was rumored that although neither company nor union have publicly receded from their positions on wages—the principal issue in dispute—both have privately indicated a willingness to make some compromise, but that the figures of the two sides are still far apart.

Girl, 16, Implicates Designer In Hollywood Attack Case

Los Angeles, May 9 (AP).—A pretty 16-year-old girl who came to Hollywood to become a movie star, and instead became an expectant mother, testified today that Virginia Lopez, Cuban fashion designer, encouraged her to have relations with a man in the apartment the two women shared.

The man was Adolph La Rue, who has pleaded guilty to contributing to the delinquency of brown-haired Sylvia Hamalaine and has asked for probation. Miss Lopez, 32, is charged with witnessing and condoning the act, which occurred December 17.

Miss Lopez's attorneys were prevented from introducing testimony which the defendant gave to a grand jury about wild parties in an actor's home, attended by Miss Lopez and Sylvia.

Other Attacks

Miss Lopez, angry because certain motion picture people had failed to aid her as she said they promised to do, told investigators of attacks by other men on the Minnesota girl.

She described a Christmas night revel at an actor's home where she said she played Viennese waltzes on a piano while other guests reclined naked on bearskin rugs in the living room.

A charge of defense counsel that the District Attorney's office was attempting to "protect certain individuals" was denied by Deputy District Attorney Percy Hammon.

The defense lawyers, Donald MacKay, demanded Miss Hamalaine tell the names of all men with whom she had been involved.

She named La Rue and one Franz Moritis and then shouted:

"I'm not telling these other people's names because they don't belong in this case."

"I am not asking you the names, I am asking you how many," MacKay said.

Won't Tell That, Either

"I'm sorry," she snapped, "but I'm not even telling the number."

"Young lady," Judge Ambrose told her, "just answer the questions and the Court will rule on what you are telling."

Miss Hamalaine then said there were two other men besides La Rue and Moritis.

Miss Lopez' counsel sought Miss Hamalaine's testimony that she was attacked criminally at one of the "wild parties" at the actor's home, when a producer was present, but Judge Ambrose sustained State's objections.

Miss Hamalaine said she was in a Hollywood cafe one evening with Miss Lopez and was introduced to Movie Producer Marshal (Mickey) Nielan. She said she left with him and was gone for several hours. She did not say where they went.

La Rue, a draftee at Camp Roberts, Calif., testified he was intimate with the girl on the evening of December 17. He said the girl submitted willingly.

Nazi-French Deal On Syria Reported

Budapest, May 9 (U.P.).—The Hungarian government press said tonight that France is negotiating now to give Germany the right to send troops across Syria, and also into Dakar on the Atlantic coast of French West Africa, in order to "prevent any possible American landing there."

Magyar Orszag said that under the agreement now being negotiated Germany would be given the right of transit across all French colonies and mandated territories.

29th Division Plans 'At Home;' 2 Dances Slated for Weekend

By the Associated Press

Fort George G. Meade, Md., May 9.—A double-barrelled "at home" weekend is in store for the Twenty-ninth Division, with the 121st Engineers Regiment and the division's special troops cooperating as hosts to visitors tomorrow and Sunday.

The Engineers' unit expects to entertain many relatives and friends from the District of Columbia and near-by towns, the home section of most of the personnel.

The special troops, which includes the division's headquarters units, the Twenty-ninth Signal Company from Norfolk, the 104th Ordnance Company, a medical detachment and the Twenty-ninth Division's Military Police Company, have officers and men from Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania as well as Washington, and visitors from all of these sections are expected.

Activities will begin at 2 p. m., standard time, tomorrow with athletic events in the areas of the host organizations, whose complete personnel will remain in camp over the weekend.

Enlisted men of the 121st Engineers will dance tomorrow night in Fort Meade's new service club and a special troops enlisted men's dance will be held in their recreation hall.

On Sunday morning there will be Catholic Church services at 7:30 o'clock in the recreation hall, with Lieut. Harold F. Donovan, assistant division chaplain, officiating. At 10 o'clock the troops will attend the divisional Mother's Day outdoor religious service on the parade field west of Division Hill.

This service will be conducted by Lieut. Col. Frederick C. Reynolds, division chaplain, and members of his staff. Dr. Morris S. Lazaron, rabbi of Madison Avenue Temple, Baltimore, will give the sermon and Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, division commander, will speak.

At noon the guests at camp will be welcomed at the unit mess halls, to eat with soldiers they are visiting. A baseball game, a dress parade and review of the engineers and special troops, and a band concert will take place in the afternoon.

After one week's trial the division, which went on daylight saving time this week, will return to standard time next Monday

Clew False, Simon Probers' Hopes Dashed

The first promising clew to the murder of Dr. Heinrich Simon Monday night, collapsed last night when analysis of hair clinging to a baseball bat found near the suspected scene of attack showed it not to be that of the refugee music lover and former editor of the Frankfurter Zeitung.

The bat, was found in what was described as a ramshackle garage in an alley near Eighteenth and Church Streets Northwest. The last person known to have seen Dr. Simon outside his home was a cab driver, James Proudfoot. At that time Dr. Simon was at Seventeenth and Church Streets Northwest, and Proudfoot saw him around 2 a. m. Tuesday, he told police.

Earlier yesterday the first love of Dr. Simon—music, and his inclination to listen to it while dreaming over a glass of beer—were accepted by police as the only remaining leads to his fatal bludgeoning Monday night.

Detectives working on the case of the refugee German editor and writer and lecturer on music, indicated their belief that Simon's murderer may have been a casual acquaintance met during one of the many hours he spent in small restaurants where music is played.

Police learned of a neighborhood place near his home that he often visited. They did not disclose its name, saying only that Dr. Simon went there of nights to sit long over his beer.

Police Probe Cafes

He did not go there the night he was attacked, and police wondered if he might have strolled to a similar place. They are, consequently, giving attention to all such places here.

They learned that he had a peculiar liking for obscure musicians, individualistic performers, and consider he may have visited some place where such music was to be heard on the Monday that he was killed.

He had, police think, some destination in mind when he left his home at 1701 Swann Street, at the corner of New Hampshire Avenue, for a stroll. He had taken such strolls several times a week, and it was thought unlikely he walked aimlessly for several hours along the streets. It was considered probable that he would stop, instead, in one place or another to hear a little music and possibly to talk music with any agreeable person he could find.

One element discrediting the political assassination theory is the fact that Dr. Simon was not slain at the scene of the assault. Political assassins would have finished the job, it was thought.

Actually, Dr. Simon returned unaided—from wherever he had been—to his apartment, and managed later to say he had been struck over the head down a dark street.

Asking not to be involved in discussions of the case because he had nothing to contribute to its solution, Kurt Simon, New York publisher and brother of the slain refugee, said here yesterday that Dr. Simon had no political enemies, so far as he knew. He simply had come to this country, leaving his past behind him, and was prepared to start "from scratch."

Dr. Simon, he said, "had good feelings for everybody."

Yesterday the coroner was performing a general chemical analysis of the vital organs from the slain man's body. His report had not been completed.

German U-Boat Sinks Armed Cruiser

Metaxas Line Fell Under Rear Attack

By Joseph W. Griggs, Jr.
United Press Staff Writer

With German Armies in the Southeast, May 1 (by courier to Berlin, delayed).—Greece's Metaxas Line, the vaunted "Maginot Line of the Balkans," withstood all the frontal attacks of the German shock battalions.

Like the Maginot Line itself, it fell under a blow from the rear.

As a member of the first party of foreign correspondents to reach Greece with the German armies, I visited the strongest point of Greece's northern bastion in the narrow Rupel Pass north of Salonika.

There, for three days, Greek troops in fortresses blasted from the heart of the mountainsides, defying all the German efforts to break through.

Cunningly Concealed

The Metaxas Line at that key point consisted of a cluster of fortresses and smaller bunkers of steel and concrete dug into the sides of the Rhodope Mountains, which rise 1,500 to 2,000 feet above the Struma River.

Nearly 60 such forts are concealed cunningly in the mountain slopes on both sides of the Struma. From the outside they were all but invisible.

Beneath the mountains were the virtually impregnable forts which the Greeks had sunk at a cost of millions of dollars to safeguard their northern frontier. Some of them were hollowed out as deep as 90 feet in the rock.

Near the Struma River, at the entrance to what is known as Rupel Pass, we found half a dozen German soldiers stripped to the waist, digging graves for 61 of their comrades killed trying to crack the Metaxas line three weeks ago.

One of them, a young sergeant, told of the fight for the Metaxas line at Rupel Pass.

Frontal Attack Fails

"Our troops tried to thrust along the road alongside the Struma River, but were driven back by murderous cross-fire from machine guns as well as French 75's which the Greeks had concealed all over the mountainsides.

"For three days we waited there, unable to move along the Struma Valley, which it was impossible to take by a frontal attack. Meanwhile another of our battalions had struck across the hills behind the Rupel Pass fortifications, found a weak point in the Greek defenses, and succeeded in breaking through and reaching the main road to Salonika, in the rear of the Metaxas Line.

"They were provisioned by airplanes until reinforcements could be brought up to complete the encirclement of the Greek defenses."

Today when I visited the Metaxas Line forts they were for the most part completely undamaged, with guns in position and no signs of fighting.

Change Expected On Amendment To Priorities Bill

Sponsors of an amendment to the House-approved mandatory priorities bill, creating a director of priorities paid $12,000 a year, last night predicted Senate modification of the change.

Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Committee said he would go before the Senate Naval Affairs Committee Tuesday to urge that provisions be made for statutory covering of the entire priorities board rather than for the director alone. Vinson said that was the original intention of himself and Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, when they offered the amendment.

Under the provision which went through the House, the OPM's priorities section would be able to function only with the approval of the Army and Navy Board. One Administration move was reported under way to eliminate the provision entirely.

'U. S. Should Enter War Now,' O'Brien Tells Alumni Club

America, should "get in as quick as we can" to forestall an Axis victory, Robert Lincoln O'Brien, former chairman of the Tariff Commission, urged last night at the annual spring dinner of the Washington branch of the Vanderbilt University Alumni Club.

"If Great Britain loses this war one may picture a very distressing situation in the world . . . with a puppet dictatorship in London and . . . the difficulty of competition" with a possibly "Hitlerized trade" in South America, O'Brien asserted at the Cosmos Club.

Norman Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, discussed work of his organization here and in Europe.

Nazis Find Hull's Talk to Visiting Naval Men 'Cheeky'

Berlin, May 9 (AP).—United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull's address of welcome to 11 Latin-American naval officers visiting Washington, D. C., drew a sharp retort today from Deutsche Diplomatsche Korrespondenz, foreign office commentary.

Korrespondenz said the address indicated "no means are too base for North American war agitators . . . to advance their offensive un-American intentions in the interest of England."

(Hull told the naval officers yesterday that all American republics should cooperate in defense against "a common danger which has no geographical limits in its ultimate objectives.")

Hull's statement that danger was threatening American states from without is "more cheeky and grotesque since he and other North American war agitators have done nothing for months, but to run after war from a distance of thousands of sea miles," the commentary said.

It added that Hull was seeking "to secure satellites in the Western Hemisphere in order to be able to draw them into entanglements into which the United States singly and alone is taking all pains to fall.

Sentry Is Absolved In Prisoner's Death

Carlisle, Pa., May 9 (AP).—A sentry who shot and killed a military prisoner attempting to escape was "absolved of any dereliction of duty" by an Army board of inquiry today, Col. A. L. First Hangar To Be Ready Soon At Airport Here

Hangar No. 1 at Washington National Airport will be ready for occupancy in a few days, John Groves, manager, said yesterday.

This hangar, first of six to be constructed, has been leased by Eastern Air Lines, but some space will be sublet to other lines pending completion of the other hangars.

Pennsylvania-Central has already moved its traffic office into the new terminal building and installation of radio, weather, office and other types of equipment is proceeding rapidly to permit an early June opening of the airport, said Groves.

Kidnapers Take $6,954 Pay Roll

New York, May 9 (INS).—In a daring daylight robbery in front of the Empire State Building, the world's tallest building, two men today kidnaped Stanley Korzynski, a private detective carrying a $6,954 pay roll, drove him to Long Island City, threw him into the street and made away with the loot.

Mass for Nazi Victims To Be Sung Today

A memorial requiem mass for war victims in the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg will be offered today at 10 a. m. at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, Catholic University, by the Right Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, university rector and Bishop of Bilta.

The mass, marking the first anniversary of the Nazi invasion of Luxembourg and the Low Counties, will be attended by Baron W. F. van Boetzelaer van Oosterhout, Minister-Counselor of the Netherlands Legation, and representatives of other Allied diplomatic missions.

Dutch Determined, Baron Declares

The Netherlands' determination to rise again is more fervent than ever, Baron C. G. W. H. van Boetzelaer van Oosterhout, minister-counselor of the Netherlands Legation, declared yesterday in a statement marking the first anniversary of the Nazi invasion of his country.

"The cry of our countrymen that 'The Netherlands shall rise again' is more insistent today than it was yesterday," he declared. Moral resistance to the German is on the increase in Holland, he said, and the Netherlands' merchant marine of more than 2,500,000 tons is "dedicated to the last ship if necessary to carry on."

Rome University Reopens With 18 Still Under Arrest

Copyright by New York Times

Rome, May 9.—The University of Rome reopened its gates today and 18 students remained under arrest and ten others in the hospital suffering from wounds received at the hands of the police following Tuesday's rioting, which was described as the worst in the history of the university.

The arrested students have been banned from all Italian universities.

The rioting, according to the university authorities, started because an unspecified number of students wanted to obtain their degree without taking the examinations. Inasmuch as the time for yearly exams had been advanced from June 15 to May 15, they said they had no time to prepare for their degrees.

Ecuador's President To Mediate Dispute

Quito, Ecuador, May 9 (AP).—President Arroyo Del Rio announced today he had accepted an offer from Argentina, Brazil and the United States to mediate a 100-year-old border dispute between Ecuador and Peru.

Each country claims a rich tract of land near the headwaters of the Amazon River. It is virtually unexplored forest land reputedly rich in rubber and possibly oil.

U. S. Attaches Dye Trust's Bank Balance

The United States yesterday attached the bank balances here of the I. G. Farbenindustrie, described by Attorney General Jackson as "probably the most powerful single factor in German influence on American industry," because the firm failed to appear in answer to an indictment under the Sherman antitrust law.

The Justice Department carefully timed its seizure for the very day that the German dye trust received payments of $250,000 under patents licensing agreements it has with a number of American firms.

The attachment was served swiftly and without warning, Jackson said at a press conference, because he had reason to believe that the money might otherwise be transferred or disbursed beyond the reach of American law. He said the German firm might pay the money to South American agents or buy goods elsewhere in the world.

Expected to Appear Now

Jackson said that Farbenindustrie had refused to appear in court on the ground that it was not doing business in the United States and was not subject to American laws as a corporation.

With a smile, the Attorney General said that, in view of the attachment of funds, "they will doubtless appear."

I. G. Farbenindustrie was among six corporations indicted January 30 by a Federal grand jury in New York on charges of violating the antitrust laws through control of the magnesium industry. The other defendants included the Aluminum Co. of America, the Dow Chemical Co., the American Magnesium Corporation, the Magnesium Development Co. and the General Aniline & Film Co.

A good many American firms have accepted licenses from I. G. Ferbenindustrie in order to take advantage of the processes on which the German company holds patents. This practice began before the start of the present war. The licenses were said yesterday to involve restrictions on production as well as limits on marketing areas.

German Reprisals Feared

Some trade circles in New York were reported to be fearful lest the Justice Department's action result in German seizure of funds payable by German firms to American patent holders.

These circles believed that approximately as much was paid annually to Americans by German firms as was transferred from America to Germany under agreements for use of chemical formulae, processes, mechanical developments and copyrights.

Building Tie-up Looms Monday As Parley Fails

A tie-up of virtually all construction work here loomed last night when a meeting of management and labor representatives of the Smoot Sand & Gravel Corporation and Federal Conciliator Frank Sheehan failed to make any progress toward agreement on a new contract.

A two-week postponement of a walkout voted by the 250 employes, members of the A. F. of L. Sand and Gravel Workers Union, expires Monday.

Walkout of the workers at the Smoot plant, only local source of concrete ingredients here, would force a halt to practically all local building, including defense projects. Between 5,000 and 10,000 construction workers may become idle.

D. C. Grand Jury Calls Witnesses On Liquor Prices

Witnesses yesterday began testifying before a District grand jury in an investigation of the local liquor industry prompted by District Attorney Edward M. Curran.

Only a few persons were heard late in the afternoon and their statements were closely guarded by the usual secrecy attached to such hearings. Close to 300 witnesses are scheduled to testify during the next two weeks, it was said.

Curran ordered investigators to delve into the whisky business here in an effort to uncover suspected violations of the Sherman Antitrust Act several weeks ago following complaints from some small retailers that they had been intimidated by a group bent on controlling prices.

Soldier Killed, Another Hurt In Auto Crash

Private Charles J. Weber, 30, of Company F, 121st Engineers, was injured fatally and a companion hurt seriously yesterday when they were swept from the running board of an automobile near the entrance to the reservation at Fort George G. Meade, Md.

Weber lived at 1126 Montello Avenue Northeast before induction into Federal service with the District National Guard last February. His companion, Private George Cox, 25, of Oxon Hill, Md., was reported in serious condition last night at Walter Reed Hospital where he was transferred from the post hospital.

According to Maryland State Trooper H. I. Kavanagh, both men had accepted a ride to the post in an automobile operated by John N. DeRoy, of the 2300 block of S Street Northwest, and were standing on a running board because the machine was crowded. Near the entrance to the post on the Jesup Road, Kavanagh said, their automobile was sideswiped by another operated by Edward L. Watkins, of Jesup. Weber received fractures of both legs and internal injuries, and both men were taken to the hospital by DeRoy.

DeRoy, a chauffeur-butler for Robert O. Lord, of McLean, Va., owner of the automobile, and Watkins were released. Kavanagh said, however, he intended questioning DeRoy further before closing the case.

Weber is survived by his father, Philip H. Weber; two sisters, Mrs. Rose Harding and Mrs. Mary Madigan; a brother, Fred Weber, all of Washington, and a brother, Philip H. Weber, jr., of Philadelphia.

U. S. Is Given Information By Princess

Hungarian-born Princess Stephanie Hohenlohe, former friend and suspected agent of Adolf Hitler, is still in custody and has given the Government "some very interesting information" within the last two weeks, Attorney General Jackson said yesterday.

The glamorous international figure, who was a guest of Capt. Fritz Weidemann, German Consul General in San Francisco, recently was ordered deported after overstaying her visitor's leave, but was then detained by immigration authorities in San Francisco.

Jackson, at a press conference, refused to divulge what information had been obtained from the princess.

Asked whether in view of her disclosures the Government might let her stay in the United States, Jackson smiled and replied, "We feel better natured about her."

On December 17 the Justice Department ordered her to leave the country within a week.

She was staying with Weidemann at the time when she learned that the Justice Department had rejected her application for an extension of her visitor's permit. The Nazi captain, a close friend of Hitler, is regarded in many quarters as Hitler's chief agent in the United States.

Jackson disclosed at the same time that the Immigration Service has in custody 2,024 German and Italian seamen, including 407 taken from sabotaged Axis ships and 1,617 from crews of vessels immobilized here at the outbreak of the European war.

These sailors are being housed in what Jackson referred to as "detention camps." He said they enjoyed conditions comparable to those provided for Army trainees.

City Officials Mum On Reported Strife In Health Bureau

City and health department officials yesterday declined comment on the resignation of Miss Edith McCoy, social work supervisor in the office of Health Officer George Ruhland, pending "further inquiry" into reports of an inter-office controversy.

Miss McCoy, in charge of social work in the bureau of venereal diseases, reportedly relinquished her post because of a conflict in duties. It was explained that friction developed between social welfare workers under Miss McCoy and nurses of the Public Health Service.

The resignation of Miss McCoy becomes effective June 1. She refused yesterday to elaborate on her position.

1,200-Mile Oil Lines To Atlantic Mapped

Plans to lay two 1,200-mile oil pipelines to the Atlantic Seaboard from Gulf Coast oil fields, as a result of Government requisitioning of oil tankers for England, were revealed here yesterday at a meeting of the American Road Builders Association.

Harry K. O'Gara, representative of the Shell Oil Co., from New York, said that the lines would be constructed in a joint venture by several American oil companies. The lines would reduce the problem of transporting oil by ocean, he said.

Construction of the lines, it was implied, would be to bring a source of oil to a point closer England in case Britain's sources of oil are stopped. O'Gara declined to say where the terminal would be, but said the lines' origin would be Baton Rouge, La.

White House Pickets Urge U. S. Keep Peace

Pickets for the American Peace Mobilization paraded in front of the White House yesterday urging that the United States keep out of war.

They carried American flags and placards with legends criticizing the foreign policy of President Roosevelt. Morris Watson, vice president of the American Newspaper Guild, acting in a personal capacity and not representing the guild, was one of about a dozen persons in the picket line.

Ehrlich Charges Fihelly Assaulted Him; Asks Damages

Myron G. Ehrlich, 35-year-old counsel for Emmitt Warring, jailed numbers gang boss, filed a $51,000 damage suit yesterday against John W. Fihelly, veteran assistant district attorney.

Judiciary Square reports have it that Ehrlich entered Fihelly's office last Tuesday and hastily emerged a few minutes later. Describing the incident in his complaint to the District Court, Ehrlich said that Fihelly "wrongfully, wantonly, wilfully and maliciously, and with force and arms, and hands and fists, struck, beat and assaulted the plaintiff."

Ehrlich's complaint asked $50,000 exemplary damages and $1,000 actual damages for injuries to his arm and shoulder he claimed he suffered from the Tuesday incident.

Fihelly said the suit would be answered "in the proper manner and at the proper time."

Bill Affects D. C. Per Diem Workers

An estimated 3,500 per diem employes of the District government would be entitled to take legal holidays without loss of pay or deduction from annual leave under a bill favorably reported by the House Civil Service Committee yesterday.

The bill, sponsored by Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, ranking majority member of the committee, would give the workers as many holidays—with pay—as those now enjoyed by Federal and District civil service employes.

Crowded Capital

Agitation for the transfer of various governmental agencies to other cities is an inevitable result of the present overcrowding of Washington. The simple fact is that people are flocking to the Capital City faster than accommodations can be provided for them. The consequent overcrowding may necessitate the shifting of various bureaus to cities where the demand for office space and residential quarters is less acute. That prospect gives particular point to plans for further systematic decentralization of the Federal Government.

Clearly a large degree of decentralization is desirable for its own sake, aside from any problem of congestion in the District. Government is usually most intelligently operated when it is close to the people it serves. By all means those agencies dealing directly with the people ought to have many branches strategically located in all sections of the country. If the existing shortage of space in the Capital brings about further decentralization of this sort, accordingly, it will be a net gain even in normal times.

Some proposals for wider distribution of Federal agencies have been carried to foolish extremes. It has been suggested, for example, that the Department of Agriculture be moved to Chicago. Probably many offices in that department could properly be shifted to the farm belt. But the headquarters must remain here for proper coordination of agricultural policy with other national policies. It is an effective decentralization of field activities that is needed, not the establishment of a second capital.

As a first step toward this decentralization, regional headquarters for Government agencies should be established. At present Federal offices are scattered indiscriminately in many different cities. Branch offices have been set up at the dictation of politics or mere whim. The result is lack of coordination of Government activities in the field and waste of funds for rental of quarters in many separate buildings. To repeat, we ought to have decentralization, but it should lead to the development of regional headquarters in various parts of the country, and not a mere hit-or-miss scattering of governmental agencies.

Money Mystery

The mystery of the great rise in our "money in circulation" is cleared up in the current issue of the Federal Reserve Bulletin. It appears that big-denomination bills are being hoarded by nationals of the Axis powers who "wish to conceal their holdings of funds or their transactions." The rise had been pronounced enough to call for an explanation. The total now exceeds $9,000,000,000, more than $4,000,000,000 above the peak point of 1929 and about $1,500,000,000 above the level of a year ago. Growing business activity, of course, calls for the use of more cash. No doubt, too, cash is being used to an increasing extent in place of checking accounts as a consequence of higher bank-service charges. But both reasons fail to explain the great difference between the circulation figures of today and those of the last predepression year. Moreover, now that bank deposits are insured, there is no reason to hoard cash, as there formerly was, through fear of bank failures.

Thus the Federal Reserve Bulletin's explanation is entirely feasible. Over $2,500,000,000 of bills of the denominations of $50 and over are now technically "in circulation." Foreigners who are trying to escape confiscation of their property by their own governments or the "freezing" of their accounts by the United States Government are believed to be in possession of a large proportion of the currency issued in these large denominations. Such an inference receives support—although that is hardly needed—from the disclosure that the Italian National Institute of Exchange obtained $5,000,000 of large-denomination bills from the Federal Reserve Bank last summer within a two-month period. It would be interesting to know what use will be made of this hoarded money and how far it will travel before it eventually returns. If that could be known, however, the Government probably would have acted before now to impound funds not only of conquered nations but also of the aggressor states responsible for our taking protective action to safeguard the assets of the conquered.

Strategy Board

From several quarters of late a suggestion for the integration of our Nation's strategy has been advanced which has been pressed continuously in these columns since the last election. It is contended that there should be set up a strategy board comprising the policy-making heads of departments and our chief staff officers. If a wise Commander in Chief never has more than half a dozen men reporting to him, then President Roosevelt should so restrict himself. By receiving one composite opinion, instead of many individual opinions, he would save himself a good deal of unnecessary labor. Through the medium of a central strategy board the nature of the advice he receives would likewise be concentrated. As yet there is no such thing as priorities for our national policy. The defeat of Hitlerism, logically, has the prior claim on our national energies, but other policies, such as the two-ocean Navy, which was embarked upon against the contingency of a Hitler victory, seem to have equal consideration. Yet it is obvious that the pursuit of "defeat" policies must inevitably get in the way of the pursuit of a victory policy. If to a strategy board were remitted the task of planning and recommending moves directed toward the realization of our prior aim, therefore, an impetus would be given to the swift and effective execution of it.

The most trenchant advocate to come forward recently for a priority of objectives and a central agency to handle them is Admiral H. E. Yarnell. The admiral, who is now on the retired list, had a brilliant record both as diplomat and navalist on the China coast. According to Arthur Krock in the New York Times, he has written out a set of defense priorities, and the carrying on of an offensive war to effectuate our national policy heads the list. For the purpose of attaining our primary end, the admiral suggests the appointment of "a board or committee between the President and the several departments which can study the great problems of policy and defense as a whole, clear of the ambitions and restricted plans of the War and Navy Departments, and which can advise the Commander in Chief accordingly." Such a board, such a priority of objectives, should be established without any further delay.

Marche Militaire

It is gratifying to hear that Hank Greenberg has begun his career in arms in much the same earnest, ambitious and indefatigable spirit with which he began his career in the big leagues. When he was presented to the lieutenant colonel commanding the reception station at Fort Custer, Mich., that officer put out his hand. Before accepting it, Mr. Greenberg took care to salute most respectfully. Whether etiquette actually demanded a salute at that point, we are unable to say, but Mr. Greenberg was always one to do considerably more than the minimum expected of him. He was also a great one for practice, and doubtless he had been giving salutes to Mr. Del Baker for at least a week before his induction. In his early days at Detroit he was at the ball park almost before the sparrows themselves in the hope that somebody would turn up who could be persuaded to hit a few fungoes to him or toss a few for him to knock over the left-field wall. So we dare say Mr. Greenberg will now spend some of his off-duty hours hunting up sergeants who can be coaxed into giving him a few extra doses of infantry drill.

Thus the list of athletic, social and artistic celebrities now in the military service grows apace and is already quite impressive. This brings up the story relayed to us recently by our Hugh Miller, who had it from his favorite taxicab driver. This driver, it appears, had been missing for some weeks from his habitual stand near The Post Building, so that when Mr. Miller encountered him accidentally the other day in a distant part of town he demanded an explanation. The driver said he had discovered that hauling soldiers back to Fort Belvoir was a good deal more profitable than hauling reporters to three-alarm fires and to the scenes of early morning murders.

Of course, cabs and other private vehicles are not permitted to enter the Fort Belvoir Reservation. So the boys returning from leave must alight at the gates and proceed to their barracks afoot. The other night, after thus discharging a fare, the taximan was about to drive back to Washington when he observed a magnificent limousine parked a brief distance away and apparently empty. Mr. Miller's friend said this one was just about the swellest job in an automobile he had ever put eyes on; it must have cost five grand if it cost a nickel. In short, his admiration and curiosity were aroused to such a degree that he parked his cab and went over to investigate. Peering unobserved from the shadows into the limousine, the taximan made out two figures inside it. One was that of a handsomely liveried chauffeur who was pointing a small pocket flashlight toward the rear seat, where a young man was in process of changing from top hat, tails and boiled shirt into the baggy uniform of a buck private

Free China

The distance which Japan has got to go before she can be said to have conquered China is brought out in an independent news letter published in Hongkong called "China Air Mail." It appears that Japan must absorb far more territory than the area usually designated as Free China, or the nine completely intact provinces in the west, of which Chungking is the capital. In those provinces there are 108,000,000 Chinese. But, in addition, there are other big sections of the population which in various degrees are just as independent as Free China. First, about 140,000,000 Chinese are "living in other completely unoccupied territories which are either directly adjoining the bloc of the nine free provinces or are at least sufficiently self-sufficient in themselves." Secondly, about 137,000,000 Chinese are "living in nominally occupied territories which are somewhat hampered in their normal contacts with the main body of Free China by intervening positions of Japanese occupation but by no means effectively separated from it." The rest number about 40,000,000, or 9.4 per cent of the total population.

This is the extent of China which may be said to be living under moderately effective Japanese or puppet control. The figures show how little the Nipponese have achieved after nearly four years of a war that their warlords said would be over in six weeks. The effort has already cost them a million casualties and necessitated an army of occupation which is estimated to number another million. There is a lesson for defeatists, incidentally, in this story of the Chinese war. Back in 1937 there were many foreigners with an intimate acquaintance with China who, looking at the unorganized, unarmed, and nonbelligerent population, and making the contrast with the military machine of Japan, declared that China couldn't do it.

ADA's Contribution

The shortage of housing in Washington for low-income families seems bad enough when only the bare facts are told. Many families are known to be living in unsanitary shacks not fit for human habitation, gross overcrowding is common, and the House subcommittee conducting hearings on the rent-control bill is properly giving attention to this deplorable shortage of decent living quarters for the poor. At the same time, conditions have been grossly exaggerated, as, for instance, in the fantastic report that 59 persons are living in a five-room house on Virginia Avenue. This report the House subcommittee has just exploded.

Apparently this and similar unfounded statements were presented to the subcommittee to discredit the Alley Dwelling Authority. Far from meeting with success, however, they have served to emphasize the very substantial contribution which the ADA is making to better housing in the District. John Ihlder, executive officer of the ADA, frankly states that his organization has demolished 933 hovels which should have been wiped out long ago. In lieu of those slums, it has provided 915 dwelling units now occupied or in the course of occupation. Before the end of the present year the number of ADA homes available to low-income families is expected to reach a total of 3,171. Instead of increasing hardships for low-income families, the ADA is thus lightening their burden notably.

Of course, some painful adjustments have to be made when slum sites are cleared. The original task to which the ADA was assigned was the reclamation of Washington's inhabited alleys. Some of the slum sites it took over were not suitable for continued residential use. Others had to be vacated while new houses were being constructed. In each instance the ADA has offered to help the displaced tenants to find satisfactory shelter elsewhere. In recent years, moreover, the ADA has concentrated its efforts on the construction of low-rental dwellings on vacant land, so that the demolition of slums may be postponed until the housing shortage has been overcome. The net result will be greatly to relieve the distress of poor families for whom no other suitable housing has been provided. Short-sighted criticism of the ADA program is particularly out of place at a time when it is just beginning to bear fruit on a large scale.

BEAUTY GOES WITH SOFTENED TREAD

Beauty goes with softened tread;
They hear her not, the noisy dead.
She passes like a wind, a flame,
And none has called her by her name.
They shout, they cry, they run, they leap,
Unresting in a restless sleep,
And many a phantom shape pursue
For beauty. A few, only a few
Will listen, waking with a start
To feel her footsteps through the heart.

Why's

Why are we spending so much money for farm relief and other kinds of relief which ought to be unnecessary while we are so greatly in need of money for defense? Why does the Government not stop the strikes which are so effectively binding our defense effort? Why do we not take into custody the fifth columnists, bundists, and other persons who are causing such confusion and working so hard to disrupt our Government?

Why don't we put our factories up to full capacity production in our defense preparation? In many ways we are now playing at the job. Why don't we quit many of our luxuries and indulgences so that we may be better fitted to stand the strain of war? Why don't we send 10,000 planes over the head of Adolf Hitler till he is taken? The planes can be built and Hitler can be taken.

Financing Defense

Would it not seem more reasonable and less liable to cause strikes, discontent and sabotage if the Government should appropriate what is logically their own—the rental value of land—to finance the defense program than to tax everything of human need, comfort and enjoyment? That would leave to the producer the full value of his products and to the landowner the full value of his improvements, encourage productive industry, and cause a more patriotic spirit.

The Conscientious Objector's Side

I read with interest an article on conscientious objectors recently published in The Post. While finding myself in substantial agreement with most of what my colleague, Dr. Ryan, has written, I am obliged to differ with him on two essential points.

In the first place, I must emphatically disagree with his statement "that when the state makes decisions upon war . . . its decisions must be put above the private citizen's opinions and preferences. Obedience is here not a mere matter of choice but of duty." To my way of thinking, it was the duty of Catholics in the German army to disobey the Reich's unholy "decision upon war" with Poland. To deny them the right to do so would be tantamount to abolishing the Scriptural precept that "it behooves us to obey God rather than men."

How often have we been told that the people in Germany, in Italy, in Japan are opposed to the war, but forced by their government to accept it? Well, then, if the people who have a conscience are not entitled to exercise it and if governments which have no conscience are entitled "to make the decisions," how is morality and justice to prevail in international relations?

In the second place, I cannot accept the definition given of a conscientious objector, in so far as it represents him as necessarily committed to the "condemnation of all war as something intrinsically and essentially evil." A man may conscientiously object to the total warfare of modern times—war indiscriminate in its methods and objects of attack—without going to the extreme of condemning all war, not excepting a bona fide war of defense.

Unquestionably, however, the name conscientious objector admits of two different interpretations:

1.—It may mean a person opposed to war in general under the mistaken notion that war is never justified; in this sense it is quite true to say that no Catholic may be a conscientious objector.

2.—On the other hand, it may also mean a person who, while not condemning wars in general, objects to participating in one himself.

In the latter sense, it is perfectly consistent for a Catholic to be a conscientious objector. The church has canonized as martyrs, in her official Martyrology, men who like St. Marcellinus were put to death for "being unwilling to do military service." In medieval times, St. Francis of Assisi claimed exemption from military service for his Third Order, a devout society of laymen living in the world. This exemption received the official sanction of the Catholic Church.

And finally, only three years ago, right here in America, Archbishop McNicholas of Cincinnati spoke with approval of a "Catholic League of conscientious noncombatants."

The Archbishop's phrase "conscientious noncombatant" is indeed a less ambiguous one than conscientious objector, which may imply outright condemnation of war as such. However, it is the latter expression that Congress has seen fit to put in the Selective Service Act, and this leaves us no choice in the matter of phraseology.

For my own part, I can quite readily conceive of Catholics who, responsive to Christ's counsel against bloodshed, would be willing to risk their lives in noncombatant duties on the battlefield (e. g. as stretcher bearers)—a young Catholic conscientious objector has written to me making this proposal—though unwilling to take human life in the capacity of a soldier. I can also conceive of Catholics being conscientiously opposed to participation in modern war—total war—which Dr. Ryan himself declares to be immoral.

It does not do to remind such men of their right or duty to fight in a purely defensive war; for today even the blindest can see that our politicians and financiers are using national defense as a springboard to precipitate the Nation, via another A. E. F., into Europe's total war, in which civilians are being bombed, and innocent babes in arms are being starved to death by means of marine blockades. Well has Cardinal O'Connell styled it "an infamous struggle" in which no one who values his conscience will wish to take part.

In conclusion, let me say a word in defense of the Quakers. Those I have known do not condemn others for fighting, but speak only for their own conscience; nor do they object out of cowardice. On the contrary, they are willing to undertake hard and dangerous duties for their country, provided they be of a noncombatant nature.

In fact, the conscientious objectors I have known are as brave as soldiers, ready to face insult, persecution and martyrdom itself for the sake of a principle. Dr. Ryan need have no fear "of the conduct of a conscientious objector being followed on a large scale"; the average man is not made of such heroic stuff.

My hat, in short, is off to conscientious objectors. In a ruthless age that tramples on human personality by wholesale conscription for total war, they alone are upholding the rights of human conscience—the right of an individual to call his soul his own. All honor to them for that!

Civil Service Press

Civil Service is increasing its employes in gigantic strides, with consequent intake problems of great magnitude. The major problem is one of simplifying while carrying the heavier responsibility. This isn't easy to do, either for an individual or for the Government, nor is it being done under the present civil service laws. Nor can it be done with the present force, which, even before the defense program, was inadequate to handle the increasing number. The influx is reflected on the streets of the city, and it is becoming more or less a punishment to try to wend one's way to and fro, where once was freedom and space in which to live and move.

The confusion which exists at Civil Service headquarters is a subject for satire on the part of the public. In fact, humor is the only way the situation can be faced with calmness. Are we to accept confusion and disorder as a concomitant of democratic ways of functioning? Standards of Government are being lowered until one no longer feels pride in his Government connection. Our quota system originally stood for order in point of employment, the applicant waiting his turn on the register without question. Are not these problems being amplified, even the element of fairness taken out, when the "open door" policy has reached such proportions of expansion as to blanket in organizations again and again, employes of which organizations have not qualified under examination, and some of whom undoubtedly could not? What of the one who has patiently yielded for regular rules to operate under the merit system mandates? We are wont to set aside regular rules in times of "emergency" but the word and the condition have come to be almost a permanent thing in our midst, and the excuse of "emergency," under which order is abolished, seems no longer an excuse for anything but manipulation.

There is no problem without solution, but the times demand intelligence in mastering the increasing intensity of difficulties which civilization, as we interpret it, has brought. It is to be hoped that the degree of intelligence continues to rise, so that future development may demonstrate the need for future order and simplicity.

Hitch-Hiking Soldiers

Any weekend on the main roads in and out of Washington, motorists see hundreds of soldiers trying to get home to see their folks by the hitch-hike method. Most of them are unable to do much train travel on their $21 a month pay.

On the same roads, particularly between Baltimore and Elkton, you will see on Saturdays thousands of munition and airplane workers traveling from their places of employment in fine automobiles, and, strange to say, few of them have time to stop and give their buddy in uniform a lift to the next town.

Maybe the New Deal, so anxious to promote patriotism in this country and so solicitous about the welfare of the workers, can explain why such a system exists and why it is tolerated. Why should a soldier in uniform have to patrol roads weekends in order to get home to his parents? Why should such soldiers be forced to ask charity from motorists when they are giving 24 hours a day to the country, where in many cases they could, at private industry, make $21 in a single day?

Cousin Hezekiah

Sometimes in the dither of nowadays I long for the easy, effortless past of 25 to 35 years ago, and the secluded mountain community where I spent my childhood. That is to say I yearn for the soothing calm of Cousin Hezekiah's influence.

In his ample, kindly way Cousin Hezekiah was a central figure in our community—roughly analogous, in modern urban terms, to a combined chamber of commerce, social agency, and civic league. Besides all that he was a gentle and generous neighbor. Actually, so far as I know, he wasn't anybody's cousin, and sentimentally he wasn't anything more remote than a brother or a father. But somewhere back in the dim reaches of our preacquaintance someone had called him "Cousin," others had taken it up, and when we came along we found him established and doing mighty well as "Cousin Hezekiah."

In a friendly cove of the mountains he had a low-slung, completely spontaneous house with the most astonishing arrangement of rooms, as though it had been built a little at a time, on the widely varying impulses of odd moments. The only feature that reached a logical conclusion was the porch extending the whole length of the building. An utterly delightful jumble of giant boxwood, apple trees, grapevines, and beehives surrounded the place and lent it a mingled fragrance of haunting and indescribable sweetness. Here Cousin Hezekiah lived with dear Cousin Tabitha, his wife, and together they exercised their social influences, not that they would have had the slightest notion of the meaning of such an abstract term.

Cousin Hezekiah, as local preacher, shepherded the little flock of worshipers every Sunday in the month, except one, the "big meetin' day," which belonged to the circuit rider. He also performed marriage ceremonies at a flat rate of a dollar a couple. How Cousin Tabitha used to watch the slow, uncertain progress of mountain courtships! With the engaging frankness of a child, she would review meager oddments of circumstantial evidence, now and then chuckling gleefully, "May mean another dollar in Hezzie's pocket."

Over the hill perhaps a mile, or in the local term a "whoop and a holler", from his house, Cousin Hezekiah had a mill by the roadside where he ground grain for the community's corn pone, exacting for his services a little "toll" from each customer. The mill was by all odds the strangest and most enchanting structure I have ever seen or imagined. The fascination was heightened by the fact that in the interest of preserving us alive and whole, our parents firmly forbade us ever to go inside. Huge moss-covered old timbers sprawled across the creek to form the skelton of the shed-like building. A very perfunctory roof perched rakishly over the approximate center. The floor was a sketchy affair, and only Cousin Hezekiah knew where to step to avoid a surprise landing in the creek. A sagging "race" of rotting wood led from the pond upstream to the great decrepit old wheel, with "buckets" missing here and there. Like "the mill of the gods," it ground slowly.

A customer, say Tad Kane, would trudge over the mountain paths, fields, and roads for three or four miles, bringing his "turn" of corn on his shoulder. Starting at sun-up and with time out to talk a "spell" with anyone he happened to meet, and a few detours to gather a pocketful of chestnuts or some apples, he would arrive at the mill by about 8 or 9 o'clock—not that the time mattered. He would ease his sack of corn to the ground, and pull the old mildewed bell rope. All the cove dwellers for miles around would "reckon Cousin Hezekiah has a customer."

Tad would squat by the roadside and wait patiently for an hour or so, chatting amiably if there happened to be any "passin'." Eventually Cousin Hezekiah would waddle out of the woods, wheezing a little as he came down the path. Tad would rise slowly, and they would shake hands and exchange the conventional "How you all gettin' on?" Then they'd talk about the weather, and the orchards, and the hoeing. Finally Cousin Hezekiah would "reckon" he'd better dam up the "race" so there'd be enough water for the grinding. During the hour or so while the trickle of water in the leaky old "race" slowly gathered enough volume to turn the ancient lumbering wheel, the two men would dispose of the political and religious problems of the day.

By the time the corn was ground it would be noon, and Cousin Hezekiah wouldn't think of letting Tad trek back over the mountain without dinner. "Tabitha's expectin' you," he'd say. Sure enough Cousin Tabitha would have her skillets and kettles steaming away on the huge fireplace. Without benefit of recipe or knowledge of vitamins, she cooked solely by instinct and inspiration. The product was a culinary achievement without equal.

It was a custom from time immemorial for Cousins Hezekiah and Tabitha to invite as many families as they could accommodate to Christmas dinner. For the guests this meant setting out around 8 o'clock in the morning on a walk over frozen dirt roads, fields, and bypaths, a distance of from 1 to 4 miles, according to the particular "neighbors" being favored at the particular time. In the case of our family—father, mother, and six youngsters—the distance was about 3 miles.

Cousin Tabitha would open the "parlor" for the occasion, and everybody would talk at once, creating a joyous hubbub. After several hours, the tantalizing kitchen aromas would gather the sudden force of gustatory ecstasy and we would sense the dramatic approach of the day's climax. There would be a little rustle of anticipation, a lull in the conversation, eager expectancy. Once in the lull of such a moment Mrs. Eppleton shrilled with frank practicality to her small daughter, "Come here, Arabella and let me unfasten your belt; dinner's almost ready."

In these swift times I look back wistfully to the long ago, and observe very hastily that in my young days we never used to be in such a frenzy.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Toward Plainer Living

ALTHOUGH the Treasury program for taxes, borrowing, and retrenchments is meant to move in the right direction, that is about all that can be said for it. Very probably, as Mr. Leon Henderson has pointed out, the Treasury is underestimating the defense expenditures for the next year and, therefore, the amount of surplus income which must be mopped up somehow by taxes and savings. Almost certainly the Treasury is too inflexible and too conventional in confining its recommendations to the usual taxes and the usual bond issues when we know from European experience that there are many additional devices that can be used effectively.

LIPPMANN

But immediately the most serious defect of the Treasury presentation and program is that the fundamental principles of war finance—though they are somewhat vaguely mentioned in Secretary Morgenthau's statement—are not sufficiently well understood by the Treasury to have guided the Treasury's recommendations. Many of the specific proposals, as both Mr. Henderson and Mr. Eccles have pointed out, reveal a very imperfect grasp of what has to be done and how to do it. Yet without clarity about the principles we shall get a confused debate in Congress, a conflict of pressure groups, and an arbitrary and muddled tax bill.

THE TREASURY is proposing to raise one-third of the increased revenue—more than 12 hundred million dollars—by excise taxes, that is by taxes on an assorted list of things including cigarettes, wines and liquors, soft drinks, gasoline, automobiles, tires, amusements, ice boxes, bowling alleys and billiard tables. This list of things to be taxed and the schedule of rates at which these things are to be taxed were not devised by men who were thinking primarily, or even thinking at all, about how to promote the defense program and how to prevent inflation. The list and the rates were drawn up by Treasury officials who were looking around for the quickest way to raise large sums of money.

Yet the controlling consideration in war finance is not how to raise "revenues" but how to reduce private expenditure, and how to postpone it, and how to divert it from things that interfere with defense into expenditures which in wartime are harmless or even desirable.

THUS, for example, the Treasury proposes to get nearly one-quarter of its new excise revenue out of taxes on tobacco and soft drinks. As affecting the national defense, what good are taxes of this sort? Unless it can be shown that tobacco and sugar are needed for war production, or that tobacco and soft drink factories could be converted to war production, there is no point whatever in penalizing the consumption of tobacco and soft drinks. The same rule applies even more obviously to taxes on checks, on amusements, on candy, on bowling alleys, billiard or pool tables, playing cards, musical instruments, and safe-deposit boxes. What we have to have are taxes that impose real and necessary sacrifices of many conveniences that interfere with the defense program. But there is no reason for imposing on the people unnecessary nuisance taxes which merely interfere with their quite legitimate pleasures.

Yet while bearing down heavily upon the harmless luxuries, the Treasury program is very timid indeed, as Mr. Henderson pointed out, when it comes to things which really do matter: to the durable consumer goods such as automobiles, tires, mechanical refrigerators, and other articles which require essential raw materials, machine tools, managerial skill, technicians and skilled labor. There the taxes proposed are light, and often nonexistent, when they should be heavy with the deliberate purpose of reducing consumption and, therefore, of diverting materials, labor, and facilities to defense.

THE GREAT DEFECT of the Treasury program is that it does not clarify the principle which ought to guide the Administration and Congress. Yet at this stage of affairs to make clear the principle is more important than to enact some kind of a bill in a hurry. For in this matter effectiveness depends on clarity and not on speed: once the policy is clear and generally understood the taxes can be levied quickly enough.

Fortunately Mr. Henderson and Mr. Eccles are themselves quite clear and Mr. Morgenthau, though he is not very clear, is well-disposed. The Treasury's program ought, therefore, to be withdrawn and revised so that Congress and the country may be offered a coherent statement of policy and a program consistent with that policy. Such a policy and such a program can probably not be formulated in the Treasury alone, in large degree because the Treasury is manned by officials who are trained to think about revenue and find it hard to think about and industrial mobilization. But in collaboration with Mr. Henderson and Mr. Eccles an intelligible program could surely be worked out.

IN PRESENTING such a program we shall avoid many unnecessary arguments if the objective is made clear to the country. The people will understand that when the armed forces need goods made of steel and aluminum, with machine tools, and by technicians, the householder must do with less of the things that draw upon the same resources. They will understand that when less is produced for civilians, less must be spent by civilians and that taxes, investment in Government bonds, and even compulsory saving are means to this end.

They will see, once it is pointed out, that it is time to begin economizing on goods which have to be carried in ships. For there are not enough ships. They will see that it is time to start conserving supplies, like rubber and some of the rarer metals, which have to be imported from regions which might fall under the control of the Axis. They will see that if corporations are allowed to earn large excess profits, there will be labor troubles arising out of the demand for a share of those profits. They would see, I think, that in so far as it is unwise or impracticable to freeze wage rates and profits, the same result might be achieved in part by paying out wage increases in the form of Government bonds and of requiring corporations to invest some part of their profits in Government bonds.

IT WILL BE MUCH easier for the country to accept the necessary sacrifices if it becomes clear that the Government knows what it is doing and is not just making a nuisance of itself. Thus it is necessary to economize on projects that compete with defense. But there is no need and no point and no sense in economizing on the necessities of the destitute, the sick, the aged, the young, or the handicapped. Their needs are not in competition with the needs of the Army and Navy.

Nor is it necessary to economize now on education, as distinct from buildings, and certainly not on scientific research, nor on professional and technical schools, nor on sports and amusements, nor on those activities which minister to the moral and spiritual life of the people. In fact, the rule should be to replace the luxuries of the machine by an increasing emphasis on those things—necessary things as well as agreeable things—which make for plainer living and higher thinking.

Menzies Sees Vengeance

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

ROBERT GORDON Menzies, Prime Minister of Australia, yesterday foresaw a day when an enlarged R. A. F. would be dropping two tons of bombs on Germany for every ton the Luftwaffe drops on Britain.

MENZIES

"We have yet to discover how Germany can stand up under bombing," he said. "You just wait until the hitting power of our own air force is developed. Wait until we can take a couple of tons of bombs over for every ton the enemy brings in.

"Then we will get a test of Germany's morale. Then we will get a test of her capacity to make synthetic fuel, her capacity to keep her factories going, and to maintain armies spread out all over Europe.

"Im no pessimist. I look forward to that day."

Prime Minister Menzies was holding forth before some 30 newspaper reporters at the Australian Legation, 3117 Woodland Drive. He is a big, two-fisted fellow, who looks something like America's own Wendell Willkie. On his way home from London, he arrived here yesterday for a four-day sojourn. He saw Secretary of State Hull shortly after his arrival and is scheduled to see President Roosevelt Monday morning.

MENZIES SAID HE expected Hitler would be forced to admit failure in his great objective—the conquest of Britain—or else attempt an invasion. Far from being worried about that, he said, he was looking forward to the time when Britain could move on from the defensive and strike out toward victory.

"We'll beat this fellow," he said, "if it takes 20 years; but we'd rather do it in a couple."

How long it would take, Menzies said, would depend on the United States; on whether the United States threw its full material resources behind Britain.

"The mere diversion of some portion of American energy is not enough," he said. "Winning a war like this is not a part-time job. We're up against an enemy who is very powerful.

"If the United States was able to get its full resources to Britain, do you think the British would be able to win the war without actual American entry?" he was asked.

"I hope so," he said. "But that is something that is up to America itself."

HE WAS ASKED whether he hoped Britain could win even without American naval aid. Was the inquirer talking about convoys? he asked. He was told that the word convoy wasn't being officially used here; that the word was "escorts."

"I'm bound to say," he remarked, smiling, "that I don't think there is anything like a good escort."

Prime Minister Menzies, recalling a policy speech he had made in Australia, said that Britain and her allies were fighting, not only for the defeat of Germany, but "for a world where a fair deal would not have to be described as a new deal."

America's assistance, he said, should not be on the basis of whether or not the British are a delightful people.

"Actually, at times we are a very tiresome people," he said. "But this is not merely a war for the British Empire, but a war for civilized humanity."

He said that the Australian troops had experienced an "unholy pleasure" in fighting the Italians, and were not the least bit afraid of the Germans. He was asked what the Aussies thought about the Italians. Looking around and seeing some women reporters, he said:

"I don't think I would want to answer that in mixed company."

Prime Minister Menzies was met at Union Station by George Summerlin, State Department chief of protocol; Sir Gerald Campbell, British Minister and ranking British diplomat in Washington in the absence of Lord Halifax; Maj. Richard Casey, Australian Minister; A. S. Watt, first secretary of the Australian Legation, and Commander D. H. Harries, Australian Naval Attache.

A Sad Anniversary

Nazi Domination In The Low Countries

A YEAR has now passed since the invasion of the Low Countries and the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg, which is linked by economic union to Belgium. The conquest of these small countries by the Nazi forces was soon overshadowed by France's collapse. And today, though the Low Countries, like other occupied countries, continue to find sympathy from the American public, their life under the Nazi heel appears to be but a minor sad detail in the great, tragic picture of Nazi-dominated Europe.

A careful analysis of their life, however, allows one to discover a most interesting phenomenon, the importance of which overflows the borders of these countries.

The Low Countries—Belgium especially—have often been described as "Europe's test laboratory" and certain developments in these countries, indeed, help us to better understand the natural trend of Europe, which is today under the Nazi rule.

THE NAZIS imposed on the Norwegians the puppet government of Quisling, who became a symbol of treachery, but who betrayed his country only at the hour of invasion. Why, then, did the Nazis not utilize in Belgium and in Holland men who for years were helping them to prepare the for the conquest of these countries?

In Holland, Adrien Mussert, leader of the Dutch Nazis, whose 43 publications were financed partly by Dutch financiers afraid of communistic danger, but were mainly supported by Goebbels' propaganda office, announced on January 1, 1940—four months before the invasion—that the year of 1940 would see the triumph of Nazism in Holland, a triumph for which he, Mussert, and his party had been working for for five years.

In Belgium, Leon Degrelle, leader of the Rexists (Belgian Fascists), who was receiving from Germany not only the paper for his daily Pays Reel, but also funds for his organizations, did not dare after the outbreak of the war to praise openly Nazism, but daily violently attacked England and Churchill. And the leaders of the Flemish extremists, who since 1936 were cooperating, on the basis of their pro-totalitarian sympathies, with the Rexists, daily repeated in their Volk en Staat the arguments which were furnished to them, as to Degrelle, by the press service of the German Embassy.

Certain Dutch Nazis, Belgian Rexists and Flemish Extremists betrayed their countries not only by words but by deeds. And when their countries were occupied, they rushed to offer their services to the Nazi conquerors.

Why, then, did not Arthur Seyss-Inquart, the civil governor of Holland, and Gen. Alexander von Falkenhausen, military governor of Belgium, entrust the local administration of these countries to Mussert and Degrelle?

IN BELGIUM, moreover, the Nazis had a choice between Degrelle and the more distinguished Henri de Man. This nebulous, brilliant, theorician, educated at Frankfort University, where he was till the Nazi's arrival to power professor of political economy, had succeeded after Emile Vandervelde's death to the chairmanship of the Belgian Labor Party. He dissolved, after France's collapse, the Belgian Labor Party, explaining that "only Nazism was henceforward able to assure the triumph of socialism in the world."

Henri de Man, who before the war exerted his influence on all French leftists, such as Gaston Bergery and Marcel Deat, who are today cooperating with the Nazis in Paris, was for the Nazis quite an acquisition.

Why then have they not utilized him or Leon Degrelle?

Probably because when they occupied the Low Countries, the Nazis knew perfectly that Mussert, Degrelle and even De Man were backed by very reduced minorities, but they hoped that these men would gradually and spontaneously become the leaders of their countries.

At the spring elections of 1939 the Dutch Nazis could obtain no more than 3.8 per cent of the total voice and the Belgian Rexists no more than 3.4 per cent. The Flemish extremists, on the other hand, could gather only 8 per cent of the total Flemish voice.

The Nazis remembered, however, the growing successes of their own party in Germany and firmly believed that the identical parties in Belgium and in Holland, intelligently supported and guided, would meet with the same success. They had such confidence that they decided they would only compromise their sympathizers by trying to force things. The reasoning was quite right, but they forgot that they had already compromised their supporters—and most harshly—by the very fact of their invasion, for many sincere Dutch Nazis and Belgian Rexists were, during the first nine months of the war? perfectly convinced that all talk about the possible Nazi invasion was mere Allied propaganda.

ON THE OTHER HAND the Nazis endeavored to win the sympathies of the bourgeois parties. In Holland they made advances to Hendrik Colijn, the former premier, who during the first months of war was eagerly supporting all German efforts in favor of a negotiated peace.

In short, after having conquered the Low Countries, the Nazis believed that they would be also able to master the sympathies of the populations. They insisted on the racial ties in Holland and in Flanders, though they were shrewd enough not to separate too brutally—as they did in the previous war—the Walloons from the Flemish. This time they hoped to conquer the Walloons as well as the Flemish. Nazi soldiers and functionaries received orders to be extremely polite and courteous.

The Nazi administration gradually screwed the economic press. It pumped from the Low Countries all of their substance. But at the same time it wasted smiles and nice words. And it endeavored to procure jobs for the Dutch and Belgian workers.

To facilitate, simultaneously, the pumping of the economic substance of the Low Countries and the creation of an artificial prosperity the Nazis depreciated Belgian and Dutch money. The mark, which was quoted at the Brussels Exchange at 3 francs before the invasion, has today to be accepted for 12.50 francs.

WHAT, HOWEVER, is after one year of occupation the result of German policy in the Low Countries?

A few Belgian and Dutch industrialists, who had important investments in Germany, had to accept the economic cooperation. And about 60,000 Belgian workers, who were receiving neither jobs nor assistance in Belgium, were obliged to go to Germany to work in German war factories or mines.

But the "little man" in Holland, as well as in Belgium, obstinately refused to cooperate. The church became in both countries the great center of moral resistance. Belgium's cardinal, Msgr. van Roye, even dared to intercede in favor of Polish Jews whom the Nazis expelled from Belgium to Poland's ghettos.

Clandestine organizations have been created. They cut the German cables, sabotage the German transport, attack the isolated German soldiers, and risk their lives to assure contacts between the occupied countries and London, where their governments in exile have found a refuge to administer the Belgian Congo and Dutch colonies.

A clandestine "Libre Belgique" is published in Brussels—as during the last war. It gives as its address, "German Headquarters," and its editor is described as "Peter Pan's Statue in Brussel's Egmont Park." Such irony and jokes of the Belgian and Dutch boys over Germany's inability to cross the Channel are exasperating the Nazis' short temper.

The contributions on the cities and the arrests of citizens accused not only of sabotage acts but of mere criticisms are multiplying.

ON THE OTHER HAND, the increasing favoritism toward the Flemish in Belgium indicates that the Nazis realize their failure in their endeavors to conquer the sympathies of all the Belgians.

And so, after a year's occupation, the Nazis must admit that despite all their efforts, they have failed to obtain the spontaneous cooperation of the Low Countries in the New Order.

These countries have been conquered but not subdued. The coming year promises to bring an increased food shortage and greater moral suffering. For there is no greater crime in the Nazis' eyes than to stick to an ideal which is excellently expressed by the ancient motto of the small but obstinate Luxemburg people. "Wir wolle bleibe wat wir sin"—"We want to remain what we are."

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Dear Ma—I am sending you a pitcher of me in my new field hat witch is the new style combat millinery in this army. It is a fiber hat witch is as light as a straw skimmer and a iron hat clamps over it like a helmet in case of trouble. It is shaped like the helmet you see on polo players and boy do I look like a ten ghoul man. All I need is a polo pony a mallett and some white riding pants.

But what looks smart on one man may look lousy on another witch I am glad to say is the case with Otto Bixby, my old boss, who is now just a private in the same outfit with me and who can't give me no orders like he used to. He looks very comical in a polo hat while I look like I had just stepped out of a internashunel match. Class alway tells. The polo hat only makes Bixby look like a White Wing and the same is true of my sergeant "Hard Boiled" Mooney who gets tougher every day. That guy gets high blood pressure if he sees a burnt match in a company street that I ain't picked up. I always blame it on Bixby who looks more like a street cleaner than I do anyhow.

I wish the Secretary of Drainage if they have such a officer would speed up the job of draining this draft camp better. The man who picked this site for a camp must of confused army training with marine sports or else maybe he was interested in outbored motors and was combining duty with a hunt for new business prospects. It must of been a duck refuge before we got hear. And the ducks wasn't notified of the change as they keep dropping in in large numbers. It is nothing to have your tent hit by a flock of wild ducks in the middle of the nite and I found a goose roosting on the end of my bunk the other morning. He seemed as mad about it as I was.

He had busted a wing against a tentpost or something so I fixed him up and he is now the company maskot. We call him Blitz for no good reason. He is pretty tame now and seems to like me, but he makes orful noises and gets very mad every time he sees Bixby witch I don't blame him for There are a lot of maskots in camp, including the biggest bullfrog I ever seen. It is more like a green pig with long hind legs, but the natives say it is only a midget frog for this part of the country witch is espeshully designed for bullfrogs.

The boys witch have this frog keep it tied just outside their tent as a indicator. Whenever it loses weight and don't make no noises they know the drainage job at this camp is going ahead and when it gets fat and acts very happy they know the swampy condishuns is getting ahead of the engineers again. It seems to be getting fatter and happier all the time.

We are using some of the newest searchlights at this camp. They have 8 million candle power and can throw a light 6 miles. They are the most blinding spotlights I ever seen and we got three fellers in our street who seam happy and at home in the draft army for the first time. One is a former movie actor, the other is a ex-nite club comic and the other was a Broadway columnist or something. These lights is to spot enemy aircrafts and I guess these three eggs wood like nothing better than to act as enemy aircrafts in a mimik war. Bixby is always hanging aroujnd these lights two.

Well I can't write no more now as Sergeant Mooney has just seen me doing no heavy work and is bringing me a shovel and pick. Do not worry as I am very strong now and can take it. Love.

OSCAR.

Taxes are being proposed on insurance premiums. "Every time some of these Democrats think of an insurance policy it makes them want to do something antagonistic," says Elmer Twitchell.

The President says there is as much difference between a neutrality patrol and a convoy as between a horse and a cow. But will it be clear to an enemy? It's hard to imagine a submarine commander, especially those operating under the Hitler code, sighting an American warship in a trouble zone and asking: "Is it a horse or a cow? We mustn't do anything until we make the distinction."

Some Background On The Wagner Act

THANKS TO Burton Heath, the reporter who grabbed the unspeakable Martin T. Manton by the foot, yanked him down off his bench, stripped the robes from the back of the old thief and kicked him into prison, where he bloody well belongs, I am able this day to present some authentic background information on the refusal of Senator Robert F. Wagner to amend and even to discuss in the open the dangerous defects in the so-called labor act which bears his name. Mr. Heath, who now is a cosmic columnist with a peanut stand of his own, sells pretty much the same brand of political and social peanuts that I sell, but not so bitter. He wrote a very good book on his experiences, called "Yankee Reporter," which came out last year, in which he said that only the most reactionary, of whom I am one, could quarrel with the purpose of the Wagner Act, but that its errors in detail are capable of doing inestimable damage to an economic system trying desperately to resuscitate itself after a narrow escape from death.

THIS IS very pretty saying, and I wish the words were mine, because it seems that every time I try to say the same thing, the loud, coarse sound of the language drowns out the idea and people say the guy is just sore, without understanding what it is that he is viewing with such noisy alarm.

In this book Mr. Heath is discussing President Roosevelt, whom he had known back in the Albany days, and says: "The obstinacy with which Roosevelt refuses to let new evidence influence his attitude on major matters of public policy has been demonstrated often and discussed frequently. One illustrative episode has never been publicized.

"Senator Robert F. Wagner, a Tammany man who has risen far above his background, was established as a humanitarian, a liberal and a friend of organized labor before Franklin Roosevelt had any citable record in any of those fields. He has sponsored several of the New Deal's sounder contributions to social progress, notably the well intentioned and potentially desirable National Labor Relations Act."

MR. HEATH then reveals—and if I did not believe his word could be accepted as guaranteed truth I would not pass it on—that in the fall of 1938 a New York newspaper which had always supported Wagner and wished to indorse him anew assigned one of the ablest journalists in town to discuss with him his views on certain specific amendments to the act. Mr. Heath says Mr. Wagner acknowledged each such defect and agreed to offer amendments designed to correct them, and, moreover, gave the reporter permission to quote him. However, as public men not infrequently do, he stipulated that he should be permitted to see the copy before publication, and the reporter accordingly took it to the Senator's office.

"The Senator never saw it," says Mr. Heath. "A partner informed the newspaperman that although Senator Wagner still believed the law required revision, he had decided not to admit it or discuss the matter.

"Not long afterward I mentioned the episode to an intimate friend of the President's and the Senator's, who had expressed curiosity and resentment because the newspaper had opposed Mr. Wagner's reelection.

"'Senator Wagner telephoned the White House that night and told the President that he had given the interview and what he had said,' the friend told me.

"'He was told that he must stop the interview—that no matter what he thought he must not admit publicly that any flaw existed in the act; that to agree to the slightest revision would appear to be a sign of weakness.

"'I know Bob would like to see those changes made to silence justifiable criticism of the act and to forestall resentment resulting from abuses, but he doesn't feel that he can act until the President is ready.'

"The President," says Mr. Heath in closing the subject, "is not yet ready to let Senator Wagner act on his convictions."

TO WHICH I would add that the newspaper which made this conscientious inquiry into Senator Wagner's opinion of a very dangerous land mine planted in the path of progress and decided to oppose his reelection for sound patriotic reasons has been bent over a barrel many a time since then, both personally by President Roosevelt and by others in the political camp of the Administration.

This bad law, with its threat to economic recovery and its cunning, concealed purpose of driving all workers into one political class group at the service of the Administration will be amended only when the workers themselves show President Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt and Wagner himself that they are onto the plot and will not stand for it. Then, of course, the President will say that he has discovered these flaws and that he has decided to recommend changes, which will deceive some, of course, but will get results, which is all anybody wants, anyway.

Youth Courts Urged as Shield Against Criminal Environment

The American Law Institute yesterday unanimously approved a proposal for "youth courts" throughout the country for speedy justice in the cases of accused young people.

The courts which would handle cases of persons 21 or under, from the time of their arrest until final disposition, would have a two-fold objective: shortening of the time youths must remain in jail before trial and improvement of conditions to which he is subjected in that period.

It is the period of confinement before trial of young persons unable to make bond that "is likely to make a new criminal out of an innocent youth, and to accentuate the criminality of an already guilty one" a report stated.

"As a practical matter of crime prevention it follows that no matter how short the period between arrest and disposition," the statement urged, "the conditions to which he is subjected during that time must be as little deteriorative of character as it is possible to make them."

Statistics were cited showing that while 78 per cent of all defendants 16 to 21 are confined in jail before trial because of lack of bail, 64 per cent are discharged without imprisonment.

Key provision of the proposal is one intended to cut delay in prosecution by vesting in one court all judicial functions—issuing of summons and warrants, holding of preliminary hearings as well as trying cases.

President Asks $61,477,750 More For New Airports

President Roosevelt yesterday asked Congress to appropriate an additional $61,477,750 to build 149 new airports and enlarge 20 now being constructed.

He asked the Senate to add this amount to an appropriation of $28,500,000 already approved by the House for airport construction. The expansion is required because of the large increase in Army tactical units and training schools, it was explained.

No indication was given as to the proposed location of the contemplated new airports.

Gloves Go Decorative for Summer

We have seen the embroidery motif on everything from hankies to lingerie, and now it is an important bit of glove decoration. These sedately long Aris gloves—paradoxically called "Sweet Adeline"—are designed to heighten the light, summery look of street or afternoon clothes. Their cutwork embroidery is finished with a graceful scalloped edge

A Measure for Bracelets

Hollywood, Calif.—Cue your bracelets to the length of your sleeves, says Pricilla Lane, the "Million Dollar Baby." If you wear the popular bracelet sleeves, which leave an ungraceful expanse of arm to the fingertips, manacle your wrists with very wide bracelets. Priscilla has a matching, initialed pair, one initial for each bracelet, in white and yellow gold.

Using Exercise, Showgirl Does Without Girdle

By Ida Jean Kain

YOU CAN take the word of a showgirl, a hypercritical public would keep any woman from being average looking because it would make her look to her figure.

Kay Fears, tall and terrific Oklahoman, is generally conceded to have one of the most streamlined figures on Broadway. She is six feet tall, weight 145 pounds and measures: bust, 36 inches; waist, 26 inches; hips, 38 inches. Her figure is so good that she dispenses with such camouflaging externals as a girdle and brassiere. She "can't bear the things!"

You might have a perfect figure, too, if you followed her cue and took your recreation in the form of exercise. She happens to like swimming, bowling and horseback riding and she does them—several times a week.

Nothing Like Bowling

"There's nothing like bowling to pull you out of the slump that follows late hours and too much food," she declares. "And if you work up a little enthusiasm, you can count on losing about a pound during the game. But it seems to me that what the average woman needs to do is swim—or else take arm swinging or circling exercises which will beautify her figure."

The trick in swinging the arms is to hold them at shoulder level and move the entire shoulder girdle. Begin by holding the hands straight out in front, then try to clap together in back. Next, swing your arms up, around and back in wide circles. Keep arms straight and move the shoulder muscles.

For a more strenuous workout, lie face downward on the floor, legs straight down and hands on floor at sides about chest level. Hosit yourself off the floor by straightening the elbows—and don't let your flure sag in the process. When you bezin to sag, relax and rest, then try again.

Improve Posture

If that one is too much for you, stand facing a wall with feet together a few inches out, and hands on wall about chest level. Resist with the arms as you lean your weight toward the wall, then reverse the procedure and resist with your weight as you push away with the arms.

Those exercises will also improve your posture. Considering the few minutes' time they take, they make an excellent addition to your beauty routine.

Girls' Dress Ideal for Mothers Is Smartness With Dignity

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

IT'S THE SMART mother who seeks the advice of her daughter on the matter of dress as she nears the "silver gray" stage—or better yet, before! Girls do not want their mothers to look kittenish, but they do want them to look like "mothers." The most important thing is that a mother appear attractive and up-to-the-minute without looking dowdy or over-dressed.

"Age should be an asset, rather than a liability," says Miss Kathleryn Towne, assistant professor of home economics at George Washington University. "It reveals the character and mellowed charm necessary for real beauty," Miss Towne pointed out that a few years ago when the world's most beautiful women were selected, none of them was under 50 years of age.

Every year in Miss Towne's freshman clothing classes each girl has an opportunity to make a dress for her mother. The object is not destructive, but constructive criticism. The girls try to analyze the mature figure and bring out its good points. There are no hard and as fast rules—as that every woman should wear a V-neckline or shades of lavenders. Often such are bad for a particular figure.

Guide for Style

For a guide, the students consider the following points as a prelude to making dresses for their mothers:

The color problems in relation to age and what will be worn with the dress.

Purposes of the dress—especially important in relation to the material selected.

Line effect—whether the problem is one of decreasing or increasing height and altering other proportions.

The amount of money that is to be put into the dress.

Emphasis on a particular asset—such as gray hair or the color of the eyes.

From Miss Towne's experience with girls and their mothers, she has found that mothers do not think enough about ensembling. She points out that mothers many times buy a hat at one time, and gloves and purse at another time, just hoping they will match. She believes mothers should give more time and thought to their accessory buying. They should buy with a definite purpose and color in mind.

Want Approval

"Mothers really like their daughters to approve of their clothes selections," said Miss Towne. She advises daughters either to go shopping with their mothers or suggest that they look for certain types of clothes before they start out. Mothers are too prone to think in terms of the expense of certain items and sometimes need a little prodding.

By working with her students Miss Towne has discovered mothers are often apt to dress their daughters in very attractive but neglect themselves. "Then a daughter wonders why her mother does not look as smart as the mothers of some of her girl friends," she said. Miss Towne believes this is one of the gravest mistakes that can be made. "The unfortunate part of it is that it is not fair to daughter," she explained, "and she certainly does not appreciate her mother's sacrifice."

When working with the mature figure, the aim of the students is not to actually to broaden the shoulders or achieve a definite effect by the use of lines. They try, rather, to create the desired effect by eye movement. If the figure is broad and the eye can be made to travel in a "V" from the shoulders to the feet, it has more of a slimming effect than many vertical stripes.

As to makeup, Miss Towne says the girls have very definite ideas. It seems most every girl would like to see her mother wear more of it. "However," she cautions, "the overuse of it is just as bad."

Table Linen Cuffs

Hollywood, Calif.—Georgia Carroll, lovely former Powers model now under contract to Warner Brothers, says that New York models all use fine table linen for unusual cuff and collar sets. The idea has grown to such proportions in Georgia's own wardrobe that she now has a black linen suit with red linen napkin revers and cuffs, and other pairs in off-white or pink damask, white embroidered madeira and flowered luncheon napery.

Home Decoration Must Follow Design for Living

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

DECORATING a home is really a study in pleasant living rather than a superficial matter of furnishing and ornamenting four walls. And so—when you go shopping for your home—keep in mind the kind of life you want to have in that particular room. Are you scintilating and sophisticated? Are you comfortable and studious? Are you hearty and casual? Such things should have a lot to do with the color of your curtains and the paper on the walls. New ideas for freshening up the old home scene are included in exhibitions of new rooms we've seen—and suggest gay ways of reflecting yourself into your decorating. Here are our notes:

A living room with slate gray walls, Oriental scatter rugs, a pair of beautiful mahogany highboys, curtains and slip covers of flowered chintz on an old rose ground;

A bedroom with pale green walls, white organdy curtains, a dado all around the walls of plaid gingham, which is also used to upholster the headboard of the bed and is repeated again in the flounce of the bedspread—the top being of plain green quilted chintz.

Draw Cartoons By Home Study

"WHY, your drawings are good enough to be on the comic page!" By such friendly praise many an amateur cartoonist has been awakened to his own talents, encouraged to turn them into money.

To step from "doodling" to drawing professional cartoons is mainly a matter of training—and you can start this training at home.

In your first lessons you can learn how to base your drawings on simple forms. All heads for instance, are more or less oval in shape. But, since in cartooning you want to be funny, you take advantage of the way heads differ.

Then with horizontal and vertical lines you indicate where features will be and start to sketch them in. Just moving the line of the eyes up or down, adding comic hair, mustaches or glasses give you a whole range of funny characters. Laughs by the carload.

Man Breaks With Girl, Saying He Isn't Good Enough For Her; Now He Finds Life Hideous Without Her And She Will Not See Him; How Patch Things Up?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Recently I broke up with a wonderful girl because I didn't think I was good enough for her. I miss her terribly and love her more every day that goes by. It seems as if I can't go on living without her. But all attempts at reconciliation have failed, and she has apparently decided never to see me again. I would appreciate your advice on how to patch things up, as I have never been so blue in all my life. R. Y. M.

DEAR R. Y. M.: When a man tells a girl that he "isn't good enough for her," what he really means (at the moment of speaking) is that he doesn't love her enough to marry her (or so he thinks), and the side-stepping statement usually follows in the wake of a long-standing mutual understanding (or perhaps open declaration) that the girl loves him and is eager to become his wife. Thus, I imagine what makes reconciliation difficult here is the girl's nervously self-protective desire to have nothing more to do with a man who abased her spirit to the nth degree in a nonchalant and insensitive manner.

Your current remorseful attitude is a facsimile of that described in an erstwhile popular song, which makes moan to the effect that, "I never knew how wonderful you were, until I lost you, wonderful one." Whether you can reclaim your cast-off sweetheart is problematic. It is possible that she has come, at long last, to appreciate the enormity of your selfishness, and to be afraid (with a fear that poisons her blood) of exposing herself to further hurt, casual neglect, quaking suspense, disappointment, etc., at your hands.

Perhaps the shock of the "break" which you initiated made her actually ill, in a psychic or soul sense, so that she feels an urgent compulsion to institute her nerves and emotions against additional insupportable worry or tension at this time, such as would be implicit in reopened discussions with you. It has been said, "The burnt child dreads fire," and the girl's present reaction to you probably belongs in that category.

If she were essentially a proud, self-respecting person, who had exhausted all her resources of generosity, patience, tenderness and understanding, in an effort to win your heart—only to be "dusted" off by you, with a gesture of pious hypocrisy, in an hour of towering complacency on your part, it is not likely she would see any good in going back over the same road again. And while you have significantly excluded all details of the courtship which ended on this "sour note," it is my guess that she probably took something of a beating all along the line.

The most one can say, by way of consolation, is this: If you were more blind and misguided than arrogantly calloused, in your previous dealings with her; and if you now truly love her (and aren't just suffering from a frustrated desire to "whistle her back" to reassure yourself concerning your power over her); if you love her so much that you would gladly spend your life making amends for the suffering you thoughtlessly inflicted upon her; and if she cared wholeheartedly for you up to the time of the "break," there is a possibility the breach can be healed.

My advice to you is to woo her forgiveness constantly and insistently, bravely and penitently, making a personal interview with her your prime objective in life, and hammering away on that objective until you achieve it. Given a chance to talk with her, tell her that while you still know you aren't "good enough for her" at this stage of the game, blind fool that you have been, you are ready to spend your life trying to become good enough for her—if she will give you the chance, which she must.

Tell her you have learned that life without her isn't worth a nickel to you, and that it can only have meainng and worth if shared with her. Go on from there to recite the many reasons why you have been "loving her more" every day of the wretched estrangement—and it is not unlikely that her heart will begin to soften and that she will recall you from Coventry. M. H.

Should Hostess' Dress Conform to Guests' Garb?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: What I want to ask you is this: When a young girl gives a birthday party and invites her friends, is it proper or in good taste for her to wear an evening gown, when the other girls are not expected to do so? Seems to me it is all wrong. I am awaiting your reply. Respectfully, M. R. S.

Considerate Hostess Never Outshines Guests

DEAR M. R. S.: In this case it appears the young hostess was guilty of the bad manners of trying to outshine her girl guests; of trying, deliberately, to put them at a sartorial disadvantage. Customarily, a hostess dresses for informal parties as she expects her guests to dress; and, if she is exquisitely considerate, sometimes take thought to "under dress," in the sense of wearing the simplest utilitarian garb, so as to make her most humbly clad guest feel at ease. For instance, a "great lady," holding a reception to which persons of high and low degree are bid, may appear in a casual daytime dress, as a subtle courtesy to "the least of these," who have no cash to spend on party costumes.

Of course, a woman who lived in "the grand style" and who was accustomed to lounging at home through the late afternoon hours in a tea gown, and to "dressing for dinner," might wear a floor-length dress as a matter of course—when home for the evening after, say, 5 o'clock. But there is no excuse whatsoever for the incident you report. M. H.

Ambassador Michels Fetes Chilean Navy Chief Amid Glitter of Gold Braid

There was gold braid a-plenty at the party given yesterday by the Chilean Ambassador and Senora de Michels in honor of their naval chief, Vice Admiral Julio Allard. Many high-ranking American officers were present, as well as diplomats and members from the State Department.

The gold braid and dark blue of some of the officers contrasted with the dazzling white summer uniforms worn by others. During the recent heat wave the American Navy people were ordered to go into their "whites" and there they have to stay until they are told to put their winter outfits on again. Even in cold, rainy weather, such as yesterday's, they have to keep wearing them.

The Ambassador and his wife received in the doorway of the drawing room, the latter wearing, appropriately, a floor length dress of navy blue. The square neckline was edged with a white lace collar. The vice admiral greeted his Washington acquaintances in English.

It's a long time between tea and official dinners in the Capital, and the table yesterday was spread with a substantial fare. Beside the usual sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres, there were great bowls of strawberry ice cream and large frosted cakes. A mass of red roses centered the table.

Cuban Chief's Wife There

An attractive newcomer to Washington present at the tea was Senora de Arguelles, young wife of the Cuban chief of naval operations. A slender brunette, she wore a silver fox jacket over her black dress and a small blue hat with a veil. This is her first trip to Washington and she said she was much impressed by its beauty.

Mrs. Cordell Hull, who does social duty for her hardworking husband at Capital parties, was an early arrival. She, too, wore navy blue, with a tiny white collar and a white-crowned hat with a navy brim.

Rear Admiral George T. Pettengill, who will give a luncheon today at the Navy Yard for the visiting officers, was among the guests. Mrs. Pettengill and the latter's sister, Mrs. Ernest Wagner, of New York, accompanied him. Mrs. Wagner is here for a visit and is staying at the Hay-Adams as her sister's home is full of guests.

The housing situation continues to be a vital topic of conversation. Rear Admiral and Mrs. John Towers were busily asking friends if they knew of a vacant residence, as they must move very shortly from their present home.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ray Spear chatted with friends in the diningroom. Rear Admiral and Mrs. Chester Nimitz, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ralston Holmes, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Royal Ingersoll and Capt. and Mrs. Jack Juhan were others from Navy circles.

State Department Represented

The Ambassador of Peru, Manuel de Freyre y Santander, and Cuban envoy, Dr. Aurelio Concheso, had a talk with Vice Admiral Allard. Mrs. Adolf Berle, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, dropped in to meet the honor guest.

Mrs. Laurence Duggan, whose husband was formerly chief of the division of American republics and is now political adviser to the State Department, was another present. She wore a smart tailored suit and a little bright-colored hat.

Mrs. George Thorpe, in black with fur scarf, renewed acquaintance with Mrs. Wagner. Miss Vera Bloom and Mrs. Thomas Burke left together. Mrs. Burke, whose husband is chief of communications for the State Department, was in navy blue. Miss Bloom had chosen a black outfit topped off by a small brimmed white hat. Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim chatted with friends.

At no time did the party grow so large that the large rooms of the embassy were crowded. As usual, most of the guests assembled in the diningroom. In two corners bars had been set up, with Scotch and soda at one and a huge bowl of punch on a table in the other.

Several ladies of the embassy staff assisted Senora de Michels in seeing that everybody had a good time. Senora de Gazitua, attractive wife of the counselor, was welcoming friends and seeing that they met some of her countrymen who are in Washington. Senora de Rodriguez was another present from the embassy ranks. She wore a black and white striped frock with a hat to match.

Peppers Give Party Honoring John H. Perrys

A dinner in Washington this weekend at which there are no South Americans among the honored guests is definitely news. So too, these days, is a white tie function. The party which Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper gave last night at the Carlton was news on both accounts.

Some 50 guests gathered to dine at a round table, in the middle of which was a fountain edged with clusters of pink roses and delphinium.

James Cromwell, former Minister to Canada, was among the guests. Other out-of-town guests included Keith Morgan, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. John H. Perry, of Palm Beach and Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y. The dinner was in honor of the Perrys, whose two sons, John, jr., and Farwell W. Perry, also were present.

The Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Claude Wickard were ranking guests at the function. From the Senate came Senator and Mrs. Alben Barkley, Senator and Mrs. Josh Lee, Senator Joseph Guffey, Miss Pauletta Guffey, Senator and Mrs. Lister Hill, and Senator and Mrs. Charles Andrews.

Other guests were Representative and Mrs. Brent Spence, the Solicitor General and Mrs. Francis Biddle, Maj. Gen. Allen Gullion, Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Stewart MacDonald, Blanton Winship, Mrs. Albert Blanding, Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mrs. John Martin, Ambrose O'Connell, Mrs. Mitchell Palmer, Mme. Emmanuel Lombard, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Halsted, Mr. and Mrs. Drew Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Macy, jr., of Greenwich, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Francis deWolf, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Lee, of Tarrytown, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Bryden Mack, Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Littell, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Baukhage, Maj. and Mrs. A. B. McMullen and Mrs. O. W. MacNeese.

Mrs. C. J. Brand Honored at Tea

Pleasantly informal was the tea given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Charles Merrill Harron in her home at 3243 Quesada Street. Arranged in honor of Mrs. Charles J. Brand, retiring chairman of the membership committee, Women's National Democratic Club, the party drew about 80 guests, including many members of the club and a number of others.

Snapdragons and gladioli decorated the living room, where the hostess and Mrs. Brand received. Mrs. Herron wore a floor-length frock of dusty rose chiffon. Her guest of honor had chosen a print chiffon, also cut on flowing lines. Judge Marion J. Harron, daughter of the hostess and member of the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals, appeared in a becoming frock of cherry red crepe.

The tea table was decorated with a centerpiece of spring flowers, featured blue delphinium, yellow snapdragons, tulips and daisies. Among those assisting the hostess were Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, Mrs. Harry L. Englebright, Mrs. Frank H. Buck, Mrs. James Irwin, Mrs. Helen M. Moodie, Mrs. Russell Leech, Mrs. Emil Hurja and Miss Patricia Grady.

Mrs. Hull Hostess To Tennesseeans

Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, entertained the wives of the Tennessee delegation in Congress at tea yesterday afternoon in her apartment at Wardman Park.

The guests included Mrs. Tom Stewart, wife of Senator Stewart; Mrs. B. Carroll Reece, Mrs. John Jennings, jr., Mrs. Estes Kefauver, Mrs. Albert Gore, Mrs. Wirt Courtney, Mrs. Herron Pearson and Mrs. Clifford Davis.

Stag Dinner Given For Mr. Menzies

The Australian Prime Minister, Robert Gordon Menzies, was feted at a stag dinner party last night given at the legation by the Australian Minister, Richard G. Casey. The Prime Minister arrived in Washington yesterday morning from Canada.

Among the ranking guests were Vice President Wallace, the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu Shih; Associate Justice Frank Murphy and the Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson.

Guests are urged to bring along overcoats to be donated to the cause and also an admission fee, which will go toward the purchase of overcoats for the British home defense army.

Capital Whirl

By Sally Swift

WHEN ROBERT COE arrives in London to take up his new assignment at the U. S. Embassy he will find many friends from Washington there—the Cristopher Bramwells, Dorsey Fisher, Ricardo Siri, Sherry McAdam, and Glenn Abbey, to mention just a few. Most recent traveler to London is Commander Charles Baker, who went by Clipper, leaving Mrs. Baker and their daughter, Pat, comfortably settled in their little house in Georgetown after a trip out West.

Although Mr. Coe is not going to London for a while yet, his friends want to see him as much as possible before he leaves, so he is being widely entertained. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pell gathered some friends together for a Buffet supper in his honor the other night at their attractive apartment on Massachusetts Avenue.

SEVERAL LADIES present have husbands in such varied, far-off parts of the world that receiving news of them was almost like a lesson in geography. There were Mrs. Hugh Cumming, jr., who is staying with her mother, Mrs. Frank West, in Georgetown, while Hugh is on mission in Greenland; Mrs. Anthony Coleby, whose husband is somewhere with the British fleet, and Countess van Rechteren Limpurg, whose husband is in the Dutch East Indies. Countess van Rechteren, pretty as a picture, in coral crepe, was being questioned enviously on how she did it by those of us who have seen the stone wall which she built in her garden with her own hands, and was invited to repeat the process in her friends' gardens.

Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss was stunning in a black and white print that set off her Florida sun tan to perfection, and our hostess wore one of the prettiest frocks I've seen this spring, a print of huge pink and mauve flowers on a black ground. Mrs. Walton Butterworth was escorted by her husband, who recently returned from London for a tour of duty at the State Department. The Butterworths have taken a house in Maryland, within commuting distance, and are looking forward to a summer in the country with their children.

A MUSICIAN entertained the guests after dinner, playing first on an accordion and later on the piano, and crooners were heard in every corner of the room. The two best singers among the ladies were Mrs. Auchincloss and Mrs. George Howe, while among the men our host was without rival. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann were there—he was being congratulated on his recent articles—as were several members of the British Embassy staff, among them John Foster, Lieut. Peter Otway-Smithers, William Elmslie and Gordon Etherington-Smith. Others were Mr. and Mrs. Drew Pearson—she pretty in sheer white—Anthony Balasy, George Howe, Edward Weintal, Rafal Lepkowski and a number of others.

DINING WITH the Second Secretary of the French Embassy and Mme. Lucet the other night, I met the new Counselor of the Embassy and Mme. Georges Picot. Mme. Georges Picot was rather depressed at the difficulty of finding a house in Washington, especially as her two babies are with their nurse in a small apartment until she finds a home for them. Other guests at the dinner were assuring her that she will like Washington, once she gets settled in a house of her own, and that Washington will like her. Mme. Georges Picot is interesting-looking and wears her ebony hair in sleek braids wound around her head. She and her husband have lived a great deal in the Orient and she herself once traveled into Tibet, accompanied only by native coolies.

Mlle. Charpentier, Mother Honored By Miss Hendricks

Mlle. Claire Charpentier, daughter of Capt. Jean Charpentier, former Assistant Military Attache at the French Embassy, and Mme. Charpentier, was guest of honor at a small dance given last evening by Miss Marjorie Hendricks at Normandy Farm. Mlle. Charpentier is attending school in Washington. Her parents are in southern France.

Among those attending last night's party were the Misses Yolande Alfaro, Isabelle Badger, Doris Beckwith, Patricia Hill, Patricia Prochnik, Virginia Pennington, Chloe MacDonald, Joan McKenna, Mary Theresa and Marion Norris, Suzanne Slingluff, Maj. and Mrs. Basil Pearson Cooper.

Still others there were Martin Barry, Joseph Fisher, jr., Joseph Glover, Charles Grant, Stewart LaBatt, Edgar Prochnik, jr., Alfred Baer, Charles Bocken, Joseph Huber, Fred Marstellar, Berkeley Simmons, David Boyle, jr., Frank Thorpe, Matthew Thorpe and Witcher Dunn.

Visit Chicago

Fletcher G. Cohn, special counsel of the Federal Trade Commission, and his mother, Mrs. Hattye F. Gans, will leave today to spend two weeks in Chicago.

Wife of Paraguay's President Due Here in Few Days

Add to the ever growing list of important South Americans scheduled to visit the Capital: Senora Higinio F. de Morinigo, wife of the President of Paraguay. She landed in Miami a few days ago, where the Paraguayan Minister, Dr. Juan Soler, met her at the airport, and is expected in Washington within the next few weeks.

The First Lady of Paraguay brought her son, Higinio, jr., to Warm Springs, Ga., for treatment for infantile paralysis. The couple made the journey at the special invitation of President Roosevelt, who also has invited Senora de Morinigo to visit Washington.

Junior Leaguers Elect Officers

At a meeting of the Junior League yesterday, officers for the coming year were chosen. Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., was elected president last spring for a two-year term and will continue to serve.

Elected yesterday were Mrs. Robert Whitelaw Wilson, first vice president; Miss Elizabeth M. Sladen, second vice president; Mrs. Joseph C. Quinn, treasurer, and Mrs. David B. Karrick, secretary.

Three Latin-American Envoys Honor Visiting Naval Officers

Three of the visiting Latin-American naval chiefs were honored at dinners given last night by their Ambassadors. Hosts were the Argentine Envoy and Senora de Espil, who entertained for Vice Admiral Jose Guisasola and Senora de Guisasola; the Brazilian Ambassador and Senhora Martins, who feted Vice Admiral Jose Machado de Castro e Silva, and the Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Aurelio F. Concheso, who was host for Capt. Julio D. Arguelles.

Justice and Mrs. Stanley Reed, the Attorney General and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson and Senator Warren Barbour were ranking guests at the Brazilian Embassy dinner. From Navy circles were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Royal Ingersoll, Rear Admiral and Mrs. W. H. P. Blandy, the Naval Attache of the Embassy and Senhora do Valle, Capt. and Mrs. George A. Rood and Commander and Mrs. Edmund E. Brady.

Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Adolph C. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Krock, Miss Mabel Boardman, Mrs. John F. Wilkins, Mrs. Newbold Walmsley, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pell, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, Percy Blair, Mrs. Richard McCreery, Mrs. Nathan Wyeth, Samuel Reber, Winthrop Crane and several members of the embassy staff.

Dr. Concheso's dinner was a stag party. In the company were the Peruvian Ambassador, Manuel de Freyre y Santander; the Mexican Ambassador, Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera; Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State; George T. Summerlin, Chief of Protocol; Rear Admiral Stanford C. Hooper, Rear Admiral Henry Williams, Rear Admiral A. H. Van Keuren, Dr. L. S. Rowe, Harry C. Hawkins, Charles A. Thomson, Thomas Burke, Philip Bonsal, Newbold Walmsley and Dr. Pedro de Alba.

Others were Capt. W. Q. Spears, Capt. Luther Sheldon, Capt. H. D. Bode, Commander L. B. Combs, Lieut. Col. D. J. Kendall, Commander J. E. Dingwell, Commander Frederick W. McMahon, Commander Richard L. Farrelly, Lieut. Comdr. H. W. Rose, Lieut. Comdr. J. R. Perry, Maj. Harold D. Harris, Lieut. Comdr. James F. Byrne, Lieut. Comdr. E. A. Ruth, Lieut. J. T. Lay, Lieut. C. T. Abbott, Capt. Jack P. Juhan, Lieut. F. B. Risser, Lieut. Felipe Cadenas, Dr. Jose Arguelles, Dr. Ramiro Guerra and several members of the Cuban Embassy staff.

Dancing Class Closes Season

Festooned with red, white and blue bunting, the small ballroom of the Willard Hotel was the scene of the final meeting for the season of the Friday evening dancing class. The Union Jack and "Old Glory" carried out the patriotic motif. A banquet preceded the dancing and each table was centered with a bouquet of white lilacs, blue cornflowers and red roses.

The long head table was arranged around a sunken garden filled with snow white hydrangeas. Among those at the head table were the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos, Representative and Mrs. Karl Stefan, Representative and Mrs. Charles McLaughlin, Representative and Mrs. Thomas Rolph, Representative and Mrs. Dewey Short, Representative and Mrs. Jerry Voorhis, Maj. and Mrs. Parker West, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gail, Gen. and Mrs. W. D. Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, H. P. Hodges, Mrs. John McClure, Dr. and Mrs. George Calver and Col. Henry Morrow.

Among other entertaining at tables were Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Price. Ranking guests in that group were the Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Brin, the former United States Minister to Yugoslavia and Mrs. Wilbur S. Carr, Maj. and Mrs. Richard Cutts, the First Secretary Don Juan H. Ehrman, Col. Fred Johnson and Mrs. Mitchell Gould.

Society Flocks To 'An Evening In Yugoslavia'

Members of the diplomatic and residential sets turned out by the dozens at the Yugoslav legation last night to attend a unique benefit—"an evening in Yugoslavia." The Minister and Mme. Fotitch received their guests in the drawing room at 9:30. Mme. Fotitch was smartly gowned in a black lace and chiffon dinner dress with a three-tiered skirt.

Assembled in the long, comfortable room, guests watched colored movies shown by Miss Peggy Lane as the first feature on the program. Proceeds of the affair will go to Yugoslav refugees. Miss Lane filmed the pictures just before leaving Belgrade where her father, Arthur Bliss Lane, is United States Minister.

Native Costumes Take Spotlight

Twenty of the town's prettiest post-debs modeled native Yugoslav costumes after the movie. They were led by Mrs. Eugene Villaret wearing a colorful costume she bought while living in the Yugoslav capital. Mrs. Villaret was followed by two small girls, Mary Louchheim, in Croatian garb and Pola Fotitch, in Serbian dress. One of the loveliest outfits of the evening was worn by Miss Patricia Hill. A Montenegro costume, it had an aqua coat, heavily embroidered in gold, and a red velvet bolero. An interesting creation was that worn by Miss Ruth Tuckerman. It was a Croatian peasant dress of white linen heavily embroidered with red flowers. Miss Emily Myers modeled a gown from Dalmatia and Miss Edith Corbin wore a museum dress with a red velvet coat weighting 25 pounds.

At intervals during the fashion show two singers, Markovich and Radenovich, down from New York, accompanying themselves with the guitar, sang Yugoslav folk songs. Hit of the evening was the well-known Yugoslav dancer, Tashamira, who performed the famed "umbrella dance." A group of six, dancing the Kola—a Yugoslav folk dance—completed the program. Mrs. Thomas Burke, at the piano, accompanied Tashamira.

Many Notables Among Guests

Among those attending the fete were the Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun, the Brazilian Ambassador and Senhora de Martins, the Greek Minister and Mme. Diamantopolous, the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. LeGallais, the British Minister, Sir Gerald Campbell and Lady Campbell, the British Minister and Mrs. Nevile Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Draper, Edward Berling, jr., Miss Paulette Guffey, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Morris, Miss Alice Dodge, Mrs. Truxton Beale, who entertained a party of friends, and Princess Boncompagni, who had about a dozen in her party.

Still others attending were the Librarian of Congress and Mrs. Archibald MacLeish, Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence Houghteling, Miss Mary Patten, Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. William S. Corby, Miss Belle Gurnee, Mrs. Walter Lippmann, Mrs. Robert Pell and many others.

Church Women Will Give Out Window Boxes Again

By Jessie Ash Arndt

The Post Club Editor

While persons in Washington who have gardens are waiting for things to bloom at this season of the year, the families who live in the Capital's alleys are looking forward to the window boxes brought to them by the Washington Council of Church Women. For the past three years, boxes have been provided for every window in the 200 alleys and they will be provided again this spring.

Mrs. Walter Kline, 1115 Prospect Avenue, Chevy Chase, is chairman of the project this season and already has it well under way. The first of the boxes will be filled and presented to the alley dwellers this week. Some of the groups that cooperate in the plan hold brief dedication services when the boxes are presented. Among those who follow this plan are the women's groups of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Stewart Webster, who have Liberty Court.

The boxes, which are painted green, are filled with small plants, some already in bloom. The plants include petunias, calendula, marigolds, daisies, geraniums, verbenas, nasturtiums and pansies—giving as much variety and interest as possible to each box. There also will be vines which add much to the decorative effect of the boxes as they grow during the summer.

The flowers are welcomed by the alley dwellers. They have a knack with flowers, too, according to Mrs. Kline, and often feed them on spinach water and carrot water left from cooking, giving nourishment that makes them thrive.

At the Central Presbyterian Church, of which Mrs. Kline is a member, each of the 10 circles in the Woman's Auxiliary will fill a box. Mrs. Byron W. Alsop, of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, has a group of teen-age boys and girls who will cooperate in the project. Last year the boys made the boxes and the girls filled them. This season they will work together in planting and distributing them in the same alley.

All of the churches in the 18 denominations represented in the Council of Church Women will be asked to aid in the flower box plan. Not only will they provide the boxes for the summer season but, at Christmas, many will cooperate in the annual Christmas alley programs inaugurated several years ago by the council.

A year-around interest in the welfare of the families reached by the project is one of its primary objectives. The value of this has been illustrated in Rickets Court, where Mrs. E. M. Kinnickell, of the Church of the Pilgrims, has had charge of the flower box plan for several seasons. Mrs. Kinnickell, who is a Bible student, has organized a group for Bible study, which meets at one of the 13 homes in the alley each Thursday, with eight women attending. In addition to the reading and discussion of the Bible, there is always music, and she provides simple refreshments. Last summer, through her interest, a watermelon party was provided for the residents of the court; a merchant, on one occasion, gave the families all the corn on the cob they could use, and a bakery also provided a treat.

Other groups which already have been assigned courts are those of Bethesda Presbyterian Church, under the chairmanship of Mrs. William N. Watkins; the Takoma Christian Church, under Mrs. E. B. Byron, and Friends Meeting, under Mrs. H. B. Stabler. This group has had Reeds Court for several years and has followed up with welfare work among several families that have moved from the court within that time.

On a drive through the alleys after the boxes are put in place, one is struck with the beauty of them with flowers blooming in every window, says Mrs. Kline.

"To help a child see beauty is to help him see God," is the motto set for the work by Miss Etta Mai Russell, executive secretary of the council, who inaugurated the project originally, Mrs. George A. Ross is the council president.

Tech Forbids Ornamented Senior Hats

High school graduation days are near when the cardboard skimmers called senior hats appear.

At both McKinley "Tech" and Eastern High Schools the trend has been to decorate the "mortar boards" with everything from dancing girls to battleships. But this year a ruling issued at Tech asks the seniors to wear their hats with "a certain degree of dignity and respect," forbids students to "decorate the hats with inappropriate designs and objects."

Not so at Eastern, where congenial Principal Hart asks only that the ornaments be "kept within reason" and the hats worn with dignity. Principal Hart remembers a boy—but not his name—who was graduated eight years ago. He recalled him recently as the youth whose blue and white cardboard hat was ornamented with an electric light bulb which was flashed on and off by a switch in the pocket of the lad's suit coat. "The boy was scientifically inclined," said Hart.

25,000 Vehicles Travel Avenue Mile Daily

(This is the ninth article in a series about improvements in the District highway system as suggested in the report of the Highway Planning Survey.)

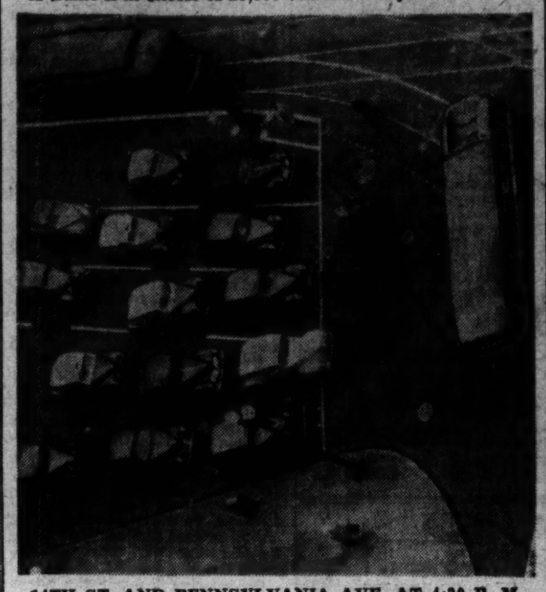
By Howard F. Wentworth
Post Staff Writer

Major street improvements contemplated under the Highway Planning Survey were recommended by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, only after a fact-finding study dating back to the autumn of 1939.

Principally concerned with relief of downtown congestion, Whitehurst and his assistants first drafted a comprehensive picture of the problem and then, in the report, mapped the proposed solution.

Much of the collected data, heretofore only guessed at by District traffic-control authorities, is of vital interest to all motorists.

For instance, the report shows that on Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest from Constitution Avenue to Fifteenth Street—a distance of about 1 mile—the volume of traffic is in excess of 25,000 vehicles a day.



14TH ST. AND PENNSYLVANIA AVE. AT 4:30 P. M.

And along hte Avenue, between Eleventh and Twelfth Streets, the traffic flow exceeds 34,000 vehicles a day, making this one-block area the most congested downtown point.

Counts also revealed that approximately 40,000 cars every day pass through each intersection of Pennsylvania Avenue from Ninth to Fourteenth Street Northwest.

On Constitution Avenue, the report shows, some 25,000 vehicles pass between Louisiana Avenue and Bacon Drvie each day along the same street from Twelfth to Nineteenth, the daily volume is more than 35,000 cars.

Although not in the heart of the business section, the short block of Constitution Avenue between Seventeenth Street and Virginia Avenue exceeds the Eleventh to Twelfth ara on Pennsylvania Avenue with a daily vehicle flow of about 50,000, the report revealed.

The findings showed that Seventeenth Street and Constitution Avenue Northwest is probably the city's busiest intersection. The daily flow at this point exceeds 65,000 cars.

Highway Bridge, the survey indicated, is the most popular points of entrance to the District. A weekday count over a 24-hour period, said Whitehurst, showed that 20,855 cars came into the city over this span.

Memorial Bridge is the next heaviest point of entrance with some 17,294 vehicles in 24 hours, the survey stated. Cars entering the city from Massachusetts Avenue total about 13,000 a day.

Police Tackle Tackle; He Pays

Southwest's Share Large In Play Plans

Program for New Recreation Facilities Allots a Major Portion to Section

By Lucia Giddens
Post Staff Writer

This is the second article in a series on a proposed plan of development of the District's recreation facilities.

The Southwest section's share of a proposed $5,580,700 District recreation development program would create a humming center for baseball and tennis, and would bring into use two major areas adjacent to large schools.

The program, proposed by a committee for the coordination of recreation plans, for execution in the next few years, calls for $239,600 to be spent for developing the East Potomac Park Recreation Center; $73,700 for Southwest Recreation Center, and $71,700 for Randall Recreation Center.

Most pretentious would be the transformation of East Potomac Park, with new facilities for an anticipated 600,000 annual city-wide attendance, including a major proportion of adults.

Of more interest to the immediate community, however, is the proposed development of the Southwest Recreation Center in front of the new Jefferson Junior High School, Eighth and H Streets Southwest, and of the Randall Colored Recreation Center near Randall Junior High School, First and I Streets Southwest. "These two major centers are practically not usable now, for lack of development," C. E. Robb, superintendent of grounds for the District recreation system, pointed out.

The East Potomac Park development stands third from the top on the priorities list of 36 units; Southwest Recreation Center, ninth, and Randall, tenth. However, when the Board of Education this week indorsed the long-term program, it was indicated that a first and second priority list of $500,000 each would be compiled as a starter. Robb said recreation officials would attempt to spread those amounts over most-needed projects in the whole program.

To Reduce Golf Course

The East Potomac Park program visualizes cutting the 36 holes of golf to 27; putting in six to eight ball diamonds and 24 tennis courts. The latter would more than make up for approximately a dozen courts lost in the construction of the Jefferson Memorial. A $105,000 field house at the center is included in the plans. Night lighting at a cost of $17,000 would increase attendance materially, Robb pointed out. An $11,000 item for spectator seating is also included in the total.

In addition to the $239,000 for the recreation center proper, $196,000 is estimated for the golf course reconstruction and its new facilities, including a complete field house at the present course.

At the Southwest Recreation Center two blocks where houses have been razed are awaiting development. "About 18,000 yards of dirt are still to be hauled away to make way for this development," Robb said.

If the $73,000 is spent for development there, the 32,280 attendance of the past year would be almost quadrupled, it has been estimated, to reach an annual total of 130,000. The fund would include $22,500 for tennis, basketball, volley ball and other courts, $5,500 for night lights, $6,700 for space for field games and track, $11,000 for grading and $8,500 for planting.

$71,700 for Randall

The Randall Recreation Center for colored was formerly a storage yard for the Highway Department and a dog pound is now on the site. The surfacing is bad, but children manage to play marbles and ball games there. The $71,700 for the development there would include $5,500 for grading, $8,500 for planting, $8,500 for field games and track, $22,000, surfaced areas, including courts nd $5,500 for night lights.

These improvements would increase Randall's annual attendance from 76,920 to 346,000, it is estimated.

Another Southwest development in the program would be $43,000 at Hoover Playground. Second and N Streets Southwest, to make it possible for last year's 80,000 attendance to be increased to 200,000. This project, twenty-second on the priorities list, would include $22,500 for a field house, and $11,000 for surfaced areas including two tennis courts.

Of the $5,580,700 program, $3,428,700 would be used for the basic recreation system plan, including 36 units such as those described. The $1,652,000 for other park developments would include funds for pedestrian and bicycle trails, some of which would be in Southwest areas.

The remaining $500,000 would be for two swimming pools for year-round use, one for white and one for colored. It was proposed to construct the pool for colored in the Southwest.

The entire program was presented to the Board of Education this week by Milo F. Christiansen, acting coordinator of recreation. The program was indorsed by the board and it is now to be considered by the Commissioners. The National Capital Park and Planning Commission has approved it in principle.

Christiansen suggested as possible sources of funds: the Lanham bill, H. R. 3570, which would allocate funds to communities for defense activities, and the Overton-Hunter plan, which would provide additional funds for capital improvements.

The Committee for the Coordination of Recreation Plans, which drew up the program, includes representatives of both District and Federal agencies. With Christiansen as chairman, other members came from the Board of Education, National Capital Park and Planning Commission, National Capital Parks, Community Center and Playground Department.

Citizens Balk At Elevated Rail Crossings

Opposition to construction of any elevated railroad crossings or streets in Washington, as proposed in the recently completed Whitehurst traffic survey, was voiced by the Brightwood Citizens' Association last night.

At a meeting held in the Paul Junior High School, Eighth and Oglethorpe Streets Northwest, John Clagett roctor, a member, declared such structures would be an "eyesore."

Agreeing that the Whitehurst plan should be federally financed, since Government workers necessitated the improvements, the association adopted a resolution opposing the elevated construction and any increase in local gasoline taxes to supply funds.

The association also planned to request District recreational officials to procure as a playground a 9½-acre tract at Georgia Avenue and Concord Street Northwest. It also voted to ask improvement of the Phillips and Truesdall playgrounds in the Brightwood area.

In two other resolutions the group agreed to seek improved bus service on Sixteenth and Thirteenth Streets Northwest and to ask the Commissioners to order a curbing installed on Rittenhouse Street between Piney Branch Road and Twelfth Street Northwest.

Additional plans were made for the Brightwood group's annual Memorial Day service at the Battleground National Cemetery and Proctor was named chairman of a committee for arrangements.

Capital News In Brief

WPA to Sponsor Street Dance Tonight

There will be dancing in the streets here tonight as part of an outdoor music festival sponsored by the District Work Projects Administration.

The festival, beginning at 7 p. m. at Vermont Avenue and Tenth Street Northwest, will include a patriotic drill by WPA pupils, a concert by the WPA Negro Military Band, a community sing and a street dance.

100 Cases of Measles Reported in Two Days

More than 100 new cases of measles have been reported in the District in the last two days, the Health Department reported yesterday.

The outbreak, said Acting Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger, is the worst since 1939, but is not considered particularly serious. A total of 2,844 cases have been reported thus far this year as compared to 1,802 at this time in 1939, he said. The total for 1939 was 3,731.

Job That Wasn't There Nets Thieves $24

Two applicants for a job that didn't exist applied anyhow yesterday, but proved they were pretty poor workmen ir even a thief's business.

Miss Grace Fitzgerald, 23, employe of the Edwin Ellett Tile Co., 1106 Ninth Street Northwest, told police that one colored man entered the front door. Another entered the back door. One said: "We've heard you've got a job for us."

Then he seized a pay envelope containing $25 from a desk. Both ran. In flight, the thief dropped a $1 bill, reducing his total to $24. Overlooked by both was a drawer containing $700.

Police-Fire Field Day Plans Are Approved

The Commissioners yesterday approved plans for the annual Police-Fire Department Field Day at Griffith Stadium August 23.

The event, highlighted by athletic competitions between the two departments, is staged each year to bolster funds of the Police Retiring Association and Firemen's Relief Association. The sale of tickets for the field day will begin immediately and reserved seats may be obtained from any fireman or policeman.

He Wouldn't Build the Jail, But He's in It

This story goes back to last fall, when a colored youth, swinging a pick in an excavation at Fourth Street and Rhode Island Avenue, halted long enough to ask a fellow laborer, "What's this we're diggin' here?"

"It's a new jail," said the other and the boy dropped his pick and climbed from the hole.

"I'm quitting'," he told the foreman. "They tell me if you dig a hole for your brother you'll sho fall in it yo'self."

He was in it last night; he and a friend who, police said, confessed to 17 holdups of groceries since last October. Both were held at the new Second Precinct Station, Fourth Street and Rhode Island Avenue, while detectives interviewed grocery men whose establishments have recently been stuck up.

The first of the pair, the 19-year-old pick swinger, was captured May 2, about 20 minutes after the grocery operated by Phillip Gerawitz at 950 R Street Northwest was robbed. Private M. R. Luebkert, of Second Precinct, the traditional rookie cop, traced him to a house in the neighborhood and found in his possession three silver dollars which, police said, had shortly before reposed in Gerawitz' till. His companion, 18, was arrested by Second Precinct Detective J. G. Austin several days later.

The most imaginative holdup in a succession of routine pistol-wavings police said the two confessed was that of Edward Sheer, grocer at 2601 Sherman Avenue Northwest, and his wife on April 9. The grocer and his wife were tied up for a half hour during an unsuccessful search for funds.

Mrs. Sheer directed the bandits to the icebox when they threatened to asphyxiate her 4-year-old child in the gas stove.

Washington Men Elected

Charles Diguilian and Theodore L. Medford, both of this city, were elected treasurer and executive secretary, respectively, of the National Terrazzo and Mosaic Association yesterday in Cincinnati.

17,000 Boys To Join Safety Parade Today

Nearly 3,000 American schoolboys, vanguard of 17,000 who will march today in the tenth annual School Safety Patrol Parade, yesterday descended on Washington and took over the town.

By school bus, by train, by automobile, they rolled in from all corners of the United States. Welcomed on the Capitol steps by Government officials headed by Vice President Wallace, they scattered on 100 excited tours of Washington.

Brought here as a reward for their help in lowering traffic fatalities among children, they were congratulated by Wallace for "the fine job you have been doing in cutting down automobile fatalities—42 per cent, I'm told."

Senators Greet Them

Boys who will march in the parade today are part of 300,000 who serve in 3,200 communities. The system is sponsored by the American Automobile Association, its affiliated clubs and police departments in the various cities.

Others welcoming the patrols at the ceremony on the Capitol steps were Florida Senators Charles O. Andrews and Claude Pepper.

Infantry Display

Highlight of entertainment given the youths was a program last night in the Uline Arena of boxing, tumbling and other acts including an infantry weapon display and combat demonstration of the U. S. Army Twelfth Infantry from Arlington Cantonment.

An estimated 14,000 patrol members will arrive for the parade today by train, bus and automobile.

The procession will leave Fourth Street and Constitution Avenue Northwest at 9:15 a. m. It will be led by the United States Navy Band and followed by floats for which prizes will be awarded. Approximately 40 other bands will be in the parade and awards will be given afterward for the best bands, drill teams, safety slogans and posters as well as for floats.

Draft Boards Overruled In 10 Appeals

Upheld in 31 Cases; 75 to Be Inducted Today Announced By Headquarters

The District Appeals Board overruled local board decisions in 10 of 41 disputed cases yesterday as local selection headquarters made public the names of 75 registrants to be inducted today.

Among those cases in which the appeals unit granted deferments was that of a United States Court of Appeals attache, the first to present a successful appeal to the high draft tribunal. He is Raymond L. Kahn, 24, of 2130 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest, clerk to Associate Justice Justin Miller. He is deferred until the end of the present court term.

Meanwhile, the District Defense Council announced lodgings available as follows: For white soldiers, at Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club, Eleventh and L Streets Northwest, accommodations for approximately 160 men; at George Washington University gymnasium, 2010 H Street Northwest, 100 men (after 6 p. m. today); 4-H Club tents, Potomac Park, 260 men (after 6 p. m.).

For colored soldiers: Banneker Recreation Center, 2402 Georgia Avenue Northwest, approximately 100 men.

Other Deferments

Pearson, 24, file clerk, of Board No. 12, and John J. Columbus, 22, War Department estimator, of Board No. 4.

All were excused from service because of dependency except Titus, Kahn and Columbus, deferred as "necessary men," and Harry A. Pearson, who was classed as physically qualified for only limited military service.

During the day the War Department announced that Company D, of Fort Belvoir's Thirtieth Engineer Battalion, would be transferred soon to Camden, S. C., where it will take up permanent station.

Mother's Day Prelude . . .

Mother's Day Observance Accents Youth

A new symbolical mother for Mother's Day, tomorrow, was put forward yesterday by Mrs. Roosevelt and others interested in the observance.

The day "is no longer symbolized by the sweet, white-haired, resigned Whistler's 'Mother.' The older generation is not forgotten, but now Mother's Day is personified by a young woman with young children. Mother today is youth and freshness and gayety and happiness and health," said a statement signed by George J. Hecht, publisher of Parents Magazine and chairman of the National Committee on the Observance of Mother's Day, Inc., and by Mrs. Roosevelt and more than 25 authorities in maternal health.

"In her honor, Mother's Day has become an occasion of changing a lethargic public attention to an alert interest in the dissemination of scientific information on the prenatal care of mothers and on the health, education and training of their children," the statement said.

In Washington, the seventeenth annual Mother's Day service will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the amphitheater of Arlington National Cemetery. The service is sponsored by the National Chapter, American War Mothers, and the audience will be addressed by Representative Raymond S. Springer (Republican) of Indiana. Thirty-one patriotic groups will participate in a parade of the colors. Women from the Pan-American embassies and legations will be guests of honor and "in this way honor will be paid to the mothers of our good neighbors south of the border," the announcement said.

The National Restaurant Association predicted that "millions of American mothers will be taken out to dine tomorrow in honor of their day of days. The occasion will be the windup of National Restaurant Week, the sponsors of which have timed it to end on Mother's Day," said the association.

A program of Filipino folk dances and songs will be sponsored by the Filipino Executive Council of Washington at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, Seventeenth and G Streets Northwest.

First Coed Heads G. W. University Student Council

For the first time since its organization, the Student Council of George Washington University last night elected a woman student to its presidency. It was the first time, furthermore, that a girl had sought the office.

Miss Anne Blackistone, Reform Party candidate, was named to head the council, sweeping her party into office with her. Others elected were:

Bob Geran, vice president (Service Party); Patricia Farrell, secretary (Reform); William Stell, advocate (Reform); Paul McClennon, comptroller (Reform); Joan Giles, social chairman (Service); Harriet Weber, publicity director (Reform); Eleanor Sholtes, program director (Reform); George Bishop, activities director (Reform) and Kim Vought, freshman director (Reform).

Robert V. Fleming, jr., was elected president of the senior class. Anne Thomas was named vice president and Sue Burnett secretary-treasurer. Fleming and Miss Thomas were Service Party candidates, Miss Burnett, unaffiliated.

Camera Council Awards Prizes

First prize in the 1941 salon of photography has been awarded by a jury of the Washington Camera Council of the Photographic Society of America to David and Eleanor Craig for their picture "Firmament," it was announced yesterday. The prize-winning photograph will be exhibited with 75 pictorial and 10 documentary prints May 10-23 at 1741 K Street Northwest, headquarters of the council.

Second prize was awarded to Henry N Bassett for "Fangs," and third prize to J. P. Johansson for "Experience." Judges were Miss Eleanor Parke Custis, Fred M. Doudna and J. B. LeCron.

Library Unit Bids Will Be Called Today

Construction bids on the $900,000 first unit of the Central Library on Pennsylvania Avenue, between John Marshall Place and Sixth Street Northwest, will be advertised today.

The Commissioners yesterday approved plans and specifications for the five-story structure and granted contractors four weeks to file bids.

Action at the District Building yesterday dispelled fears that the library unit might be held up until urgent school building needs were completed. Unexpected revenue from first payments of income and real estate taxes paved the way for starting the library, it was reported.

The new building will be erected between the Department of Vehicles and Traffic and the National Guard Armory. Additions to the first unit will be started after existing buildings on the block-long site are torn down.

Designed by Municipal Architect Nathan C. Wyeth, the library will have a limestone front and eventually will extend the entire block.

Plans were approved by the Commissioners yesterday upon recommendation of Maj. Beverly C. Snow, assistant engineer commissioner. The contractor who submits low bid will be given 480 calendar days to complete the job.

Selectee Drowned At Fort Belvoir Bridging Practice

The first selectee fatality at Fort Belvoir, Va., was recorded yesterday when a colored soldier fell from a pontoon bridge his outfit was throwing up and was drowned in Dogue Creek, on the reservation.

The victim was Private David Williams, 30, of Selma, Ala., attached to Company C, Tenth Battalion, Engineer Replacement Center.

A fellow trainee, Private James V. Leake, failed in an attempt to rescue Williams. Diving into the water, he twice brought Williams to the surface but each time lost his grip as he attempted to tow the drowning man to the bridge.

The body was recovered an hour later. Efforts of the Alexandria Rescue Squad to revive the soldier proved futile. An Army board of inquiry is investigating the drowning.

Citizens Organizing At Pleasant Ridge

Citizens of Pleasant Ridge, Fairfax County, will meet tonight to complete organization of a Citizens' Association at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Galway. Officers will be elected and a regular date and place for meetings will be decided upon. It was voted at the last meeting to join the Fairfax County Federation of Citizens' Associations and representatives will be sent to the meeting next week.

Burko Case Evidence Is Closed

Judge Newman Takes Stand to Aid His Former Traffic Court Clerk

More revelations of what goes on in Police Court were given by past and present judges and officials from the witness stand of the District Court yesterday as evidence in the Burko case was concluded.

On trial was Joseph R. Burko, former Traffic Court clerk for Judge Hobart Newman. Burko is accused of stealing fines paid by citizens and altering records to cover the thefts.

Burko denies all the charges and testified that Judge Walter J. Casey and former Judge Edward M. Curran (now District attorney) plotted to get him in trouble so he would give them evidence against Newman.

Judge Newman took the stand to aid his former clerk, who had told the jury of 11 men and one woman they were "very close." Newman said Burko was dismissed in January without hearing.

"Is it common for people in the Traffic Court to ask favors for their friends in traffic cases?" asked James J. Laughlin, Burko's counsel.

"From High and Low Places"

"There is not anybody in the Police Court who hasn't done it," said Newman. "Intervention is most common and it is one of the toughest parts of the job."

Answering other questions, Newman said the intervention came "from high and low places."

Newman said that "many times" he had told his clerk to write "sentence suspended" on papers after he had left the bench. This practice, said Newman, was "the usual thing."

Justice F. Dickinson Letts would not allow Newman to testify whether he was friendly with Curran and Casey. Justice Letts also prevented Curran and Casey from answering questions about whether they were friendly with each other and Newman.

Kept the Same Hours

Burko testified that he and Newman were so friendly that he came to work when the judge did and left when he left, doing personal as well as official services for Newman.

Called back as a rebuttal witness, Curran testified that Burko turned on Newman after the Police Court judges fired Burko. Curran said that Burko came to his office and said Newman had "let him down."

Curran denied, on cross examination, that it was he who told Burko that Newman "let him down" or that he warned Burko to "look out."

Burko claimed Detective Sergt. Joseph Shimon, Curran's chief investigator, half a dozen times promised him immunity in exchange for evidence against Newman, but that he refused.

On his third day of trying, Laughlin succeeded in placing before the jurors the history of the Mattie Edwards case. Mrs. Edwards was held in $1,000 bail by Judge Newman on a charge of shoplifting. Representative Hobbs (Democrat), of Alabama, intervened in her behalf. Judge Casey sentenced her to 90 days, suspended the sentence and placed her on probation for a year.

Burko told about the case to support his claim that Newman and Casey were at odds. "Judge Newman was very indignant" about the case, said Burko.

38 Model Rooms Under One Roof!

Redecorating? Buying a new home? Getting married? There's an interior decorating shop in town where you can see 38 different rooms completely furnished. Where to find this place is just one of a score of shopping tips you'll get from "Shop Scout" in Sunday's Post. Look for these columns in the society section.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

'Affectionately Yours' Is A Bit Short of Radiance

New Earle Feature Lacks the Sparkle It Should Have to Register as Comedy Hit; Spivak Orchestra, on Stage, Lusty Group

THERE IS NOT TOO MUCH AFFECTION in "Affectionately Yours," the Warner Brothers celluloid charade unfurled for the first time in Washington on the screen at the Earle Theater yesterday. There is a considerable meed of belligerence developed as the thing goes along and eventually it comes out according to the familiar blueprints from which the cinema's domestic romances are architectured, but the process by which this evolution is achieved, it must be said, is just a trifle tedious.

BELL

One suspects that the Warners had in mind something that would take its place beside "Arise, My Love," when they started the wheels turning on "Affectionately Yours." It evidently was intended to be one of those sprightly, sparkling and completely vivacious adventures in thwarted love that would bowl the customers into the aisles by its spontaneous humor, when it was not soothing them with its gentler emotions. All this, somehow, fails to come off. The sparkle seems strangely to have eluded the dialogue, and the action, while at times violent, falls a bit short of being what might judiciously be described as sprightly. Repetitive would appear to be the word that more accurately denominates it.

The old, ubiquitous triangle is, of course, at the bottom of it all. A young newspaper correspondent in Europe would be willing to marry any girl he meets "in a split-second, if I didn't have a wife." One of his associates is a young woman who in time tumbles to the perfidy of the fellow. When he gets word that his wife really has divorced him and takes the Clipper from Lisbon for the States, she also is aboard. From that point on the developments work themselves out in New York. The wife, the employer, the prospective second husband of the wife, who still loves her husband, even if she won't admit it, plus a couple of "faithful servitors," all have a finger in the harried business that constitutes the body of the play. The only trouble is that the body of the play betrays alarming symptoms of anemia.

Cast Not Entirely to Blame

Major culpability for the lethargy of the piece cannot be laid to the cast. Merle Oberon, with a few disconcerting lines revealing themselves about the face; Dennis Morgan, still on the ascendant from his performance opposite Ginger Rogers, in "Kitty Foyle"; Rita Hayworth, as the young newspaper woman, who seems, most of the way, to hold the whip hand, and Ralph Bellamy, in his accustomed role of the lad who doesn't get the girl, turn in portrayals that are as credible as the authors have found it possible to provide. James Gleason, as the newspaper publisher, who knows a good reporter when he sees one, returns to a role of major importance and justifies his rehabilitation by an incisive and pungent character study. Hattie McDaniel, the unforgettable Mammy of "Gone With the Wind," lends abundant talents to a role that does not quite deserve them and Butterfly McQueen, as the other house servant, is as irritatingly assertive as those who fashioned the script evidently intended. There is no one else in the cast who particularly matters, although Jerome Cowan, Renie Riano and Grace Stafford are among those whose names might be noticed.

And, at Last, the Spivak Orchestra

After numerous deferments, Charlie Spivak and His Orchestra occupy the stage at the Earle this week. Mr. Spivak has himself quite a band, with a little too much accent on the brasses—inspired, no doubt, by his own superlative trumpeting—and slight inclination to soft-pedal its accompaniments sufficiently to give the specialists a fair chance. The specialists are worthy of note. Evelyn Farney, for example, looked like a splendid tap dancer, but the orchestra played so lustily for her that her taps were completely drowned out. With Emmett Oldfield & Co., it didn't make so much difference. They are acrobatic comedians of the first rank and do not have to be heard to be enjoyed. Joey Rardin, the pint-sized Jim Cagney, is another who manages to get along nicely on his own in a series of impressions and impersonations that are top-hole. Among Spivak's own specialists, Gary Stevens, barytone; Ginger Maylen, songstress, and Mr. Spivak, himself, are preeminent.

That Inevitable 'Other Woman'

RITA HAYWORTH

costarred with Merle Oberon and Dennis Morgan in the Warner Brothers' production of "Affectionately Yours," the current screen attraction at the Earle Theater. Ralph Bellamy completes the quartet of players who involve themselves in an elegant domestic squabble. The veteran James Gleason also comes back to the racing gelatins in this one

Keith's 'Lady From Cheyenne' Finds Urbanity on the Frontier

By Richard L. Coe

How the ladies got the vote in the Wyoming Teritory of the 1860s is regaled with beguiling urbanity, surprisingly enough, in Keith's newcomer, "The Lady from Cheyenne." It's thoroughly amusing make-believe.

Just how much fact is mixed with this frontier fancy is another of those things about which this reporter knows absolutely nothing. Maybe there was an "Annie Morgan; if so, when once we get to Wyoming we expect to find her regarded as a local Jeanne d'Arc.

Whatever Annie Morgan was, Loretta Young makes her a bewitchingly simple lass whose actions are always very much to the point—whether she wants her first kiss from a stranger or the voting privilege for women. She's a Philadelphia orphan who heard prospects for speculating were good westward and invested her patrimony in a riverside plot of land where she planned to open a school.

The school part was all to the good so far as the big, bad men of the settlement were concerned, but her land ownership kept them from complete control of the county waterway.

While Frank Lloyd directed such sweeping epics as "Cavalcade" and "Mutiny on the Bounty," he doesn't attempt much on the spectacular here. His scriptwriters have told a witty, fast-moving tale and Director Lloyd keeps it that way. His players are top-notch, with Miss Young bringing vitality and alertness to the most unusual role she's had in too long. The forthright Robert Preston, whose voice always recalls Gable's, is fine, also, as the lawyer whose scruples had been jostled by Fate until Miss Y. came along.

Then, too, there is that excellent actress, Gladys George, as a gay lady who puts the crowning touches on Annie Morgan's success. Edward Arnold, Frank Craven and Jessie Ralph are able as ever, and Willie Best, as a politics-wise attendant, is neatly wry. Between them all they make of this frontier tale a comedy that has the gloss of sophistication. No mean achievement that.

Supporting subjects on the Keith screen are of high order, with the prize going—surprise again—to the following week's "trailer." It's something new in that metier: not a word about "supercolossal," "stupendous" or the like, it's the best advance publicity "Citizen Kane" could get.

An "Information Please," with Louis Bromfield making the fourth, has several fresh quiz angles and the "Dizzy Kitty" color cartoon, while no Disney, is above par.

Leonard Lyons:

New York, May 9.

TRAVEL DEPT.: The story is being told of a gallant Czech who escaped from Prague and fought his way across Europe, secured passage on a British boat, and finally arrived in Canada. There he went to the home of a boyhood friend—one who had foreseen the Nazi menace and left Prague five years ago . . . The new refugee was welcomed by his friend—but was amazed to discover, framed over the fireplace in that house, a large photo of Hitler . . . "And you once believed so fervently in our homeland and in democracy," the new arrival lamented . . . "Oh, that? the Czech-Canadian explained. "I have that picture up there—because it's the only thing that keeps me from being homesick."

LYONS

OBITUARY DEPT.: August Heckscher, who died in Florida last week, had a favorite mahogany clock which he kept in his New York apartment for 40 years. It was an unusual clock, for it seldom needed rewinding. And Heckscher always wound it himself—with a key which he kept on his person . . . The aged realtor wound the clock before he left for Florida. And when his remains were brought back to his New York apartment, they were placed in the living room, in front of that clock . . . It had stopped running, while he was away—stopped, at 2:40 . . . the exact minute which was August Heckscher's last on earth.

REALTY DEPT.: Pietro di Donato, who wrote the best seller, "Christ in Concrete," used to be a bricklayer, near Centerport, Long Island. Recently, the young author purchased a home there, and some redecorating is necessary. For that job, di Donato has employed his former employer.

ART DEPT.: Lois Quintanilla, the Spanish artist, has spent the past year completing a fresco in Kansas City. It will be finished at the end of this month . . . In that fresco, Quintanilla had two favorite models posing for him—both the night superintendent, as well as the president of the University of Kansas . . . The artist has called that fresco "Don Quixote."

HISTORY DEPT.: A recent arrival from Paris relates this tale now is being told in Montmartre: Hitler sent for France's most famous Biblical teacher, and asked him: "How did Moses get his flock across the Red Sea?" . . . "He did it very easily," said the Biblical teacher. "He had a magic wand, with which he touched the waters of the sea. The waters parted, and Moses was able to walk his flock across" . . . "I know all that," said Hitler, "but where is that famous magic wand now? I need it now" . . . "It's accessible," was the answer. "It's in the British Museum in London."

MUSIC DEPT.: Edna Phillips is the harpist who recently played the premiere of the "From Childhod" Suite, with the Philadelphia Orchestra. She was to repeat that performance in Toronto, on Monday night . . . Her manager sent photos of Miss Phillips to the Canadian newspapers, in advance of her appearance there. One of the photos was quickly returned. It showed the harpist's hands, while playing, and the caption reported that her fingers were on the G, B, D and F strings . . . Across the return envelope was scrawled: "Refused by Censor—Code Message Enclosed."

PHOTO DEPT.: Last week John Steuart Curry presented the Art Directors Club medal for color photography to Edward Steichen . . . "This must be an old experience for you," Steichen told Curry, "but I'm quite excited. I've been doing color photography for 25 years—and this is my first medal" . . . "Mr. Steichen, I've been on 100 juries selecting these prizes," Curry confessed, "—but nobody ever gave one to me."

BOOK DEPT.: Leo Lania is the author of the forthcoming book, "The Darkest Hour," which describes his escape from a concentration camp. On the back cover appears a photo of the Provisional passport issued to Lania by Taylor W. Gannett, the United States vice-consul in Paris . . . Lania submitted his book to the State Department, before publication. They made one deletion—removing the reproduction of Gannet's signature—to prevent forgers from reproducing it.

A Streamlined 'Sis Hopkins' Is at the Met.

"Sis Hopkins," your childhood friend, is considerably streamlined in the 1941 version, starring Judy Canova. But she's still a good ole country girl with hayseed in her hair who says the wrong thing at the rigght time and does the right thing at the wrong time.

College rhythm, modern plumbing, mink coats and Minsky's finest are tangled up with the new Sis. Also she gets a chance to masquerade as Cleopatra, Marie Antoinette and a glamour girl. But don't let that scare you. Judy Canova-Sis Hopkins never loses her happy hickishness. We think that Rose Melville, the original Sis Hopkins, being a smart trouper, would probably approve the celluloid Sis.

Sis leaves the farm in the first reel though Director Joseph Santley burns the farmhouse down to get her away from the cows and chickens. Her uncle, a wealthy but unreconstructed plumber (Charles Butterworth), takes her home to live with his so-snooty wife and daughter. After Sis upsets a musicale with hill-billy songs, awakes the family at six in the morning for breakfast, she's packed off to college as the easiest way out.

It's when Sis reaches college that the picture begins to fall into movie patterning. While she's painting scenery for the college play it's discovered that she has a voice (one short section of the Canova yodeling should convince anyone). She becomes the star of the show, but arouses the jealousy of her cousin (played by that cunning bit of confectionery, Susan Hayward) who tangles poor Sis into singing in a burlesque show as part of a phony sorority initiation.

Though Judy Canova needs no comedy help, she's abetted tremendously by Charles Butterworth and Jerry Colonna. There's nothing subtle about the fun, but subtlety would be highly out of place in "Sis Hopkins." There are plenty of good songs, especially "That Ain't Hay" and "Well, Well." Bob Crosby shows a certain family resemblance to his inimitable brother, Bing.

A Sun Valley sports short uniquely condenses the year-round diversion possibilities of this enchanted dale. It's sleigh rides in the winter, hay rides in the summer. Skating on real ice in December and on artificial ice in July. Swimming is in order all year round, with pools warmed by hot springs in cold weather. The current cartoon is "Porky's Ant."

In Hollywood

Hollywood, May 9.

Frank Lloyd, on location at Lake Tahoe, with hit, "I, James Lewis" company, ran into a snag with the Washoe Indians, who share their race's fear of the camera.

HOPPER

Offers of big money for extra work left them cold, and Frank was at his wit's end till some one tipped him off that they were crazy about pictures of the stars. Now, he's had albums made up with 25 autographed photos of our leading lights, and he's got more extras than he can shake an album at.

Some of the best yarns in this town come from Harry Carey. He's writing the "Saga of a Bronx Cowboy," and it'll include anecdotes of his boyhood in the Bronx, his law school work with Jimmy Walker, and his 33 years in pictures.

Casting for Johnny Mack Brown's new Western struck a snag last week when they still hadn't located a gal who could twirl a lariat. But leave it to the good old three-a-day. They've signed up a vaudeville rope caster named Nell O'Day, who hails from Brooklyn.

Now that Marlene has settled her income tax problems, she'll no doubt be giving parties for those rocks of emeralds which the government has been holding all these years.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Now if the same judges don't return to the scene of their crime and mess up the program again, the Harry Jeffra-Joey Archibald affair at Griffith Stadium Monday evening might well be worth a bob of anybody's money. We mention this at the request of Promoter Joe Turner, who has a slight monetary interest in the proceedings.

POVICH

The last time they fought it was the occasion of the Great Griffith Stadium Holdup—when they held up Archibald's hand and called him the winner and still champion. That evening, one astigmatic judge, who must have been watching some other fight, sided with Referee Benny Leonard in voting Archibald the winner, and was Archibald surprised? Especially after what had been happening to him in the ring.

Monday night's fight has been kicked around for a couple of years, incidentally. It has depreciated considerably since that September evening in 1939 when Washington fans were demanding a rematch after hearing the outrageous decision in favor of Archibald. Jeffra vs. Archibald, a hot attraction at the time, has lost much of its tang, and is now being hashed up as a cold dish.

Jeffra was crying for another fight after getting the gimmick from the judges. He knew Archibald's title was ripe for plucking if he could get the Providence lad into the ring again, but Archibald and Al Weil, his manager, were exceedingly wary of another test with the smart Baltimore boxer. They took their title back to New England and put it in storage.

Meanwhile Jeffra inherited the New York-Maryland version of the featherweight title and a bit later, the N. B. A. stripped Archibald of his championship and handed it over to Pete Scalzo. Titleless now, Archibald exhibited new interest in a Jeffra fight and the match was supposed to be on at Uline's Arena last winter until several things happened.

The first thing that happened was Archibald's unfortunate knockout in a couple of rounds by one Larry Bulvin, who never had been rated as important. Promoter Turner, alarmed by that turn of events, suffered frigidity in the region of the feet and moved the Jeffra-Archibald bout from Uline's to his own arena, as a retrenchment measure. He wanted to duck the high rent at Uline's now that his match had lost some of his attractiveness.

But over in Baltimore, Max Waxman, Jeffra's manager, was in no mood to permit his fighter to risk even a tainted title in so small an arena as Turner's. Waxman knew he would be the laughing stock of the fistic fraternity if he permitted his man to fight before a mere 2,400 fans and put his title on the line. Even at a time when Archibald appeared to be a soft touch for Jeffra, Waxman had no taste for the fight. Miraculously, Jeffra turned up with a bruised hand during training and the fight was called off.

So now it's on again, this time at Griffith Stadium, where his take of the gate might possibly compensate Jeffra for any risk he is taking against Archibald. But as a hot match for Washington, the fight is two years too late. The 1941 version of Jeffra vs. Archibald is not nearly so intriguing as it would have been in 1939, when Washington fans were feeling outraged by the Great Holdup.

At that, the fight has its interesting angles. Archibald has never failed to excite the Washington customers, whether he was winning a wrong-way decision, or coming up off the floor to belt his way to victory, or claiming a foul or simply by acting unhurt when he was very much hurt. Something always happens in Archibald's favor in Washington. He may be a bum in other precincts, but the cold fact is that he has never been licked in 19 Washington appearances. There are folks who will string along with a guy like that.

The movement to draft Col. Heinie Miller as the referee for Monday's fight is also something in the bout's favor. It will be refreshing, at least. Miller will not be a train-mate of Al Weil's, as was Benny Leonard, when Leonard was imported to referee their last battle. When Miller was secretary of the District Boxing Commission, he was still a better referee than most of the gentlemen who were officiating main bouts here.

There isn't much doubt that Jeffra owns whatever class will be in the ring Monday night. Archibald is a crude sort of journeyman who carries his chances of winning in what his right hand contains, plus an applaudable ability to take it on the chin to a certain extent. He doesn't pretend to be a boxer, which would be an absurd pretention on his part anyway.

Jeffra's best fights are far behind him. He gets by now on his native smartness and ring lore. He can outbox the like of Archibald every day in the week and will probably do that thing on Monday night, provided he isn't merely a tired old man of the prize ring.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

New York, May 9.—Billy Herman trotted into the Brooklyn dugout after his workout before the game against the Cardinals. He sat down next to us, took off his cap and wiped his brown, plump face. He said he was glad to be with Brooklyn. But that wasn't what we wanted, so we asked him to tell us how he got his reputation as a clubhouse lawyer.

CONSIDINE

A clubhouse lawyer is a term of considerable contempt in baseball. It is affixed, often loosely, to players who speak their minds against the management or against anything else that disturbs them. It is a term that has a way of sticking with a player, once he gets it, whether he can acquit himself of the charge or not. Herman got his with the Cubs a few years ago and though he has played hard, and well, and loyally since then it has stuck to him as gummily as his new Dodger shirt now stuck to him, while he sat there on the bench.

HE CHUCKLED a little, but there wasn't any mirth about him. "I hate to even talk about that," he said. "But for once and all, here's the real story. A few years ago a sports writer came up to me and asked me what I had in mind for the future. I remember exactly what I told him. I said, 'I'd like to stay in baseball. It's a great game, and a great business. I've given a big part of my life to it, so I'd like to stay in it. I'd like to be a manager some day.'

"Well, when the story came out it was worded in such a way as to make it look as if I was after somebody's job. From there I became an 'underminer' and so on. For a while I tried to explain that any guy had the right to be ambitious; that in any other business it was considered a fine thing to look ahead and try to improve your job. But no dice. I was a clubhouse lawyer and that was that. I decided that it was wrong to talk out loud about advancing yourself in baseball . . . Funny, eh?"

Herman stretched out his legs and put his cap back on his head and wheezed a slight sigh. Then he looked up into the crowd of 32,039 packed in the stands at Ebbets field and he grinned. "Isn't this great? A fellow's got to give his best for a town that turns out like this on a weekday. It gets under a ballplayer's skin—just like being traded off a down-and-out team onto one that's going places."

Billy had made seven hits all this season as a cub, and had not driven in a run. In his first game with Brooklyn he made four hits in four times at bat, then made a hit his first time at bat in his second game, to make it five in a row, and got another before the day was out. He singled early in his third game to equal his season's output as a cub.

"Part of it's in the outlook, I guess," he explained. "When you're with a team that's down—a team that doesn't care much whether it wins or loses, because it knows it isn't going any place—something goes out of you. This is a team game, after all. You don't find many guys on hopeless teams who stand out. Most of them fall into the rut. But when you get with a bunch like this! . . . We're going to win that pennant.

"Some people say we're a red-hot club. We're not. That is, we're not a club that's playing over its head. The tough games we've been winning were won because we had the stuff to come through. The red-hot team in this league is St. Louis. They're over the head by a country mile right now. We're just in the groove, that's all. . . . Excuse me, I've gotta go to work."

And the intelligent fellow with two reputations, one as an excellent second baseman and the other as a termite, picked up his glove and trotted out on the field to add a little more luster to the former and subtract a little more from the unjust latter.

Special Articles by Considine

Starting Monday and continuing thru Thursday, Bob Considine will write a series of special articles on the pennant prospects of the two major baseball leagues. These are in addition to Considine's regular column. Look for the first article in Monday's Post.

Our Boots May Not Start in Preakness

By Sid Feder

Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore, May 9.—Headed by the Kentucky cannonball, Warren Wright's Whirlaway, a field of eight colts was entered today for tomorrow's fifty-first running of the Preakness, with old man mud a possible added starter.

Of the eight named to shoot for the jackpot of about $50,000, only one—Our Boots, standard bearer of the Woodvale Farm of Royce Martin, of Toledo—appeared other than a certain starter, despite the rain which poured down for hours on Pimlico's racing strip today.

Our Boots, one of the three in this field who chased Whirlaway home in his record-smashing Derby run a week ago, did not come out of that tussle any too well. Trainer Steve Judge dropped the colt's name into the entry box with a large order of doubt and said he wouldn't decide until sometime tomorrow whether the son of Bulldog would answer when the band calls them out with "Maryland, My Maryland."

Although the weather man promised smiling skies for tomorrow, today's downpour and a threat of another shower or two tonight left it a toss-up whether the mud-runners would have all the best of it in the mile and three-sixteenths run.

It was generally agreed that while the chances for a lightning fast track were slimmer than a bettor's bankroll on getaway day, there was a likelihood for good footing on a drying out strip with no more rain between now and Preakness post time, 4:45 p. m. (E. S. T.).

Wet or dry, it appeared tonight the expected crowd of 40,000 would make Whirlaway a lop-sided favorite, probably odds-on, by post time, so completely did he and the "one-two punch" of Trainer Ben Jones and Jockey Eddie Arcaro stand out over the field.

Appeal for Taxless Sports Equipment Lost by Griffith

By the Associated Press

Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics for the Big Ten Conference, appealed to the House Ways and Means Committee today to reject a proposed 10 per cent tax on baseball and football equipment and similar sporting goods.

He said that if youths did not participate in such sports they would grow soft. Representative Doughton (Democrat) of North Carolina, chairman of the committee, suggested that they could get their exercise from "foot races," which are untaxed.

Pimlico Changes First Race Time

Post time for the first race today at Pimlico has been moved up 30 minutes to 1:45 p. m., with the daily double window closing 15 minutes earlier. The Preakness field is slated to go to the post at 4:45 p. m., Washington time.

Nats Engage Philadelphia Here Today

The unpredictable Nats, who went into the West like lambs and came out of it like lions, move back into Griffith Stadium today established as a new power in American League circles.

They will expose their current three-game winning streak to the efforts of the Philadelphia Athletics this afternoon in the start of a three-game series. Walter Masterson is Manager Bucky Harris' pitching choice for the series opener.

To date, the Nats' record against the Athletics is a round .000. But the two clubs have met only once, the A's winning that one when Ken Chase desecrated a 6-to-1 lead.

Manager Bucky Harris believes now that he has discovered a winning lin-up, plus he comfort of effective pitching. Since Jim Vernon was restored to first base and Jimmy Bloodworth was given another chance at the second base job, Harris' club has been clicking.

Travis' Bat Helps

Prime mover in the Nats' late success has been, of course, Cecil Travis, who has maintained the league's batting lead since the start of the season. Washington fans will be glimpsing the transformed Travis for the first time. Not until the Nats hit the road did Travis begin

Slugger Honored For 1907 Home Run; Ball Still A.W.O.L.

By the Associated Press

Harriman, Tenn., May 9.—Way back in 1907 Bain Stewart hit a home run here. No one knows the distance it went, for the ball was never found.

Harriman sports fans put on their best duds tonight for a banquet honoring Stewart for "the longest home run ever hit in Harriman."

Stewart, who once aspired to a professional baseball career, is director of personnel for the State government. Several years ago Nashville friends gave him a gold key, dubbing him "All-America Football Fan."

Billy Soose Takes Decision From Overlin

Crowd of 13,000 Fans Astonished at Verdict, After Old Tar Appeared to Have Wide Margin

By Bob Considine

New York, May 9.—By the grace of one of the most preposterous decisions in boxing history, Billy Soose was awarded the New York end of the middleweight championship tonight at Madison Square Garden, after Ken Overlin, the old tar who owned the title, appeared to have won 12 of the 15 rounds.

The astonished crowd of 13,000, including a big gathering of Soose's Pennsylvania rooters who had made the former Penn State boxer a 2-1 favorite to win, let loose a thundering boo at the ridiculous verdict. It continued the boo with such deafening ferocity that it drowned out the announcement of the next fight's principals.

No one in Soose's corner expressed rapt surprise at the verdict, even though Trainer Ray Arcel had loudly cursed Soose for his indifferent fighting from the fourth round until the end.

There was a look of apparently genuine chagrin on Overlin's manager, Chris Dundee, and over Overlin's unmarked pan spread a cloud of utter bewilderment. The fighters got out of the ring in a surprising hurry, and there is not much doubt that they will be rematched in the near future.

The decision was unanimous. Referee Arthur Donovan gave Soose eight rounds, Overlin seven, Judge Marty Monroe did the same. Judge Bill Healy gave Soose nine rounds, Overlin five and called one even.

The verdict erupted a wild scene at ringside. In the rolling breakers of the boos, reporters stood up with looks of blank disbelief, while others tore up their partly finished

Proselyting Charged to Coast Schools

By International News Service

San Francisco, May 9.—Coast Athletic Commissioner Edwin N. Atherton tonight charged five colleges with recruiting and subsidizing athletes in violation of the conference's antiproselyting rule.

The accused conference members were named as Stanford University, University of Washington, University of Oregon, Oregon State and Washington State. The infractions involved a total of 23 students now enrolled as freshmen, most of them football players. Two of the 23 were barred from two colleges, making 25, the total number of violations.

Stanford, in addition to being accused of subsidizing eight first year men, also was charged with subjecting 13 members of all-star Oklahoma and Texas High School teams to "an organized campaign to effect their enrollment."

Of the eight freshmen involved in the Stanford case, seven are football players and one a track athlete. Oregon was charged with recruiting five football players and three basketball-baseball men. All three cases at Oregon State involved football players, as did the four at Washington State and the two at Washington.

"The penalty provided is that the schools are deprived of the athletic competition of the boys involved," Atherton stated. "Investigation has disclosed violations of these rules, in some instances by staff members, but more generally by alumni."

St. Louis Uncorks Batting Fury on Rapid Robert, Breaks A Three-Year Jinx

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, May 9.—The Browns won the game of the day in the major leagues today, knocking out rapid Robert Feller and beating the Cleveland Indians, 9 to 6, for their first victory over the speedball pitcher since 1938.

The other game scheduled in the American League, Detroit at Chicago, was postponed because of cold weather, and the two National League games, Boston at New York and Brooklyn at Philadelphia, were called off because of rain.

The lowly Browns, whose giant-killing feats had much to do with Cleveland's downfall last season, broke the Feller jinx with a surge of batting power that overcame what appeared to be a discouraging four-run handicap.

Browns Start on Feller

The Indians, slapping out singles with abandon, rolled their quartet of runs across the plate against Vernon Kennedy in the second inning and Feller seemed on his easy way to his sixth victory of the year. He wound up with his second defeat.

In the third inning, Harlond Clift singled, Alan Strange hit his second double and Chet Laabs walked to fill the bases for the Browns. Roy Cullenbine, Brooklyn's one-time $25,000 bust who is becoming a batting beauty with the Browns, then cleaned the sacks with a resounding triple.

Feller was driven out in the next inning when the tailenders of the Browns' batting order started them off on a four-run rally.

Feller Goes to Showers

Don Heffner walked, Frank Grube singled and Kennedy himself then batted the tying run across with a single. Clift's double counted two more runs and Laabs' single scored the fourth and sent Feller to the showers.

The rest was anticlimax.

Rip Radcliff hit a home run for the Browns in the fifth and he tripled and scored on an error in the seventh.

The Indians counted their last two runs in the fifth, Hal Tosky hitting a single with the bases loaded after an error had kept Kennedy from retiring the side in order.

The Browns' veteran, while with the Chicago White Sox, pitched a no-hit, no-run game against Cleveland August 31, 1935.

Marberry, who is in his twentieth year of professional baseball, hoped to catch on with some other club and finish out the season.

Big Firpo, former star relief twirler for the Washington Senators, declared he wanted to wind up this season in harness so he will have finished two decades in the game.

Penn State Upsets Hoyas, 5-4, in Rain to Take Golf Lead

G. U.'s First League Loss In 3 Years

Donahue's 72 Tops Losers; Hilltop Team Meets Pitt And Cornell Today

State College, Pa., May 9.—Penn upset Georgetown's golf team this afternoon, 5 to 4, to take the lead in the Southern division of the Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Association.

The home team, playing on a rain-drenched course, handed the Hoyas their first defeat of the season and their initial association setback in three years of competition.

Coach Tony Silvester switched his star linksman, Jack Donahue, to the No. 5 position and benched his captain, Dick Harris. Despite Donahue's easy triumph over State's sophomore, Don Hart, the line-up change brought no further dividends to the visitors who dropped all three points in the No. 2 foursome, and lost the match when Buddy Sharkey and Dick Meyer, dropped the best ball in the No. 1 foursome to Don Leyden and Scotty Maxwell.

Meyer Beaten

Penn State's other point came when Leyden won from Meyer, 4 and 3.

Donahue was in top form in carding a fine, three over par. Johnny Smith also turned in a 72, but State's Chuck Seebold and Bob Wallace listed a 70 and 71 respectively.

Sharing medal honors with Wallace for the afternoon was Princeton's Arnold Zimmerman, who led his team to a 5 to 4 triumph over Cornell. Pittsburgh defeated Pennsylvania, 5 to 4, winning the deciding point on the twenty-second green.

The Hoyas still have a fighting chance for the championship if they can defeat Pittsburgh and Cornell tomorrow and either Princeton or Pennsylvania can upset the Lions.

Buddy Sharkey (Georgetown) defeated Scotty Maxwell, 1 up.

Bob Wallace (Penn State) defeated Bill Rohrey, 4 and 3.

Chuck Seebold (Penn State) defeated Tom Halligan, 4 and 3. Best ball won by Penn State, 5 and 4.

Jeffra Asks Fair Break In Judging

Representative Thomas D'Allesandro, of Maryland, an ardent boxing fan, and Max Waxman, manager of Harry Jeffra, of Baltimore, the featherweight titleholder, yesterday appeared before the District Boxing Commission and asked for a "fair break in officiating" for Monday night's 15-round championship match between Jeffra and Joey Archibald, the erstwhile titleholder, at Griffith Stadium.

"We don't want a repetition of that last fiasco here," the two-fisted D'Allesandro told the commission.

And Waxman, who shared a crying spell with Jeffra when the latter lost at the ball park to Archibald in October, 1939, chimed in with "Harry best 'im the first time, and they gave it to Archibald—and he proved he did when he won easily in Baltimore last year."

D'Allesandro will be Waxman's guest along with a number of other "Old Line" Congressmen Monday night.

The Commission, however, informed Waxman and D'Allesandro that its officials are among the best in the country, honest and upright men and that definitely there will be no guest referee.

Meanwhile Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, arrived on the scene, and offered his services as referee. Kearns found no response.

Archibald and Jeffra will wind up their training this afternoon. Archibald will hold his final public workout at Turner's Arena at 1, and there'll be no more gloves for him until the bell clangs at about 10 p. m. Monday.

David Takes First-Day Honors In Arlington Hall Horse Show

By Anne Hagner

Displaying all the jumping ability of his widely known sire, Jackie Warren's David won the student hunters' event in the opening session of the Arlington Hall College Horse Show yesterday afternoon at the nearby Virginia school.

The oddly marked gray gelding, son of Mrs. Altemus Whitney's Bon Nuit, also took the student hacks class with young Miss Warren aboard, thus becoming the outstanding entry of the day.

Second in the outing for hunters, over part of the outside course, was the Landon School's Royal Betty, who topped Fritz Kleemann's Cagliari and Barbara Young's Irish Gray for the minor awards.

In the walk-trot-canter event, David scored over Kleemann's Madam Boo; Margaret Hill's new 3-year-old, Yardstick, and Kleemann's Ocean Breeze, who wound up in that order.

Hardest workout of the day came during the competition for the advanced horsemanship class, when Susan Ronehart finally survived an hour of complicated maneuverings to win her third straight horsemanship competition in the Arlington ring.

Nancy Miller, newly elected president of the host college student body for next year, was second, and Ellie Leh, mounted on her open jumper, King Rock, was third.

Miss Leh's bay flash came back in the last class, for open jumpers, to win after two jump-offs over Miss Miller on Vospex, and two Landon School entries, Jack Devereaux on Headrock and Billy Patch on Chico.

With only two junior events remaining, today's session will commence at 9 a. m. and will feature a long list of hunter and jumper classes, climaxed by the Kismet Memorial $200 jumper stake and the outdoor high jumping championship.

Already entered in the high-jump are Mrs. D. N. Lee's Clover Seed, from Middleburg; Jane Briggs' Marina, from Bloomfield Hills, Mich.; Fenton Fadeley's Cavalryman, and Kleemann's Comanche. Port entries are expected to boost the number to approximately ten contestants for the big trophy donated by Arlington Hall.

In the $200 class, such good fencers as Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bogley's Ringmaster, Lisbeth Stieg's Hi-Ho, Ellie Leh's King Rock, and Fort Myer's Enterprise, Smacko, Clipped Wings and Black Beauty will compete with Clover Seed, Marina and Cavalryman.

Lead Changes In Two Classes Of Pin Event

Leads in two classes changed last night in the fourteenth day's competition in the 20-day City of Washington duckpin championships. Ernie Hauser and Ernie Burkhalter took the top spot in unlimited doubles with 751 as Hauser rolled a set of 385. Meantime, National Resources Planning Board, with 1,740, displaced Treasury No. 1 in the lead among Class A teams. Treasury slipped into second with 1,701.

Marty Alexander, representing Raybestos of the Rosslyn Independent League, posted 411 to barely miss high score in unlimited singles. His count left him in second place only two pins behind Fred Murphy.

Highest Class A team score of the night was 1,735 by Diamond Appliance of the Silver Spring American League, which took eighth place in that section. Nick Rinaldi and Joe Cicala, with 722, got eighth place in Class A doubles.

Martin's Cleaners of the Arlington County League won a tie for third place in Class D with 1,677.

BROOKLAND

Emma Bourne's 361 set led her Federal Litho girls to the odd game over Brookland Recreation last night to give them the championship of the Brookland Ladies' League. The Litho girls also took high set with a 1,552. Gemeny's Flowers, tied with the Litho girls until last night, lost two tilts to Gartrell's Champs and finished in second place, with Gulf Service next by virtue of three sixths over Brookland Garage. Hope Wilkinson, Brookland Recreation, rolled high game of 145 and had near-high set of 341.

ICE PALACE

The Ice Palace Summer Industrial Loop had its inaugural last night with Jack Jaekerson sparking a sweep by his Charpal Grill team over Essex Construction with individual highs of 142-381. Les Robinson, Camden Tavern, led an attack for the odd game win over Theta Delta Chi with a 137 game and 364 set, while the R. J. O'Neill & Co. boys scored a 3-0 victory over Swagart's Market.

Cruickshank Named Cox's Chief Aide

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., May 9.—The Mid-Atlantic Professional Golfers' Association moved to end its internal strife today with an announcement by President Wiffy Cox of Washington that Bobby Cruickshank, of Richmond, has been named vice president for Virginia and that at least four of the mid-Atlantic events, including the National P. G. A. qualifying round would be held in the Old Dominion this year.

The mid-Atlantic controversy, involving Virginia and District of Columbia pros, reached a head last year, when the Virginians, led by Cruickshank, boycotted the Mid-Atlantic tourney because Chandler Harper, of Portsmouth, was not allowed to play. Officials at the Chamberlin course, where the tourney was to be held, called the whole thing off by withdrawing its prize money guarantee.

Cox, in making his announcement today, said Harper now was a member in good standing in the P. G. A. and would be eligible to compete in all events.

The tournaments assigned to Virginia have not been placed as yet, but Cruickshank, who will serve as tournament chairman for the State, said he hoped to place them all shortly.

The schedule, as outlined by Cox, would put one-day pro-amateur events in this State on June 2 and August 25. A mid-Atlantic 36-hole open would be played in October and the National P. G. A. qualifying round would be assigned to a Richmond course, probably on Monday, June 9.

The District of Columbia would have four pro-amateurs and Maryland three. Each will have one 36-hole open similar to the one scheduled for this State. The annual mid-Atlantic championship, still unscheduled, would complete the program.

Cruickshank expressed belief that the new schedule would help cement the relationships between the Virginia and District of Columbia pros. He also asked that clubs interested in playing host to one of the tourneys in the State contact him at once.

Hank Greenberg To Be Assigned To LouisianaCamp

By the Associated Press

Battle Creek, Mich., May 9.—Lieut. Col. Hammond D. Birks, commander of the Fort Custer Reception Center, said today that Private Hank Greenberg, former star outfielder of the Detroit Tigers, will be assigned to Camp Livingston, La., where he will join the Thirty-second Division.

Greenberg probably will leave Fort Custer May 15, Lieut. Col. Birks said.

Asked this morning concerning a report he might quit baseball, Hank said: "It's utterly ridiculous; as soon as I get out of the Army I'll play ball again. It's the only thing I can do."

At his classification today Greenberg asked for assignment to combat service in the Infantry. He expressed no preference regarding the camp at which he desired to train. "Anywhere O. K.," he wrote on his questionnaire.

Louis Shows Sharp Punch In Drill Here

By Tony Neri.

Joe Louis, the imperturbable heavyweight champion of the world, opened a busy two-week training program yesterday at Riverside Stadium in preparation for the seventeenth defense of his title against Buddy Baer, May 23, at Griffith Stadium.

The champion showed some 450 onlookers that a month lay-off since knocking out Tony Musto in St. Louis has not dulled his razor-edge sharpness.

Under the watchful eye of his faithful trainer—Jack Blackburn—"Shufflin' Joe" worked two rounds each with Al Hart, 210-pound colored heavyweight, and Joe Carillo, of Hartford, Conn.

Cuffs Carillo

Cautioned to take things easy by Trainer Blackburn, Louis was content to spar along with Hart in the first two heats, but in the following two with Carillo the Brown Bomber gave the gentry a sneak preview of the vaunted Louis attack.

He cuffed Carillo at will and at the end of the drill the latter seemed happy it was over.

The champion then skipped rope for about 10 minutes before calling it a day.

Louis will work out every afternoon up until a week from next Thursday with the exception of Tuesday, May 13, reserving that day to observe his birthday. Joe was born in 1914 in Lexington, Alabama.

Williams Works

Holman Williams, Louis' protege, preceded the champion in the ring yesterday. Williams needs no introduction to local fans. He scored over Phil Furr and Bill McDowell in impressive style here. Williams will have a spot on the Louis-Baer card against an opponent to be announced later.

After Louis' workout yesterday, John Roxoborough, the champ's co-manager, announced that George Nicholson, veteran heavyweight, will join the Brown Bomber's trupe as the main sparring partner today. Louis is expected to speed up his drills today and tomorrow. He will work at 3 o'clock at Riverside.

Buddy Baer Floors Sparmate Ritchie

Baer worked three rounds with Ritchie and three with Elza Thompson, big colored heavyweight.

Jimmy Howell, another colored heavyweight, will join the Baer camp today. Izzy Kline, Buddy's trainer, also will be on hand today, after having handled Ken Overlin in his title bout last night against Billy Soose in New York.

Colonials Add Duke to 1943 Grid Schedule

In furtherance of its policy to obtain more athletic relationships with nearby institutions, George Washington University yesterday announced that Duke will be on its home football schedule in 1943 and that Georgia possibly will be added within a few years.

Announcement was made by Max Farrington, director of athletics.

The Colonials will open their 1943 season with Duke at Griffith Stadium Saturday, September 25. There is a strong possibility, according to the announcement that the Blue Devils will return here in 1944 and that the Colonials will invade Durham for a game in 1945. Negotiations for these games are still in the unsettled stage, it was said.

It was revealed that George Washington was unable to accept the request of the University of Georgia for a game here in 1942, since the Colonials were scheduled to meet William and Mary on the same date. It is possible, Farrington said, that G. W. and Georgia will meet in the future.

The Colonial director of athletics said arrangements also had been made to play Duke twice in basketball next winter on a home-and-home basis. George Washington and Duke renewed their court rivalry last season, marking the first time in several years the two schools had met athletically.

The Colonials' 1941 football schedule includes Mount St. Mary's, Washington and Lee, Georgetown, Clemson, Bucknell and Wake Forest here, and Manhattan, William and Mary, and Furman on the road. Since they are meeting five Southern Conference foes, the Colonials will be in the running for the conference championship. To be eligible for the title a school only has to meet four conference rivals.

Woodmont Golfers Continue Hot Pace

Hold Lead in Women's Second Team Matches With Victory Over Indian Spring; Manor Bows

Woodmont maintained its pace at the head of the Second Team matches of the Women's District Golf Association by doubling the score on Indian Spring, 6-3, yesterday at Washington Golf and Country Club and boosting its four-match total to 29 points. Army and Navy defeated Manor, 7-2, and climbed into second place, 1½ points back of the leaders.

The third team leaders, Manor and Army and Navy, met at Kenwood, and the Manorites defeated the Service Club sextet, 5½ to 3½, to top the clubs with a 15½-point total for the three matches. Army and Navy is a point back in second place.

The first teams were idle yesterday and will resume play May 16.

Columbia's No. 1 bracket of Mrs. Myron Davy and Mrs. T. O. Brandon, two of the city's ranking women golfers, found giving handicap strokes too tough a proposition again yesterday and dropped 2½ points to Mrs. F. J. Godfrey and H. A. Knox, of Congressional. The latter team went on to win the match, 5½-3½.

Cancellations hit the teams again yesterday, but of the two women golfers forced to carry on alone, each salvaged a point. Mrs. D. Lockette, Indian Spring, was the heroine for the Four Corners club in the second team play, while Mrs. G. F. Freer, Washington, scored a point for her team in the second matches, although playing against two others.

Terp Lacrosse Team Suffers 13-5 Setback

Baltimore, May 9.—Maryland University's lacrosse team took a terrific shellacking from Mount Washington here tonight, losing, 13 to 5, in spite of getting away to a 3-to-1 lead in the first stanza.

The Terrapins, playing flawlessly, romped away to a two-goal lead and protected it through 15 minutes of snappy play on a damp, chilly night and on a field soaked by a drizzle that did not let up until the second half. The Wolfpack was in subjection under a 3-to-1 score, and Mount Washington had experienced the additional ignominy of scoring the first goal for the opposing team in a mixup in front of the net.

But the lightning struck in the first six minutes of the second session. In that space of time the Wolfpack stormed the Maryland goal for five tallies and so utterly crushed Maryland resistance that the Terps were able to take only one shot in the entire session.

The hard-riding club team fought bitterly for the ball every time the Maryland team stemmed the attack long enough to get possession. In the quarter Maryland was able to clear the sphere from defense to attack only twice in the nine times it gained possession.

Soose Takes Decision From Ken Overlin

A poll showed only two out of 50-odd reporters thought Soose won.

On my score card, Overlin won the first eight rounds, dropped the ninth and tenth and fifteenth, and won the remainder. There were no knockdowns, though Soose slipped to the floor once. It was all science and footwork and brain power and Overlin seemed to lead distinctly in all three departments.

Overlin's Cleverness Penalized

The officials stated after the fight that Overlin forfeited his chances of retaining the title by permitting Soose to carry the fight to him. Soose did just that, more or less. But though Overlin was retreating he was giving ground with the sagacity of an astute naval commander who lures his slicker prey into one trap after another, in the way the clumsy British Ajax beat the streamlined Graf Spee. The odds on Overlin had switched from an underdog status to a 5-to-7 favoritism near the end of the fight, according to quotation of ringside gamblers.

Ties Soose in Knots

The rest of the fight followed that pattern. When Soose got close enough Ken had the guile to tie him in knots and whirl him off balance. Shorter, but stronger than the wiry challenger, Overlin was able to bull Soose so much inside that Soose's corner was soon wailing, "Are you gonna let him bull you all night?"

Soose couldn't nail the bouncing, reeling old salt until the ninth. In that round Billy dug a left hook into Ken's stomach up to the wrist. Hurt, Ken got out of trouble with a lurch and a nautical pull at his tights, threw Billy off by half-slipping and then hit Billy in the mouth with a straight right at the bell.

Soose won the next round, too, by making Ken overly cautious with an overhand right that landed on Ken's jaw. But with the coming of the eleventh Ken bounced out of there as if he had been given two rations of hurricane rum and rocked Soose with a flurry of fighting. He seemed to hold the upper hand from then until the fifteenth when Soose, who was fresher, finished with a ramrod spasm of punching that made Overlin stop the antics which had gummed up Soose's boxing most of the night.

Chris Dundee Seeks Reversal of Verdict

New York, May 9 (INS).—Chris Dundee, manager of Ken Overlin, who lost his middleweight title tonight to Billy Soose in a 15-round fight, which verdict was roundly booed, appealed to Brig. Gen. John J. Phelan, New York boxing commissioner, for a reversal of the decision, immediately after the contest.

Phelan ordered Referee Donovan and Judge Marty Monroe and Bill Healy, all of whom voted for Soose, to appear Tuesday at the boxing commission for a hearing on their decision.

'Skins Sign Sanford and Bill Grimmett

The Washington Redskins yesterday acquired the services of a pair of ends for the 1941 season when Veteran Sandy Sanford and Rookie Bill Grimmett of Tulsa University signed to bring to 23 the number of players in the fold.

Grimmett is reported to be a fine blocker and adept at stripping the interference of end runs. He also is a better-than-average pass receiver. Last season he caught 14 passes good for 141 yards. He is 6-foot-2, weighs 195 pounds, and is to be graduated from Tulsa June 1 with a bachelor of arts degree, history major.

Sanford came to the Redskins last year, touted as a star placement kicker, but was on the injury list most of the season and consequently of little use to the team.

Of the 23 Redskins signed, 11 are veterans and include, besides Sanford: Andy Farkas, Bill Young, Mickey Parks, Frank Filchock, Bob McChesney, Dick Farman, Clyde Shugart, Clem Stralka, Bob Tichenal, and Vic Carroll. The recruits are, besides Grimmett; Sam Babich of George Washington, Roy Conn of Arizona, Ed Hickerson of Alabama, Bill Bryant of Gonzaga, Sam Goldman of Howard College, Jim Reichey of Georgetown, Fred Davis of Alabama, Jack Banta of Southern California, Bill Guthrie of St. Mary's, Dick Meyers of East Washington Normal, and Ken Dow of Oregon State.

Bill Briggs Wins Play at East Potomac

Bill Briggs, one of the public links "regulars," won the first East Potomac Invitation tournament yesterday with a 3 and 2 victory over Medalist Ted King in the postponed finals.

Two down at the turn, Briggs put on a sub-par exhibition on the back nine to overcome the lead and win on the sixteenth hole. The winner scored an approximate 74 for the round.

Briggs received a trophy for the victory while King took away two cups, for runner-up and medalist honors. Martin Belino won the consolation on Thursday.

Although disappointed by the small turnout of 16 golfers for the first of what they hoped to be an annual tournament, the public links committeemen plan to hold the event again next year under a different setup.

Yankees Bow, 4-3, To Binghamton

Binghampton, N. Y., May 9 (U.P.)—The New York Yankees today dropped a 4-to-3 decision to Binghampton, of the Eastern League, in an exhibition baseball game that was reduced to five innings because of rain.

By Bill Burnett

After two years of using every trick in the bag of wily Coach "Chief" Guyon to beat Central, Eastern High's baseball club finally accomplished the fact yesterday by the most direct method—slugging.

Noised out for the public school crown in 1939 and 1940 by heavy hitting Central squads, the White Tide turned on a stream of 12 hits yesterday to down the Vikings, 12-2. The gae between last year's interhigh champion and runner-up, played at Eastern, featured a three-game schedule in the series.

At Anacostia the host team suffered a 1-0 setback by Tech, and at Western the hosts came out of a one-sided slugfest with a 7-3 decision over Wilson. The games left Eastern and Central tied for top spot in the standings.

Only Four Hits

Four hits Eastern's Kenny Deavers spread over eight innings as he convincingly silenced Central's biggest guns. And by way of giving hi every aid possible, his mates bunched their hits and played classy ball throughout to end Central's unbeaten streak in the series.

Webb Whiffs Ten

A pitchers' battle with a vengeance resulted during Tech's slim triumph over Anacostia. Buddy Webb, the winner, issued four safeties but was bettered in that department by the Indians' Elmer Leukhardt, a converted first baseman, who allowed only three. Webb struck out 10 batsmen to Leukhardt's three, however.

Tech's winning run came in the first inning, and was unearned. The first batter up, Kelley Lewis, hit a soft grounder to Bob Nolte who relayed to Jim Flaherty at first. The latter dropped the ball, allowing Lewis to continue to second. Martin Green grounded out to first, unassisted, moving Lewis to third, and he scored from there on Joe Bryan's sacrifice.

Decision Argued

Each team made several threats during the remainder of the game, but Tech's seventh inning uprising was the most serious. Two mates were on base and two out when Martin Green smashed what appeared to be a certain triple. He forgot to touch first, however according to Umpire Shoemaker. The decision brought such "kicks" from Trainer players that shoemaker almost forfeited the game to Anacostia.

Hilleary Paces Western

Both stellar performers turned in three hits as Western scored first in the second inning, added steadily to its total as Wilson pushed over its only counters in the sixth and eighth periods. Hilleary, playing at third, registered three singles in five trips. Leach needed only a home run to complete the "circuit," getting a single, double and triple in four times.

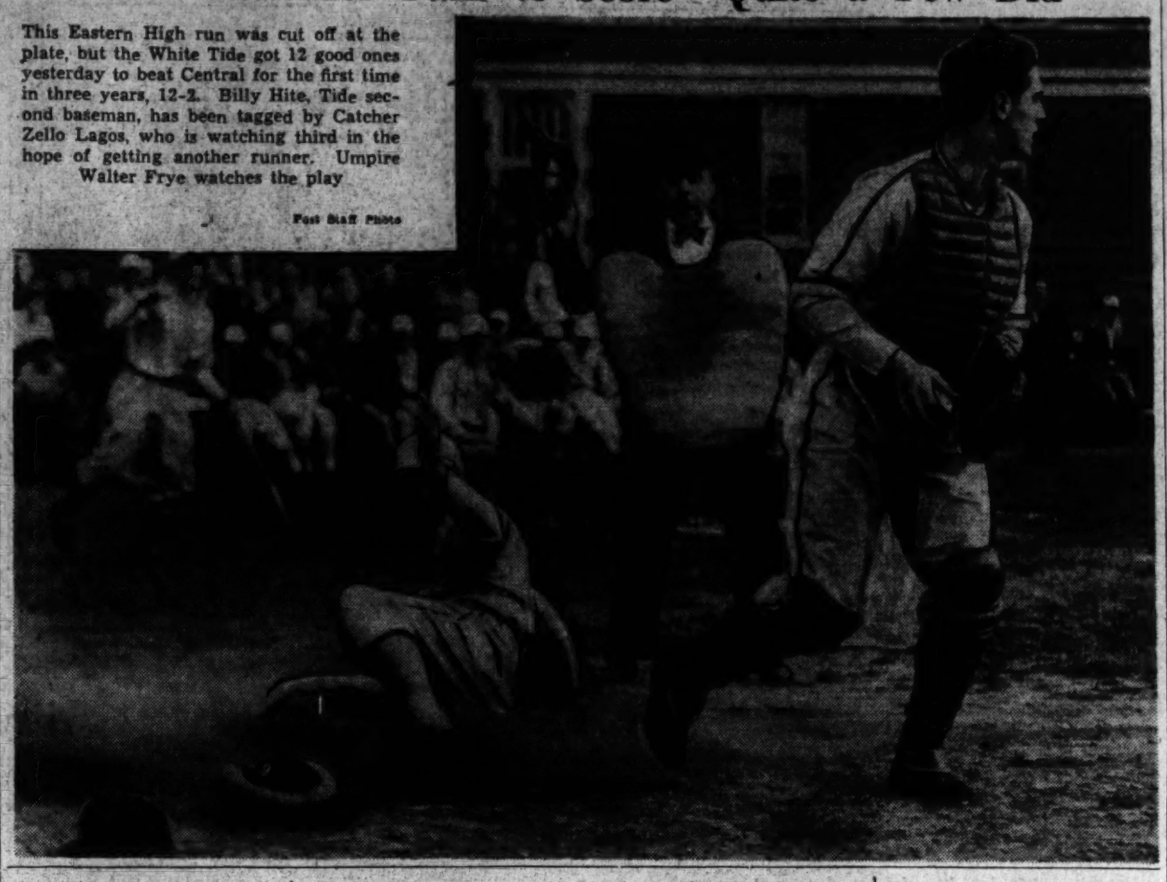
One Easterner Fails to Score—Quite a Few Did



This Eastern High run was cut off at the plate, but the White Tide got 12 good ones yesterday to beat Central for the first time in three years, 12-2. Landon Wins On 4-Hit Job By Baker, 18-2

Shackled by a four-hit performance by Paul Baker, Landon's big righthander, Calvin Coolidge nine suffered an 18-2 beating yesterday on the Landon Field.

A triple by Churck Botelar in the first inning, scoring two mates, sent the hosts away winging, and they added seven counters in the second inning, five in the third, one in the fourth and three in the fifth. Coolidge's only points came in the third stanza.

With a single, double and triple in three times at bat, Landon's Outfielder Brett paced the winning 12-hit attack.

Colonial and Eagle Games Rained Out

The baseball game scheduled here yesterday between American University and Loyola, of Baltimore, was postponed because of the blustery weather. It has tentatively been rescheduled for next Tuesday. The George Washington University game at Western Maryland also was rained out. It will be played at a later date.

American U. Forfeits Meet With Gallaudet

Unprecedented Move Cancels Today's Event; Hoyas Meet Maryland Nine at College Park

By Jack Munhall

In a move probably without precedent for small Gallaudet College, where athletic material always is scarce, the Blues yesterday were awarded a sports victory by forfeit when American University decided it could not defeat Gallaudet in a track meet scheduled today.

In announcing the forfeit, American University pointed to Gallaudet's victories over Loyola, of Baltimore, and Johns Hopkins against a lone and narrow loss to Randolph-Macon as evidence of the Blues' overwhelming superiority over the Eagles.

The forfeit reduced to but two events the college major sports program here today, baseball between Georgetown and Maryland at 1:30 at College Park, and dual track between Johns Hopkins and Catholic University at 2:30 at Brookland Stadium.

Maryland tennis and track teams will be busy at Durham, however, and those events together with an attractive list at the Naval Academy should provide sufficient interest for the fans.

Terps In Dual Meet

The Terrapin track team will engage in a dual meet with the powerful Blue Devils while its tennis squad battles Duke, North Carolina and other strong rivals in the annual Southern Conference championships.

Headlining the program at Annapolis is a dual track meet with North Carolina, always a Southern Conference track power, and a baseball game with Virginia. Both events are slated for 1:45, baseball at Lawrence Field and track at Thompson Stadium.

Georgetown will be a top-heavy favorite to defeat Maryland's luckless nine and stride another step toward an undisputed local college baseball championship. An easy conqueror of George Washington, which holds two victories over American University, Georgetown could establish a strong claim to the title by romping over the Terrapins with expected ease.

Opposing on the College Park mound probably will be Vinnie Powers for Georgetown and Boo Smith for Maryland, unless Hoyas Coach Joe Judge decides to gamble with one of his younger pitchers while saving Powers, Bill Wixted and Dick Dieckelman, his left-handed ace, for next week's three-day invasion of the East. Danny Murphy and Joe Wells are two youngsters Judge might shoot against the Old Liners.

Georgetown and Maryland met twice on the diamond last season and both times the Hoyas were triumphant in well-played games. But last year Maryland had a pair of crack pitchers in Earl Springer and Pershing Mondorff and a fairly strong team. Currently the Terrapins can lay claim neither to pitching strength nor all-around ability, for they have been beaten with monotonous regularity.

It is not unlikely that Maryland, as usual, will come up with its best performance against Georgetown, but not for many innings can the Terps be expected to shackle the power of the booming Georgetown bats which rang out 19 hits against highly touted Rutgers and 18 recently against Virginia Tech.

Should Powers pitch today's game for Georgetown it would afford him opportunity to duplicate last year's 6-0 shutout of the Terrapins in the first of the two-game series which was played at the Hilltop. In that encounter Powers turned in a six-hit performance while his Hoya mates drove Art Woodward from the mound with a three-run out burst in the fifth inning.

Nats Engage Philadelphia

to blossom as a power hitter. Since departing Washington 17 days ago, the Nats' one-time slap-hitting shortstop has blossomed as a home-run threat.

His home-run output of five already equals before the end of the first month of the season the best home-run record Travis has owned in any of his eight years in the majors. Swinging from down on the end of his bat despite painful blisters caused by his new grip, Travis leads the league in extra base hits of all descriptions.

Ben Chapman has been restored to his left-field job despite his anemic batting average. George Case, after a hitless streak of 29 times at bat, has collected six hard blows in his last two games, and is again a fixture in the outfield. Steadiest player in the Washington outfield has been Roger Cramer, who has been maintaining a .330 average and making one scintillating, run-saving catch every day for a week.

Three of Harris' pitchers—Dutch Leonard, Sid Hudson and Steve Sundra—won all six of the club's winning games on the road. Each of these right-handers contributed a pair of victories and they have turned in an aggregate of six triumphs in their last seven starts. Harris has seen his pitching become nicely squared away.

Scrappy Bill Joyce, Former Nat Pilot, Dies in St. Louis

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, May 9.—One of baseball's great performers before the turn of the century, William M. (Scrappy Bill) Joyce, 74, died last night.

A third baseman, he captained and managed Washington, the Boston Nationals and the New York Giants. He was succeeded in the managerial post with New York by Cap Anson in 1890.

Charlotte Hall Beaten, 7 to 2, By St. Albans

St. Albans School diamonders, behind Earle Elliott, registered a 7-2 triumph over Charlotte Hall Military Academy nine yesterday with bunched runs in the first and fifth innings.

Elliott tossed a four-hit game at the Cadets, fanning nine and issuing five bases on balls. He was in trouble only in the ninth when C. H. M. A. shoved over both its tallies.

Farrington Boats 425-Pound Marlin On 9-Thread Line

Miami, Fla., May 9 (AP).—Anglers here received a cabled report today that S. Kip Farrington, jr., of New York, had caught a 425-pound striped marlin on 9-thread line off Tocopilla, Chile, to claim a world record for that size tackle.

Lou Transparenti Knocks Out Rivers

Baltimore, May 9 (AP).—Lou Transparenti, Baltimore bantamweight, successfully invaded the featherweight ranks tonight by knocking out Sammy Rivers, of Mexico in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round boxing bout at the Coliseum.

Carl Turner, 143, of Fairmount, W. Va., ran into hard luck in the other half of the double 10-round feature card, losing on a technical kayo in the seventh round to Sammy Julian, 137, New York.

Little Hoyas' Golfers Beat B. C.-C., 6 to 3

Georgetown Prep's smart golf team grabbed an important lead in the Metropolitan section of the D. C. Schoolboy Golf League yesterday, when it suffered a shutout in the first foursome but came ahead in the next two to beat Bethesda-Chevy Chase, its stiffest rival, 6 to 3 at Woodmont.

Neil Sullivan, of the Little Hoyas, and Bethesda's Carroll Willett brought home 78's after a tour of the wind and rain-swept layout. The first turned back Dick Poerstel, 4 and 3, and Willett took one of the losers' three points, 1 up, over Ghecas. Four of the matches were decided on the last hole.

Roosevelt, leader of the interhigh section of play, had little trouble taking an abbreviated match from Central, 5 to 0, at Washington Golf and Country Club. A 75 by Meyers, No. 2 Rider player, proved the best score.

A 74 over the par 72 Congressional course by Earle Skinker, District junior champion, led Devitt to a 6-to-3 victory over St. Alban's. Skinker's effort helped him to a 9 and 8 decision over the Saints' Cousens.

Shutouts were registered by Wilson and Gonzaga in other clashes, the first over Tech and the second over St. John's. Anacostia took an 8-to-1 verdict from Western.

Jockey Haas Suspended for Rough Riding in $5,000 Stake

Rule Permits Him to Ride Porter's Cap

Pimlico, Md., May 9.—Jockey Leon Haas, regular rider of C. S. Howard's Porter's Cap, was suspended for rough riding in the $5,000 added Pimlico Nursery Stakes today. However, under Maryland rules, he can ride out his stake engagements and thus he will be eligible to ride the son of The Porter in tomorrow's Preakness.

For the second straight year, the winner of the 2-year-old classic was from the barn of E. K. Bryson. Joe Ray, a stretch-running son of Infinite, carried the Baltimore colors home in front today, just as Nannykins did last year. However, Joe Ray was not the official winner until after the stewards had weighed a foul claim lodged by Jockey Al Shelhamer, who rode Equipet into third position behind Ben Shaba.

Those who watched the race closely believed that Shelhamer had placed his objection against Black Raider, the favorite, with Haas up. However, the jockey complained about Joe Ray. This is what happened: Black Raider was setting the pace with Equipet, a daughter of Equipoise, lapped on the outside of him. At the stretch turn, Joe Ray came to the outside of the pair.

Instead of banking the turn, Black Raider pulled a "Whirlaway" and bore out, carrying Equipet with him and almost forcing the filly into Joe Ray. Jockey Conn McCreary, on Joe Ray, took pains to keep wide enough to escape bumping and then went on with his mount to win going away.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FIRE LIGHT, $5.00, $3.30, $2.70; BUCK LANGHORNE, $4.40, $3.00; DON ROBERTO, $3.30.

FIRE LIGHT, well handled, took command going to the first fence, drew out while under steadying restraint, was put to a hand ride when challenged by BUCK LANGHORNE and won in hand while drawing far out. BUCK LANGHORNE moved to the leader boldly, could not stay with him and was eased up while holding place safe. DON ROBERTO was not a serious factor at any stage. EPINDEL was a forward factor for a mile.

FOURTH RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:53. Off at 3:53. Winner, C. Lorenz's ch. g. (2), by Wise Pete—Alwington Betty. Trained by C. P. Miles. Value to winner, $700. Time, 0:57.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PETE'S BET, $10.80, $3.60, $2.80; POLLY PRIM, $4.00, $2.70; STEEL BEAM, $3.00.

PETE'S BET, off in the first flight, responded gamely when placed to a hard drive, took command inside the eighth pole and held sway to the end under pressure. POLLY PRIM was forced wide for racing room and closed with good energy. STEEL BEAM was shuffled about early, came gamely when clear and showed a good effort. LONGSTONE set the pace, accompanied by CAN-JONES and weakened in the stretch.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:20½. Off at 4:22. Winner, W. J. Susini's b. f. (3), by Swashbuckler—Becuma. Trained by A. Clarke. Value to winner, $700. Time, 1:15⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BECOMLY, $14.20, $4.40, $2.70; PLEIONE, $3.00, $2.30; BALLOON, $2.90.

BECOMLY came to the outside for racing room and responded to pressure to win going away. PLEIONE raced on the inside in a forward position from the start, disposed of ARGELLA, but could not resist the winner. BALLOON was hard ridden and showed an even race. TODDLE ON closed some ground.

SIXTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $5,000 added. The Pimlico Nursery. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:50½. Off at 4:51½. Winner, E. K. Bryson's ch. c. (2), by Infinite—Glitter. Trained by J. Serio, Jr. Net value to winner, $5,150. Time, 1:02.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JOE RAY, $12.20, $4.80, $3.70; BEN SHABA, $4.50, $3.80; EQUIPET, $6.40.

JOE RAY raced on the outside from the start, was forced wide entering the stretch, responded to strong handling and drew out nearing the close while under a drive. Shelhamer, who rode EQUIPET, made a foul claim against the winner. BEN SHABA raced wide approaching the stretch, was taken to the inside when the leaders went out at the stretch turn and was under pressure to the end. EQUIPET raced head and head with BLACK RAIDER, was carried out by the latter and lacked racing room between BLACK RAIDER and JOE RAY in the early stretch run and was going gamely when clear. BLACK RAIDER could not shake off EQUIPET early, bore out at the stretch turn and weakened at the close.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:26. Off at 5:26½. Winner, W. Wickes' b. m. (5), by Bud Lerner—Belle of Plymouth. Trained by W. Chatman. Value to winner, $700. Time, 1:51⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS FIX IT, $9.10, $4.60, $3.60; STAND IN, $3.70, $3.00; BROOKIE BOY, $6.80.

MISS FIX IT saved ground at the first turn to take command, shook off NICK and opened a long lead to win with speed in reserve. STAND IN was well placed from the start, moved up menacingly entering the stretch and weakened gradually thereafter. BROOKIE BOY was steadied early, came wide for racing room and closed with good energy. KIMESHA saved ground while prominent and tired in the closing test.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:56. Off at 5:56½. Winner, Mrs. A. Knight's br. or blk. g. (8), by Bostonian—Mary Ford. Trained by A. Knight. Value to winner, $700. Time, 1:53¾.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—IN MEMORY, $5.60, $3.40, $2.50; GRAND DUKE, $6.70, $4.20; PERLETTE, $3.00.

IN MEMORY, steadied when in close quarters going to the first turn, came between horses to get to the front and drew out to win with speed in reserve. GRAND DUKE was in trouble early, rallied when placed to a drive and was best of the others. PERLETTE set the pace for the half and stopped. VICTORY LIGHT, slow to begin, moved to contention with a bold rush and then weakened.

Selections at Pimlico

Dear Al:

I've got to hop on the Whirlaway band wagon. He proved he could whip virtually the same field that he meets today. He clicked off that last quarter in 24 seconds, and he probably will have a closing rush approaching that figure today. Trainer Ben Jones seems to have found the double cure for the run-out habits with (1) Jockey Eddie Arcaro and (2) one blinker on the outside. Your guess is as good as the next fellow's on what the track condition will be. Many will swing to Porter's Cap if the going is bad, but Whirlaway will be at home on any kind of oval. In the Pimlico Futurity here last fall, the track was heavy and holding. Whirlaway looked all the part of a winner before he ran to the outside fence. He lost at least eight lengths by that maneuver and was only five lengths behind Bold Irishman and Our Boots at the finish line. Whirlaway is the come-from-behind type and faces a smaller field in the Preakness than in the Derby. The less horses, the less chance for trouble. Porter's Cap doubtless is better on an off track than on a fast one. It is likely that he will not be placed so near the pace this time and should run a better race. However, second looks like the spot at the end. Our Boots did have trouble leaving the gate at Churchill Downs as the pictures reveal. He has worked well for this race, but I don't believe he is horse enough to handle the top pair. If you want to take a shot at the moon, Curious Coin has a better chance than most fans realize. His sire, Brandon Mint, loved the mud and horses by that breeding improve many lengths when the going is rough. Curious Coin has the heart and may jolt the talent. See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—BAY DEAN was a winner over real good jumpers here and appears much the best of this gang. VALPUISEAUX has done about everything asked. BROADSIDE KING for the show end.

Second race—SHOWABAL seems to have a lock and key on this purse. Needs only good handling. ELAMP will like the track and that last was good. MOWART has been waiting for this.

Third race—DOCKET gets the call in this field. Likes the route and is fit and ready. SWYNSTAN gets in light enough to be dangerous. HAPPY HUNTING is improving and deserves attention.

Fourth race—GATE POST won well off at the other track and gets the call over these juveniles. SUNSET BOY has speed as demonstrated here. ALL FREE to take care of the others.

Fifth race—HANDY TOM defeated excellent sprinters at this route. He should make the most of the rail position. NEDAYR is as good as that last, a smashing effort. The Martin entry of SLOW MOTION, ROBERT E. LEE and ABRASION should pick up part of the pay.

Sixth race—WHIRLAWAY, the Kentucky Derby champion, deserves the No. 1 pick as previously stated. PORTER'S CAP and OUR BOOTS for the place and show positions.

Seventh race—MISRULE finished behind CHALLANTE when last they met. However, CHALLANTE has the apprentice mark and will not have McCreary in the saddle. HAREBELL for the minor award.

Eighth race—GENERAL MOWLEE defeated good ones last out. Appears capable of making it two in a row. SON ALTESSE is fit and will be close despite high weight. RONCAT has worked well and could surprise.

Substitute race—If this event is used, I'll take SPANG, ROUGH EGG and WIRE ME.

Best bet—GENERAL MOWLEE.

Local Credit Men to Hear Roy Foulke

Roy A. Foulke, nationally-known financial analyst, will address the Washington Association of Credit Men at a luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Woodward & Lothrop tearoom.

His subject will be "The Balance Sheet of the Future," a recent study of modern accountancy problems based on a survey of 6,000 bankers, accountants, credit men and financial executives.

Foulke is manager of the specialized report department of Dun & Bradstreet and author of numerous brochures on the philosophy of business. His essays are widely distributed in business administration schools of American universities. He is well-known in Washington, where his books are used as texts and references in Georgetown University, Catholic University and George Washington University.

One of his recent books, "Behind the Scenes of Business," has gone through seven printings or more than 80,000 copies. He is co-author of "Practical Bank Credit," published in 1939, a reference book for bankers whose responsibility is to examine the commercial credit risk.

Peoples Nets 49 Cents a Share

Pamphlet report of Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., shows net earnings of $941,352 in the first quarter this year, equal to 49 cents a share. In the corresponding period last year, net totaled $207,531 or 42 cents a share.

Three-month sales totaled $6,244,825, against $5,631,225 in the same 1940 period. Operating expenses, including depreciation and amortization, was $5,999,349 as compared with $5,454,366 last year.

Current assets as of March 31 were $5,608,849, against $4,830,263, on March 31, 1940. Ratio of current assets to current liabilities was $2.90 to $1 as of March 31 against $3.48 to $1 on the same date last year. Earned surplus, after deducting 1941 dividend on common stock, totaled $4,269,300 against $4,030,711 last year.

D. C. Sales Gain 3 Per Cent

Washington department store sales for the week ended May 3 were 3 per cent ahead of the same week last year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. For the four weeks ended May 3 local sales were 30 per cent more than in the like 1940 period.

Store sales in the Fifth Federal Reserve District were 10 per cent ahead of the same week last year.

Department stores throughout the country averaged 14 per cent larger sales from January 1 to May 3 than in the similar period last year, the Federal Reserve Board estimated. Gains by Federal Reserve districts were: Boston, 13; New York, 10; Philadelphia, 18; Cleveland, 17; Richmond, 20; Atlanta, 15; Chicago, 16; St. Louis, 13; Minneapolis, 10; Kansas City, 11; Dallas, 12, and San Francisco, 13 per cent.

Business Highlights

By Standard & Poor's Corporation

The large jump in defense spending which had been expected for April failed to materialize. The total for the month was $753,000,000, which compares with $742,000,000 in March. April, of course, had one day less than March, but even making allowance for this, the outlay last month was disappointing. As a result of recent official demands for a much greater defense effort, it is still expected that the rate of defense spending will reach a billion monthly by midsummer.

Farm Income to Rise

While Federal benefit payments to farmers slumped considerably in the first four months of the year, totaling only about $278,000,000, against $356,000,000 in the like period last year, monthly payments from now through the end of the year should make more favorable comparisons. Full-year payments will be around $800,000,000 as against $766,000,000 in 1940. Moreover, bolstered by the expanded demand for food, cash farm income has been running well ahead of last year (the gain in March was 15%), and in the second quarter should be "substantially" higher. OPACS has already announced that it has no intention of blocking a rise in farm product prices, the Government is supporting prices of certain products, loan values on basic farm crops probably will be raised, and higher direct subsidies will be forthcoming if the Senate's $450,000,000 for parity payments (in addition to benefit payments) is finally enacted.

First Quarter Earnings

First quarter earnings results clearly reflect the conflicting forces of expanding business volumes on the one hand and sharply higher tax and wage costs on the other. Aggregate industrial earnings, based on the reports of some 220 companies which have thus far made public their results, were only about 20% higher than in the first quarter of 1940. The earnings gain is actually smaller than the increase in industrial production, a showing widely at variance with normal experience in a period of high industrial volumes. First quarter results are not likely to be indicative of full year earnings in most industries. Not until a new tax law is enacted will it be possible to estimate the extent to which higher taxes will cut into operating profits.

Excise Taxes

Present tax proposals point to the establishment of a wide list of excise, or consumption, taxes covering a large group of commodities and services. Suggested items range from automobiles, yachts and airplanes to electric light bulbs, vending machines and horse racing wagers. These excise taxes will have the favorable effect of immediately absorbing a portion of the expanding purchasing power—somewhere between $1,000,000,000 and $1,500,000,000 annually may be absorbed in this manner. Thus the process of sluicing off a substantial proportion of the income gain through heavier taxes, and through taking away another large sum through the sale of savings certificates, the Government is shaping its financial program to keep the public out of competition with the armament effort.

Railroad Car Builders Face Lack of Steel

By the Associated Press

New York, May 9.—Financial circles said today a lack of steel and the need for standardization were the major obstacles faced by freight car builders preparing for demands expected to arise from diversion of coastwise shipping to other routes.

They estimated orders now on the books called for delivery of 50,000 cars before October 1 and said another 22,000 cars probably could be delivered before the end of the year.

To complete these deliveries and to build the 160,000 the railroads are expected to need by October, 1942, they said plate steel for car construction must be made available and suggested that standardization of orders also would help speed up the output.

It was reported that two car building plants had to shut down from lack of plates and that another had been held back on as many as 2,000 cars by shortage of steel.

Some car industry spokesmen felt Federal priorities were concentrating too much on ship plate production at the expense of materials for freight cars.

These sources suggested also that if the railroads could place their orders immediately, the builders could plan for manufacturing facilities and personnel needed.

Car builders said they believed their plants and labor supply would be adequate for a program of 350,000 new freight cars by the fall of 1943.

The magazine Business Week estimates that the railroads in 1941 will require nearly 5,000,000 tons of steel, including track and rail supplies, compared with the 1939 use of 3,000,000 tons.

Car Orders Heavy

Chicago, May 9 (AP).—Railway Age said today that American railroads had ordered 100,876 freight cars during the year ended with April—a larger number than in any calendar year since 1929 when orders were placed for 111,321.

In April alone the roads ordered 16,091 freight cars, bringing to 43,539 the number ordered for the first four months of the year.

The railways, the article added, also ordered 52 locomotives in April, making 321 ordered in the first four months of the year. In addition, in these four months 98 locomotives were ordered by the Government and industry, making a total of 419—the largest total ordered in the first one-third of any year since before the depression.

Further Stepup In Auto Output Seen Next Week

Detroit, May 9 (AP).—Production of passenger cars and trucks this week will total 132,380 says Ward's Reports, Inc., continuing upward "to meet retail sales which are close to the highest levels ever recorded in the industry."

The week's total compares with 130,610 last week and with 98,480 this week last year.

"It appears," said Ward's, "that the rise is not yet quite near its end and that volume will hold firm in its present range for at least the balance of this month."

R. L. Polk & Co. estimated today that new passenger car registrations during March numbered 418,832 units, compared with 377,802 registered in March, 1929, the previous highest March total in the motor industry's history.

New truck registrations for March were placed at 61,873 units, a gain of 16.53 per cent over March a year ago.

Wheat Harvest Estimated at 3-Year High

By the Associated Press

The official forecast yesterday of probable winter wheat production, placed at 653,105,000 bushels, indicated the largest harvest since 1938 is in the making. With the exception of the 1937 and 1938 crops, which totaled around 668,000,000 bushels, the 1941 harvest may be the largest since the record of 825,000,000 bushels in 1931.

The Agriculture Department figure compared with an average of 643,000,000 bushels estimated by private crop experts a week ago. The rye crop forecast of 45,623,000 bushels compared with the private estimates of 41,500,000.

A crop of 616,128,000 bushels was indicated by conditions a month ago. Production was 589,151,000 bushels last year, and the 10-year (1930-39) average production was 589,417,000 bushels.

Winter wheat was sown last fall on 46,271,000 acres, compared with 43,820,000 acres the previous year, and 48,057,000, the 10-year average. Acreage abandonment was 12.9 per cent, compared with 17.5 per cent a year ago, and 18.8 per cent the 10-year average. Acreage remaining for harvest this year is 40,312,000 acres, compared with 38,147,000 a year ago, and 39,141,000, the 10-year average. A yield of 16.2 bushels an acre is indicated by May 1 conditions for this year compared with a yield of 16.3 bushels last year, and 14.4 bushels the 10-year average.

The indicated orange production for the 1940-41 season is placed at 78,354,000 boxes, compared with 75,846,000 for last season.

The indicated grapefruit crop is 42,963,000 boxes, compared with 35,175,000 last season.

Home Furnishings Called Backbone Of Sales Increase

New York, May 9 (AP).—Buying in retail stores continued at a brisk pace this week, sales averaging between 15 and 20 per cent above a year ago for the country as a whole, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Home furnishings were described in some regions as the backbone of the buying movement.

Business in New England topped the like 1940 period by 13 to 17 per cent, East and South 16 to 21 per cent, Middle West 18 to 25 per cent, Southwest 7 to 15 per cent, Northwest 10 to 16 per cent, and Pacific Coast 17 to 22 per cent.

Lower temperatures acted as a slight check on broadening interest in summer wear at some points, but many merchants continued to find summer apparel holding first place in buyer interest.

In wholesale markets, the peak of spring business had passed but heavy advance orders for fall and winter merchandise were preventing any between-season slack, said the agency.

Bethlehem Unit Shatters Output Record in Period

Lackawanna, N. Y., May 9 (AP).—Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Lackawanna plant broke all production records the first four months this year, turning out more than 1,000,000 tons of steel, General Manager Edward F. Entwisle said today.

This is 40 per cent of the plant's annual rated capacity of 2,592,000 tons. April output was 267,655 tons, or more than double the 129,178 tons produced in April, 1940. Daily average production the first four months was in excess of 8,600 tons of steel ingots, an increase of nearly 50 per cent over the same period last year.

Entwisle said pay roll forces during April totaled 14,229, a peak level, and wages reached an all-time high of $2,489,235, "reflecting the 10-cent-an-hour increase which became effective April 1."

Rigid Economy In Nondefense Activities Urged

Philadelphia, May 9 (AP).—The National Association of Mutual Savings Banks asked Federal, State and local governments today to "exercise rigid economy in all nondefense activities" in order to concentrate on national preparedness.

The association coupled the request with another resolution pledging its members to "redouble their efforts to foster thrift and to bring about a broad public recognition of the necessity of individual thrift and economy in behalf of national defense and personal security for the future." The resolution pointed out that defense necessities of the Government require increased thrift.

Another resolution adopted as the association concluded its 125th anniversary conference asserted that "railroads should remain under private management" during the national emergency.

Panhandle Firm Denies Link With Columbia Gas Subsidiary

By the Associated Press

Councel for Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co. socght yesterday to refuse a Securities Commission staff allegation that it was controlled by other firms with an assertion that if they had attempted such control "they have failed miserably."

The opposing contention were presented at arguments before the commission on applications by Panhandle to be declared not a subsidiary of either Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation or Columbia Oil & Gasoline Corporation, and applications covering a similar aim filed by the latter companies.

Edward N. Goodwin, Panhandle attorney, said that the company had "operated its affairs independent and with conspicuous success."

He cited figures to show that its sales of gas had more than quadrupled in six years and that its profit in 1940 was $4,548,324 compared with a loss of $326,054 in 1935.

Ambrose Selig, SEC attorney, declared that Columbia Oil was controlled by Columbia Gas and was an intermediary company through which Columbia Gas controlled Panhandle Eastern.

He charged also that it was necessary in the public interest and for the protection of investors and consumers that all three companies "be subject to the obligations, duties and liabilities" imposed by the Holding Company Act.

Goodwin said that Columbia Gas "has no right or power to influence or control Panhandle Eastern, its management, directors or business in any respect whatsoever," and "could not succeed if it tried."

He added also that Columbia Oil's rights in the Panhandle situation were "so limited, so far from any effective or material control over Panhandle Eastern . . . that Panhandle Eastern should not be regarded as a subsidiary." e said that Panhandle was primarily a business corporation, had no utility subsidiaries and no income from any utility business.

Stocks Drift Unevenly in Narrow Range; Coppers and Rails Exhibit Mild Buoyancy

New York, May 9.—Buyers took on scattered coppers, rails and industrials in today's stock market but left many leaders to shift for themselves in a narrow range.

There was not much to go on in the way of outstanding bullish news from the war or domestic sources and uneven trends ruled from the start as short covering and lightening of commitments for week-end protection made for spotty prices.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 39.8. Dealings slowed after moderate activity in the forenoon. Transfers amounted to 397,380 shares compared with 440,400 Thursday.

An exception to slim movements elsewhere was a last-minute burst of strength in Southern Railway-Mobile & Ohio trust certificates, which jumped 4⅞ points to a new year's top at 32⅞. The runup was in the wake of a decision by the appellate division of the New York Supreme Court affirming a ruling holding the Southern Railway liable for the annual $4 dividend on the certificates.

General Motors was up ⅛ and Chrysler down ⅜, although automotive production pushed up sharply this week under the impetus of near-record sales demand.

Santa Fe, New York Central, Great Northern and Chesapeake & Ohio were up a shade as traffic prospects brightened for most roads. Anaconda, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Inspiration Copper and American Smelting emerged with plus signs. Heavy copper purchasing both for defense and private purposes aroused thoughts of steady dividend payments in this group.

Ohio Oil was up ⅝ at 9, a new 1941 high, but Standard of New Jersey and Texas Corporation were behind. Modest improvement was shown for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, J. C. Penney, Du Pont, United Aircraft and International Paper common and preferred.

Among laggards were Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, Union Carbide, Westinghouse, Consolidated Edison and Public Service of New Jersey.

Helpful to securities was a revival in commodities which renewed their climb partly on the outlook for large Federal loans. Wheat at Chicago advanced 1½ to 2 cents a bushel and corn gained 1¼ to 3¼. Cotton climbed 90 cents to $1.30 a bale. U. S. Governments rallied in over-the-counter dealings. The listed bond division was mixed.

Given a lift in the curb were Colts Patent Fire Arms, American Cyanamid "B," Driver-Harris and Humble Oil. Faltering were Creole Petroleum, Gulf Oil and International Petroleum. Volume here was around 65,000 shares versus 70,000 yesterday.

Buying orders for United States Government bonds entered the over-the-counter market in brisk volume today after the stock exchange closed, sending quotations on some of the longer-term issues as much as 7/32 point ahead.

Bond transactions in the stock exchange totaled $8,350,100, face value, compared with $10,425,680 yesterday.

Attention was given to the power liens as a result of increasing rates of industrial production based on the defense program. Companies with Latin American holdings were benefited by improved inter-American trade prospects.

April Sales Rise In Chain Stores At Sharp Rate

Chain stores enjoyed exceptionally large sales gains in April over the same month last year, figures of the first companies to report reveal. The sharpest increases were recorded by mail-order and clothing-store companies, but all other types of firms also showed substantial upturns in dollar sales for the month.

The fact that Easter fell in April this year against March of last year was the main contributing factor to the unusually good showing. The improvement in general business conditions also helped to boost the size of the increases.

Sears Roebuck reported that the later-Easter this year brought gains in the first ten days of the month of as much as 50 per cent over the same period last year, with the mail-order division showing even larger advances than the retail-store division. Bond Stores, men's clothing chain, in April almost doubled its business of a year ago, reporting an increase of 99.7 per cent in the month's dollar sales over April, 1940.

Following are the percentage gains for April, March and the first four months of this year over last year, for the chain-store systems reporting to date:

Caraway Seeds Disappear From U. S. Market

New York, May 9 (AP).—Add war casualties: caraway seeds, the little brown specks that added pungent aroma to rye bread, have disappeared from the market, and, therefore, from rye bread.

Caraway skyrocketed 500 per cent in price from its prewar 8 cents a pound, after the Nazis took the central European producing areas. It can't be had for love or money now, dealers say.

And your true caraway lover won't accept dill seed, sometimes offered as a substitute, in his rye bread.

Poppyseed may disappear, too, bakers hinted, for the Turkish source is threatened by war and besides there isn't much shipping space available for it.

'Opportunity' Knocked At Exchange Door

New York, May 9 (AP).—When the Stock Exchange picked Emil Schram of the RFC for its presidency, it passed up the application of a man who wrote from a Midwestern city:

"Am informed you're in need of executive-creative intelligence, due to the drafting of Mr. (William McChesney) Martin. Can and will make a 'howling' success of this job, on a 50-50 basis on all profits made, due to my knowledge, intelligence and foresight. Will accept $50,000 cash at once and will invite a contract to suit all members concerned.

"Act, and wire today—don't wire collect."

Shoe Show Starts Early Due to Uncertainties

New York, May 9 (AP).—Two trade show announcements today highlighted the tight position caused in some consumer goods industries by the war.

Some 260 shoe manufacturers will open their annual "autumn exhibit" Sunday "because of the uncertain leather situation."

The Toilet Goods Association announced it would cancel the exhibition previously planned in connection with the annual convention June 9 to 11 because of "the very unsettled condition" of raw materials supplies.

Cottonseed Oil Spurts

New York, May 9 (AP).—Another buying rush in the cottonseed oil futures market today lifted prices 28 to 40 points to new seasonal tops. Sales totaled 474 contracts. July closed at 10.47 bid; September, 10.44 bid; October, 10.43; December, 10.48 bid.

Johns-Manville Corp. Busiest in History

New York, May 9 (AP).—Lewis H. Brown, president of Johns-Manville Corporation, told stockholders today the big construction materials firm was operating at the highest level in history with more than one-third the output under Government defense contracts.

He said, however, he could make no predictions concerning earnings, although he hoped this year would be "satisfactory" for stockholders.

"The year after," he added, "will be another problem, since the country likely will be in the war by then."

Most of the company's factories, Brown disclosed, are operating 24 hours a day and seven days a week but some departments, nevertheless, are two to three months behind on orders.

U. S. Places Order For Canned Cheese

The Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation purchased 1,000,000 pounds of such cheese, presumably for export purposes, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange reported.

Canned cheese is a development of the Bureau of Dairy Industry of the Department of Agriculture. It consists of sealing freshly made cheese in a tight container provided with a valve which permits escape of gases produced as the cheese ripens. The valve excludes air, preventing mold.

Rail Workers Donate Flying Ambulance

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, May 9.—A flying ambulance designed primarily for the rescue of pilots shot down in the waters surrounding the British Isles will soon be winging its way over the Atlantic for delivery to the British Royal Air Force. It is the gift of the employes of the Baltimore & Ohio-Alton Railroads, who raised the purchase price of $87,000 by voluntary contributions of 1 per cent of their April pay.

Williams to Head Cooper-Bessemer

Mount Vernon, Ohio, May 9 (AP).—The Cooper-Bessemer Corporation today announced the election of D. B. Williams as president and general manager, succeeding Charles B. Jahnke who died Tuesday.

Williams served as president of the engine-building firm until last December, when he became board chairman.

Cotton, Wheat Renew Sharp Upward Swing

By the Associated Press

Domestic and import farm and industrial commodities again swung into bullish stride yesterday after Thursday's brief pause as traders and consumers studied the Agricultural Department's threat of "action" to curb speculative excesses.

Further soaring advances in New York cotton futures and Chicago wheat gave added force to a fresh broad buying movement. Supply and demand statistics, growing shipping restrictions and Government planning to peg prices of some farm staples also were mentioned as influences in the keen demand.

Despite absence of word on the Government's wishes in regard to loan rates, cotton futures extended their fast climb, closing 90 cents to $1.40 a bale higher. Certain Southern Senators have sponsored a move for loans at 85 per cent of parity price of 16 cents for the fiber. If adopted this would make cotton loanable at around 14 cents a pound, or about 1½ cents above the prevailing level of New York cotton futures.

In the New York commodity trading cottonseed oil took a big lead over most other markets with a jump of .28 to .40 of a cent a pound. This staple was singled out for special mention in the Agricultural Department's recent comment on overspeculation and on Thursday the New York Produce Exchange adopted rules rigidly fixing minimum margins and brokers' credit extended to traders.

Other futures in the higher column were Santos coffee, up .07 to .10 of a cent a pound; rubber, up .15 to .29 of a cent; hides, up .18 to .21 of a cent; cocoa, up .04 to .06 of a cent.

The Associated Press index of 35 wholesale spot staples reached a new four-year high at 83.80 per cent of the 1926 average against 83.32 per cent Thursday.

Municipal Financing Accelerates in Week

New York, May 9 (AP).—An increase in municipal financing boosted public offerings of new securities during the week ended yesterday to a total of $75,418,108 compared with $47,178,840 the previous week, Standard & Poors Corporation reported today.

A big refunding program by the City of Detroit accounted for a large part of the week's total. Corporate financing was very small.

Cost of Food Jumps 2.3% During Month

By the Associated Press

New York, May 9.—A gain of seven-tenths of 1 per cent in the cost of living for wage-earners from March to April was reported today by the National Industrial Conference Board.

The research organization noted a rise of 2.3 per cent in the cost of food and gains of one-tenth of 1 per cent each in rent and clothing prices, while the Nation's average costs for sundries, fuel and light remained unchanged.

Tax Ruling Hits Smaller Banks

By the Associated Press

New York, May 9.—Bankers, notified that salaries of directors who act on bank committees were subject to social security taxes, were trying today to figure just where they stood.

Some said the advice of the Bureau of Internal Revenue that banks must pay social security taxes in such cases would work a hardship on smaller banks. They said banks with up to eight employes were not subject to the taes, but that if directors were counted it would put many of them above that minimum.

Under New York law, a bank must have at least three committees—executive, examining and real estate mortgage appraisal—made up of directors.

Army Is Expected To Fly Capt. Rivas' Body to Bolivia

Assignment of an Army plane to fly the body of Capt. Rafael Suarez Rivas to Bolivia appeared likely yesterday as a Federal investigation continued into the cause of the crash that took his life here Thursday.

Capt. Alberto Taborga, copilot on the Bolivian goodwill flight, and who tried in vain to pull his comrade's body from the flaming wreckage after their ship cracked up at Washington Airport, was reported in good condition at Emergency Hospital. Last night, Capt. Taborga had not been informed that his friend is dead.

While the wrecked plane's engine was being disassembled yesterday at the Bureau of Standards, Civil Aeronautics Board investigators were taking statements from witnesses.

SUPERMAN — A Trap Is Set — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

THERE'S SOMETHING YOU WANTED TO TELL ME?
NO, SOMETHING I WANTED TO ASK. YOU'VE BEEN LOOKING OUT FOR MY WELFARE FOR A LONG TIME NOW. WHAT I'D LIKE TO KNOW IS, HAVE YOU MORE THAN AN IMPERSONAL INTEREST IN ME?
I'M AFRAID I'LL HAVE TO DEFER THE ANSWER TO THAT ONE—TEMPORARILY!
BUT SOME DAY YOU MUST TELL ME! I MUST KNOW! I HAVE A RIGHT TO KNOW!
PARKED ACROSS THE STREET, LIL DANVERS, THE "BLOND TIGRESS", STARTS THE MOTOR OF HER CAR....
THAT CAR BELOW—DRIVING SWIFTLY—ERRATICALLY! I'D BETTER FOLLOW—AND SEE WHAT DEVELOPS!

JOE PALOOKA — Thick-a-hatch-ee — BY HAM FISHER

THEY HAVE GONE FURTHER ON.
THEY CANNOT GO FAR THROUGH THE MANGROVE. THICK A-HATCHEE IS IMPASSABLE EVEN FOR US. THE DANGERS ARE TOO GREAT.
BUT WE MUST GO IN EVEN THO' IT MEANS SUICIDE.
WHY SHOULD WE? WHAT DID THEY DO TO US BUT GREAT WRONGS? LET US TURN BACK HERE.
BECAUSE HE IS OUR FRIEND. I KNOW OF HIM. HE WOULD UNDO ALL WRONGS. I KNOW. HE IS GOOD LIKE THE WHITE FATHER ROOS-EE-VELT.
THEN COME AND WATCH THY STEP MORE CAREFULLY THAN EVER BEFORE

IT'S IMPORTANT WHEN A MAN'S WIFE PRESENTS HIM WITH TWINS!

MR. AND MRS. — Ye Old Book Lover — BY ARTHUR FOLWELL AND ELLISON HOOVER

SOME OF THESE BOOKS LOOK DISGRACEFUL—THE BINDINGS ALL BATTERED AND BROKEN
WHY NOT GET RID OF THE WORST OF THEM? KEEP JUST THE GOOD ONES
OKAY. I'LL SORT 'EM OUT.
GOSH, WHAT A WRECK! STEVENSONS TREASURE ISLAND —AND MORE JUST LIKE IT
BUT YOU'VE PUT THEM ALL BACK!
SURE. THE BUSTED BOOKS ARE THE ONES I READ

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

The homely old saw, that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach, is being used in Washington today in the interest of promoting better Pan-American relations.

If that sounds slightly like a non sequitur, we follow promptly with the explanation that before they discuss the important subject, "What Is Pan-Americanism Today?," on a broadcast to be heard over WJSV at 6 p. m., Vice President Henry Wallace; Senor Dr. Don Francisco Castillo Najera, the Mexican Ambassador; Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Director-General of the Pan American Union; and John I. B. McCulloch, Director of Latin-American Relations for the Foreign Policy Association and editor of "Pan-American News," are to dine together at the Carlton Hotel at a meal which will be typically Mexican.

The program is C. B. S.'s "The People's Platform" on which each Saturday these spontaneous informal remarks of participants are picked up by concealed microphones and broadcast to the Nation. Lyman Bryson, head of the C. B. S. Adult Education Board, presides as an informal interlocutor.

The idea of making the Mexican ambassador feel at home in more ways than one—by having this particular meal prepared completely by a Mexican chef in typical Mexican fashion in the Carlton kitchen—was cooked up by C. B. S. as its appetizing little contribution to Pan-American well-being.

Contract Bridge

This question concerns the play of today's hand. You hold the South cards as declarer; West has just led the club king. Plan your play carefully so as to take ten tricks at spades, then compare your answer with the solution given below.

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable

SOUTH DEALER

♠ Q 10 7 4 2
♡ A K 8
◇ 9 4 2
♣ J 3

♠ 3	NORTH	♠ J 9
♡ 10 9 7 6 3	WEST EAST	♡ Q J 5
◇ K 7		◇ Q 10 8 6
♣ A K Q 9 7	SOUTH	♣ 8 6 4 2
	♠ A K 8 6 5
	◇ A J 5 3
	♣ 10 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♣	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: K ♣.

Solution

Declarer makes his four-spade contract by developing an end play dependent on an uneven split in diamonds. West takes the king and queen of clubs and shifts to a heart. Declarer wins, knocks out trumps, cashes the second heart honor and ruffs dummy's third card of the suit. Now, figuring the diamonds are probably divided 4-2, declarer plays out the ace of diamonds, hoping that the opponent, short in diamonds, holds the king or queen; so that, after winning the second diamond trick, he will be obliged to lead some suit which South can ruff and on which dummy can discard.

West is "fixed." If he plays the seven he will win the next diamond lead with the king, but then the play of a heart or a club gives declarer his ruff and discard. If he throws his king under the ace of diamonds (which is his best play), declarer enters dummy with a spade and leads a diamond toward his jack. The game is certain then with the loss of only two clubs and one diamond.

Naval Chiefs Of 11 Nations See Middies

Associated Press Staff Writer

Annapolis, Md., May 9.—Naval chiefs from 11 Latin-American republics reviewed a brilliant full dress parade of 2,600 midshipmen today which climaxed their visit to the United States Naval Academy.

They departed shortly afterward for Washington, ending a seven-hour tour which took them through most of the academy's buildings.

The distinguished visitors are to remain in Washington for a few days before continuing their tour of United States naval establishments at the invitation of Admiral Harold R. Stark, U. S. N., chief of naval operations.

The Latin Americans were accompanied to the reviewing stand and during their tour of the academy by their personal aides, Rear Admiral Russell Willson, academy superintendent; Rear Admiral A. T. Beauregard, U. S. N., Admiral Stark's personal representative, and other United States naval officers.

At lunch in Admiral Willson's quarters, the visitors heard the superintendent assert that "I hope you will take away some impressions of value and certainly some small understanding of the spirit and warm professional regard with which we greet you today."

Responding, Capt. Julio Diez Arguelles, chief of the Cuban constitutional navy, declared that control of the seas is vitally important.

He said, in part:

"In this historic moment in which in the old continent the sound of cannon is the predominant note; in these moments when America revives and affirms her sentiments of democracy, keeping herself alert and ready to defend the Western Hemisphere in case of peril, it is more than ever a necessity to proclaim that our nations should be wholly in accord, that we may safeguard our common future.

"In the world of today, as we see before our eyes the tragedy of countless and mournful chapters, the United States Navy holds the position of the highest and most vital importance.

"Upon her falls the immense task of carrying a healthy realization of the supreme aim which the clear vision of that eminent statesman, His Excellency Franklin D. Roosevelt, has entrusted to the 'arsenal of the democracies.'"

The visitors arrived here from Washington at 10 a. m., in 15 automobiles, flying the various flags of the Latin-American republics. They were greeted by Admiral Willson, his aides and academy department heads.

Just before noon, the naval chiefs witnessed the midshipman regiment form in front of Bancroft Hall for the noonday meal. Then they visited the mess hall and rode to the superintendent's quarters for lunch.

Before reviewing the parade, the guests visited other buildings, including the academy museum, and watched midshipmen at work in laboratories.

Sunset Symphony Opening Moved Up to June 29

The first of Washington's popular "Sunset Symphonys" at the Potomac Water Gate will be held the evening of June 29 instead of June 30, it was announced yesterday by the National Symphony Orchestra's summer concerts committee.

The second concert will be held Wednesday, July 2, the committee announced. The decision to advance the opening was prompted by the committee's desire not to conflict on its second concert with the exodus for the Fourth of July weekend.

Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony, has been appointed musical director for the Water Gate concerts. He will supervise all 10 concerts of the summer season and conduct the first concert and the final one.

Attending the committee meeting yesterday were Harold A. Brooks, chairman; Dr. Kindler, E. R. Finkenstaedt, A. F. E. Horn, Milton King, Thomas P. Morgan Jr., L. Corrin Strong and J P. Hayes, manager of the orchestra.

Army Will Start Barrage Balloon Training Center

The Army yesterday announced that a barrage balloon training center, to train 80 officers and 750 men initially, is being established at Camp Davis, S. C.

The school will carry on experiments with new equipment and tactics as well as train personnel, it was said. Jurisdiction over the work is being transferred from the Air Corps to the Coast Artillery and Col. Robert Arthur, until recently director of the Army War College Historical Section here, will command the training center.

The barrage balloon squadron at Fort Lewis, Wash., will be moved to Camp Davis next week and a battalion will be created. At least half of the men of two Air Corps balloon squadrons will be transferred to the new unit.

Congressional Library Prepares Folk-Song Records

A series of 10 recorded programs, explaining and illustrating the folk songs of the American people as they are sung by the people themselves, has been prepared by the Library of Congress and is now available to radio stations and educational and cultural groups.

The series includes actual field recordings of American folk music made for the library's Archive of American Folk Song. Librarian Archibald MacLeish said yesterday.

John A. Lomax, honorary curator of the archive, provides the commentary for the series, which is entitled, "The Ballad Hunter."

Women's Delicate Touch Proves Valuable In Many Industries

By Inez Robb
International News Service Staff Writer

The war now engulfing so much of the world with its savagery has introduced a startling array of martial novelties in the air and on land and sea. But no innovation has caught the world's imagination so forcefully as the Nazis successful use of parachute troops, especially in the Lowlands campaign a year ago.

The successful—and demoralizing—use of such troops in Belgium and Holland convinced a world that had snickered several years before at the Russians' initial organization of such a corps. Today, when American newsreels show American boys being trained as parachute troops, American audiences raise an enthusiastic clatter that sets the theater rafters ringing.

These American boys who float through the air with the greatest of ease, float that way because the talented hands of American women have fashioned their parachutes with expert and accurate care.

The parachute industry, which has grown at an astounding rate because of defense orders, is but one of the branches of aviation production in which women workers are at a premium.

Fifty per cent of the employes of the Switlik Parachute and Equipment Co., of Trenton, N. J., are women. Because of Government orders, the Switlik plant has increased its plant and facilities more than 400 per cent in the past 12 months. This company is now the largest manufacturer of parachutes in the world.

Surely no facet of war production is more strange and fascinating than the amount of sewing essential to the completion of war's most deadly weapons. As in the case of planes and tanks and barrage balloons, parachutes demand both quality and quantity in hand stitching.

Small and dainty hands that have embroidered hope chests, stitched trousseaux and spent loving hours on baby clothes have now graduates—cum laude—into the manufacture of parachutes. The best of everything—materials and workmanship—go into parachutes, every step of whose manufacture calls for precision.

Even the preliminary task, the laying of the silk for cutting, must be done with the greatest car by women to whom this job is intrusted. Silk is laid (and cut) for 25 parachutes at a time. It must be laid so evenly that not so much as a tiny ripple, much less a wrinkle, exicts in any layer.

Since 1,700 yards of silk are involved in this one operation, it is obvious that this is no simple task. It is hardly comparable to laying out five yards of silk on the dining room table, pinning on a paper pattern and reaching for the scissors.

There is constant inspection of every step of the chute in process of manufacture. For instance, women must see that the shroud lines are continuous. Under no circumstance can they ever be spliced or tied.

Women also work on the specially designed covers made to protect the parachute. These covers are so designed and made that they are water and dirt proof, but at the same time open instantly when the 'chute is in use and the ripcord pulled.

In all of these important operations, and in many others at the Switlik plant, women are busy and indispensable in the equipping of America's first parachute troops.

Nearby in Camden, N. J., other women are helping to build special instruments to guide America's mighty tanks, battleships and airplanes. They are the women who are employed in the assembling of special apparatus in the Camden plant of the Radio Corporation of America. Here are women literally engaged in the manufacture of delicate antennae to enable America's armed forces to feel their way by land, sea and air.

This extraordinary group is headed by an extraordinary young woman, Jewell Williams, senior woman supervisor in the special apparatus assembly division. Her mind and her fingers function with lightning speed. She herself worked out and then taught her co-workers to do more quickly by hand a number of technical jobs which men—because their hands are so much larger—can only do at best, with the aid of tools.

In one of the instruments vital to defense which now comes under her supervision, a short screw must be set deep in the mechanism. Men formerly did this with pliers. But Miss Williams has eliminated that time-consuming operation by the simple discovery that small feminine hands and slim fingers can set the screw in place with a simple twist of the wrist and without pliers.

Federal Reserve Board Seeks To Curb Installment Sales

The Federal Reserve Board disclosed yesterday that it is prepared to curb installment selling of automobiles and other consumer goods in order to prevent inflation and to conserve industrial resources for the defense program.

The board and a staff of experts, headed by Dr. Carl Parry, has made a study of the problems of "buying on time" and are waiting for President Roosevelt and Price Administrator Leon Henderson to authorize them to seek Congressional powers to regulate the business.

The proposed powers would permit the board to say how much should be paid down on articles and how much time consumers get to pay off the remainder

If the powers are voted, plans call for applying them immediately to the new and used car financing business. Experts believe that down payments should be boosted above one-third of total price and that the payment time for the balance should be cut down from the present average of 18 months to about a year.

The automobile business was ticketed for initial action, first because it is responsible for about half of the installment financing in the country, and secondly because automobile plants, labor and materials are needed for the defense program

Refrigerators, radios, furniture and other expensive consumer items would be next on the list, officials said.

The experts view financing of new houses as the biggest problem after automobiles, but said it was one which might be sidestepped. Although home construction may compete with defense needs for labor and materials, the experts credit it with important social benefits and note that in some areas the defense program, itself, is responsible for large new housing demands.

One official said he had long favored regulation of installment credit in order to minimize the ups and downs of business, but the defense program has accentuated the need for such controls.

Generally, he said, business fluctuations are aggravated by the fact that in good times average consumers are induced by liberal installment credit to buy more than they can afford and speed the boom. Then in hard times, they are so loaded with payments that they are unable to contribute even a normal amount of purchasing power to stimulate current trade.

The board considers itself the logical agency for controlling installment credit because the activity would fit in with its general credit control activities in the monetary and banking fields.

Nazis Lack Raw Materials, Says Halifax

By International News Service

Minneapolis, Minn., May 9.—British Ambassador Lord Halifax speaking in the isolationist Middle West tonight, declared that British morale and fighting force, backed by American industrial power, will defeat Hitler.

As in Chicago last night, he outlined for the Minneapolis Rotary Club today the strength of the British and the weakness of the Germans.

"In a war so specialized as this" he said, "in which machinery is playing a decisive role, the raw materials which make and drive that machinery are playing an ever more important part. And since that is so, raw materials are going to have a great deal to say.

"I take three of the most essential: Oil is the vital source of power for the modern army, and together the United States and the British Commonwealth of Nations dispose of some 70 per cent of the world supply. Eighty-five per cent of the world's copper is still beyond Hitler's reach, and no less than 81 per cent of the crude rubber.

"These are the trump cards in the hand of freedom."

Of the Battle of the Atlantic, which he said in Chicago was the decisive battle of the war, Lord Halifax declared:

"It will be determined by sea power in the form of our navy with such help as you feel able to allow your Navy to give us, and by our capacity to defeat the destructive attacks on our shipping of the submarine and aeroplane and by your and our power to replace the ships which are sunk.

"The link between production and combat, the sea lanes by which the tools pass on their way to the job is vital and its strength can be ensured by the joint action of both the United States and Great ritain.

"If with your aid we can win the battles of production and transportation, we in Britain are confident, and we believe you share our confidence, that we can win the last battle of all which will rid the world of this evil thing."

Of the battle of production, he said:

"For the last seven years Nazi Germany had increased the tempo of her industry to its maximum intensity. To do this she has whipped out of her industrial man-power an effort so tremendous that only a quick and total victory can save her.

"But here in the United States, that big arsenal of Democracy, the growing strength arising from the mobilization of your vast industrial power is only now beginning to be discerned.

"And the answer to the question, 'Can Hitler be defeated?' lies partly here in your great mills, shipbuilding plants and factories, and partly in the resolution of the British people.

"About the immense help you can give us there is no doubt. About our unfaltering devotion to our cause there is no doubt either.

"For nothing will make the British people believe that all they stand for can go down before so vile and base a thing as Naziism has proved itself to be."

John Robertson Succeeds Brother

John N. Robertson, 41, a native Washingtonian, was named by the Commissioners yesterday to succeed his brother, Leonard O. Robertson, as District engineer of streets. Leonard Robertson died Sunday.

John Robertson entered the highway department in 1917 at the age of 18 as a survey field man. He has been an associate engineer in charge of street construction work for several years. His new position pays $5,600 a year.

Missionary Tells Of Aid to Lepers

Dr. S. M. Erickson, back in America after 30 years of leper mission work in Japan, yesterday described what the government there is doing for lepers, in giving him every opportunity to spread cheer and Christianity among them.

With Mrs. Erickson, his wife and helpmate in the work, he spoke at the semi-annual meeting of the Washington City Auxiliary Mission to the Lepers at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church. He was presented by Mrs. G. C. D. Townshend, local unit president. Another speaker was Dr. E. R. Kellerberger, new secretary of the American Mission to the Lepers.

House Votes Funds to Aid Arms Workers

Funds with which the District and scores of other American communities expect to meet the cost of schools and other facilities for defense workers were authorized by the House yesterday in passage of the $150,000,000 Lanham public works defense bill.

The measure would authorize Public Works Administrator John M. Carmody, with the approval of the President, to make loans or grants to public and private agencies for public works "necessary to the health, safety or welfare" of defense workers.

Last March, Commissioner John R. Young advised Congressional leaders that for schools alone the District's "minimum immediate requirements" involved an estimated expenditure of $1,197,771. He pointed out that the Board of Education had asked $1,985,000 over and above funds already requested in the 1942 budget for new school construction.

Since then the House, in a deficiency bill, has voted $190,000 for a new elementary school at Pennsylvania and Alabama Avenues Southeast, one of a list of essential projects submitted by Young.

The list included items totaling $550,000 for additions to the Benning and Van Ness Schools, including land purchase; $38,990 for land and plans for an elementary school at Forty-fourth Street and Alabama Avenue Southeast; $55,000 for land for schools at Nichols Avenue and Atlantic Street and Forty-ninth and Hayes Streets Southeast, and $340,000 for land and start of construction of a junior high school at Forty-ninth Street and Washington Place.
